This will be strengthened this season, for every appointment in our cutting department has been made with a determination to secure for our patrons the greatest available skill and efficiency in the execution of all orders placed with us, whilst the oversight given ensures that attention and promptness so characteristic of our House.

The repeated orders which every day brings to this counter are an evidence that our efforts are successful, and that in giving the quality we do, at the lowest possible price, meets the wishes of the buyer, who deserves to be well served, inasmuch as he pays cash.

Parliamentary Elections.

ELECTORS OF EAST SYDNEY.

Gentlemen,—

In seeking re-election at your hands, it is necessary that I should refer to a few of the leading political events in the history of the last Parliament, which was returned mainly on the questions of reform in our Land and Licensing Laws.

I strongly supported most of the leading principles of the new Land Act, endeavouring (successfully at times) to carry amendments where I thought they were required; and, though I do not approve of all of its provisions, I maintain that it is a vast improvement on the old Act, and as it becomes better understood it will be more appreciated. However, just as I opposed some of its causes when in committee, so I am still of opinion that it requires amendment in several respects to make it more equitable in its bearings and to divest its administration from the suspicion of political influences.

I supported amendments in the Licensing Act, which removed some of the glaring disabilities under which the Licensed Victuallers were suffering, and advocated amendments in the interests of the public—notably in regard to total Sunday closing, which, especially in a country like this, with our out-of-door tendencies, I consider irrational despotism imposed by the few upon the many. I opposed the extension of Local Option either to removals or renewals, believing that the increase of population and the rapid growth of our towns will soon have the effect of greatly reducing the number of hotels in proportion to the population where they are in excess of legitimate requirements.

During my few weeks' tenure of office, I gave instructions for the erection of several large railway hotels for the convenience of railway travellers. I started an additional Sunday morning train, calling at all stations to Parramatta and back, enabling Sunday travellers, and especially those arriving by Newcastle and other steamers, to leave Sydney at 6.30 a.m., instead of having to wait till 8.30 as heretofore. At the same time, I reduced the amount of Sunday labour in connection with the goods traffic to a minimum, and, wherever it appeared practicable, I reduced the working day to eight hours. As the representatives of farming districts were urging a reduction of carrying rates to a nominal figure amounting to a system of protection to the farmers, while others were advocating the construction of railways to "nowhere" in search of a few bales of wool, which would not pay working expenses for years to come, I thought it desirable, while the railways were profitable, to increase the pay of our railway operatives, so as to bring them equal to the average of the best paid private establishments; and although this action, in conjunction with what my successor (Mr. Wright) gave effect to, necessitates the disbursement of something like an additional £40,000 a year in wages, it only goes to prove that the men were previously receiving that amount collectively per annum less than their due, and I hold that the people's Government should not be used as an instrument for grinding down the wages of the people. I supported the action of the late Government in connection with the "Soudan Contingent," this being our maiden effort of sharing the Imperial burdens which our brothers in the old land had hitherto most unrighteously borne for us in addition to their own sufficiently heavy load; but I utterly repudiate the mercenary arguments that some have urged in favour of the action of the Government. For the first time in our existence we awoke to some sort of sense of our growing responsibilities, and our friends were made to believe that we were full-blooded cubs of the stout old lion. The Opposition, however, with an utter absence of patriotism, has proclaimed to the world with brazen tongues that we are only the jackall's whelps after all.

Mr. Dibbs proposed a property and income tax, which I opposed as being impracticable in its machinery, and inequitable in its ramifications. As a source of revenue, I proposed a 10 and 5 per cent. ad valorem duty, and urged that to allow buggies, billiard tables, furniture, and such like manufactured articles to be imported free, while a heavy duty was charged on all the raw materials necessary to the manufacture of these was unjustly protecting the foreign workman, at the expense of our own carriage and cabinetmakers. This is simply protection inverted, or free trade run mad. To deal equitably with our established factories, either the duty should be removed from the imported raw materials, or an equivalent duty should be placed on the manufactured importations, while such things as jewellery, musical and scientific instruments, silks, satins, feathers, watches, clocks, upholstery, and other articles used mostly by the rich, might well bear a share of the expenses of government, which could be collected with little (if any) additional expenditure. If we can dispense with revenue, I am prepared to remove import duties of every kind, and apply a fire-stick to the Custom House; but, if not, then it is necessary to readjust our tariff to altered circumstances, and on a more equitable basis.

I will deal with other questions when I have the pleasure of addressing you.

I am, Gentlemen,
Yours obediently,
HENRY COPELAND.

TO THE ELECTORS OF SOUTH SYDNEY.

Gentlemen,—In a week or two you will be called upon to exercise your privilege of electors in choosing four representatives in the ensuing Parliament. I respectfully offer myself as a candidate for one of the seats at your disposal. I may state that although I have for many years taken a deep interest in all passing political questions, and have been asked to become a candidate for Parliamentary honours, diffidence and personal considerations have up to the present restrained me from coming forward; but the maladministration of the late Government has reached such a measure of political inquity that I feel it my duty to come forward and do what I can to put an end to such a disgraceful state of things. Whether you enlarge my field of action by making me one of your representatives or not, I will have the satisfaction of raising my voice against political jobbery and corruption now sapping the foundations of our constitutional rights and moral sense of justice.

One of the first questions that should engage the attention of the new Parliament is that of the new lines of railway carried through Parliament by the late Government. It is absolutely necessary that the whole of these lines for which tenders have not been accepted should be submitted to a commission, and with their report reconsidered by the Assembly. If all these lines are carried out, their working will entail a loss of not less than £200,000 per annum.

The obligations for which we will have to provide fresh revenue will not fall short of £1,300,000. The rump of the late Government will in all probability endeavour to raise this sum by increasing the import duties on tea, coffee, and sugar, and impose new excise duties on beer, sugar, and colonial wines, and increase them on tobacco, should they be able to retain office after the election; and although this is not likely, their probable successors, although they may not attempt to impose excise duties, will endeavour to raise the required revenue from increased import duties on tea, coffee, and other kinds of imported goods not suitable for part production here. Such a policy applied to our present industrial circumstances will aggravate the impending depression that no policy can entirely prevent. If an import duty averaging 15 per cent. is imposed on such manufactured goods as can be partly produced here, it will stimulate industry to produce a portion of such goods, and the profits of productive labour will repay to the community the whole of the duty, or, in other words, the increase in the price of the goods made here, and will at the same time find employment for a great number of people now out of work, and make openings for youths to learn trades of various kinds that are now all but closed against apprentices. More openings are required for the rising generation, and must be found unless the country is to remain a mere exporter of raw produce. Merchants and graziers in advocating such a policy are no doubt consulting their own interests, but these interests are opposed to nine-tenths of the population.

I am in favour of Local Option, subject to necessary restrictions, as I believe it is calculated to confer a moral benefit on the community; but the community must in justice compensate those whose business and property would suffer through its adoption. Whether this compensation should be borne by the voting locality or by the whole municipality is a question requiring careful consideration. Probably the most just apportionment would be for each to pay one half.

I am opposed to members of Parliament soliciting or interviewing Ministers with the view of influencing their decisions on land and other questions, being allowed to do so where such service carries any pecuniary reward, and I will be prepared to take steps, or join with others who may do so, in carrying an Act to prevent its continuance; which Act might likewise deal with Ministers of the Crown interested in Government contracts under cover of a limited liability company.

I am in favour of payment of members, as I believe the great mass of the people cannot be fairly represented without it.

I am opposed to the present system of employing general funds to import labour for the benefit of its purchaser at the expense of the sellers.

The present patent law is a disgrace to the colony, and I will be prepared to act or assist in carrying one in which the fees shall not exceed the actual cost.

I am in favour of amending the Education Act in conformity with the original platform of secular, compulsory, and free for primary education, and the establishment of high schools open only to advanced scholars, subject to fees covering the whole cost of such high schools.

I am not sufficiently acquainted with the new Land Act and its working to say what amendment is required, but I will be prepared to support any amendments having for their object to facilitate settlement, to equalise the rents charged to all classes of occupiers alike, and to raise the rents to a fair rate by assessment on stock or other means.

I am in favour of a Local Government Act, to be compulsory over the whole colony, but consider the scale of endowments in the proposed bill too high.

I will explain my reasons for and against the questions above stated at the various meetings I intend to hold throughout the electorate, and will answer any questions that may be asked on other measures likely to come up for settlement in the ensuing Parliament.

Having retired from active business, I have ample time to carry out the duties of a representative, and hope you may think I am possessed of sufficient intelligence to grasp the various questions that may arise, and sufficient honesty to vote for the general good, regardless of selfish ends.

Yours truly,
A. FORSYTH.

ELECTORS OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

At this critical time, as a duty to my native land, I offer myself for the first time as Parliamentary representative to the first constituency requiring my services. My political opinions having been from time to time ventilated for years through the press, I think I am sufficiently known. I advocate the following:—1. Patriotism. If electors expect members to be patriotic, they must show an example by electing representatives without putting them to expense. 2. Government education, secular, compulsory, and free. True religion subsists best without State aid. 3. Voting compulsory, as juries. As we all must obey laws, all qualified ought to be compelled to vote for their lawmakers. 4. Payment of members. With this the door of Parliament is open to the poorest enlightened candidate, and there will be less corruption. 5. Equitable fiscal protection, as briefly delineated by me in the S. M. Herald of 24th January and 5th February last, and many other times, by 10 per cent. ad valorem Customs duty on all imports and exports, and thus obtain adequate revenue from outsiders and tax absentees and Chinese. 6. Repeal of present tariff, and abolition of all direct taxation, such as stamp duty, license fees, and excise, which are all hindrances to our own trade. 7. Trades unions and 8-hours day work. Even members of Parliament should not be worked longer; but they ought to commence public business at 10 o'clock in the morning, when their heads are clear, minds fresh, and bodies not requiring stimulants. 8. Australian federation for defence, and intercolonial free trade under a uniform tariff. I am entirely opposed to Imperial federation, which is impracticable, as unpatriotic. No more Dalley Soudan folly. 9. Non-territorial greed for New Guinea has been the right unselfish policy of New South Wales. We are glad to have Germany as a neighbour. 10. Land Act amendment in the direction of leasehold instead of freehold, at nominal and same rent per acre for people of small means as well as the rich. 11. City railway extension as quickly as possible. The route adopted by Parliament I advocated in the S. M. Herald of 13th October, 1882, and before. 12. Nominal fares and ad valorem railway carriage at the same rate per mile on small and large quantities on every line. I consider in the past justice has not been done to farmers and men of small means, while the rich have had their goods carried at less rates. 13. Full endowment to municipalities, instead of partial, as now. Under equitable fiscal protection, municipal taxation is unnecessary and under Local Government endowment should be in proportion to population. 14. Full Local Option, or Republicanism, with compulsory voting by Parliamentary electors. Without, a small section would act unjustly; and while I think all vested interests, if honestly acquired, should not be destroyed without an equivalent, I am satisfied, as an hotel proprietor, to leave compensation in the hands of all the people. 15. Mining Reform and encouragement. I approve of Government loans for testing great depths, as in Queensland. 16. Public Health Bill. This is of primary importance; and intimately connected with it is, 17. Social Purity; and any legislation to adequately punish seducers, while carefully guarding the innocent of both sexes. I think if we obtain a majority of representatives with these views, Australia will be a good example to the world. If I am not wanted I shall be better satisfied if you will elect better than I am.

PROSPECTUS of the EVELEEN SILVER-MINING COMPANY, Limited, PORT DARWIN.

Capital, £200,000, in 200,000 Shares of £1 each.
100,000 issued as Paid up to 15s per share.
100,000 ditto ditto ditto 10s ditto.

Provisional Directors:
Hon. H. E. COHEN, M.L.A.
S. W. GRAY, Esq., M.L.A.
Dr. TARRANT, M.L.A.
JAMES HUNT, Esq.
JAMES ANGUS, Esq. (Topham, Angus, and Co.)
WM. MONIE, Esq. (Monie and Co.)

Solicitor:
ALFRED SHAW, Esq., Phillip-street, Sydney.

BANKERS:
ENGLISH, SCOTTISH, and AUSTRALIAN CHARTERED BANK, Sydney.

One-half of the capital of the Company issued as paid-up to fifteen (15s) shillings per share, and £20,000 cash go to the present proprietors as payment for the property, and £5000 to be placed to the credit of the mine.

The other half of the capital is offered for subscription paid up to ten (10s) shillings per share as follows:—Two shillings and sixpence per share on application, and 6d per share on allotment, after which all shares will rank alike in paying calls.

The area of this wonderful property is 160 acres, and it contains seven distinct and well defined silver bearing lodes. The main lode, as will be seen from the report, is outcropping 303 feet in length and is 18 feet wide, and 30 feet high in places. The whole of the lodes can be traced through the company's ground.

15,000 tons of ore from the lodes are ready for smelting operations, and it is estimated, judging from the reports and assays, and taking the silver value at 4s per ounce, that there is £156,000 worth of ore in sight.

The Bulk samples taken by Captain Dunstan himself prove that dividends can be obtained with a moderate expenditure in consequence of the enormous quantity of first-class ore which is available.

Dividends will be paid on all shares alike, and it may be noted that after the application and allotment fees are paid the shares all rank equal in the matter of calls.

The following are extracts from Captain Dunstan's report:—

Selection No. 80, 160 acres, is 880 yards square; in the centre of this block there is an outcrop of silver ore, comprising seven different lodes running parallel to each other, and the course of same being 20 degrees west of north. The principal lode is in the centre, and is cropping out above the surface 303 feet in length, 18 feet wide, and 30 feet high, in places composed of Carbonates of Lead, Galena, Gossan, Ironstone, Silica, and Carbonates of Lime. Nine feet of the eastern side of this lode, according to results of assays from three bulk samples I took from same, shows that their value for Lead and Silver are as follows:—No. 1—73 per cent. Lead, 100oz. Silver; No. 2—52 per cent. Lead, 79oz. Silver; No. 3—51 per cent. Lead, 54oz. Silver.

In conclusion, seeing that there are seven different lodes, and the samples taken from places marked No. 12 and No. 13 on plan, distant 250 yards north on the line of the lode from the main outcrop proves that payable ore exists on this part of your property, as also on the main outcrop, together with the 5000 tons of ore lying at surface, and also about 8000 tons ore to be broken off the outcrops above the surface line, I have no hesitation in saying that by placing the required furnaces and machinery on the mine for treating the ore, and by careful and economical management, this will prove a good dividend-paying mine, and will be both permanent and extensive.

Captain Dunstan's report can be seen in extenso in the S. M. Herald, Daily Telegraph, and Evening News of September 26, and at the office of the undersigned.

Plans and Sections can be seen and Prospectus obtained from the undersigned, to whom application for shares must be made on or before October 19, 1885.

IV.—FOREST RANGERS.

"If animals could only speak, what queer stories they could tell!" was the exclamation of the heroine of a recent novel of the most orthodox three-volume type; but the longest-lived animal in existence is a baby compared with the majority of trees. There are certain physiologists who hold that a tree is not so much an individual organism as a succession of organisms, and there are some who even believe that under proper conditions a tree is immortal. The longest lived animal in the world, if gifted with speech—which, heaven be praised, only happens in fairy books and tales of legendary lore—could only recount its experience of one or two generations, although, as in the case of Bucephalus, Alexander's favourite steed, that experience might be of a very extraordinary kind, whereas there is many a tree which, were its branches tongues, would be able to give us a very interesting sketch of the vicissitudes of its native land for considerably over a thousand years. In Lombardy there is a cypress tree which is said to have been planted in the year of our Saviour's birth. There is even an ancient record that it was growing in the time of Julius Cæsar. It is the same tree against which Francis I., the brilliant rival of Charles V., struck his sword in despair at losing the battle of Pavia, as well he might, and it was held in such high repute for its historical associations that when Napoleon commenced his celebrated engineering feat of spanning the Simplon, one of the Lepontine Alps, with a road made up of over six hundred bridges and tunnels, he left the track expressly to save it. But the largest, and by some thought to be the oldest, tree in the world is situated in Mascoli, near the foot of Mount Etna, which gained its singular title of the "chestnut tree of a hundred horses" from the report that Queen Jane of Aragon, with her principal nobility, took refuge under its branches during a violent storm. It is a veritable tree-monster, five enormous branches rising from one trunk, which is 212 feet in circumference. It is said that it still bears fruit, and a family of hereditary fruit collectors resides in a hut built in the interior of the trunk. Another mighty denizen of the forest is known as the "dead giant redwood tree" of Nevada. It measures 119 feet in circumference, and it is surrounded by 13 other giants, measuring from 72 feet to 96 feet in circumference. A road has been carried right through the stump, and a coach, sometimes crowded with passengers, passes daily through the very heart of the dead giant. But one of the most singular trees in existence is a wych-elm at Enys, in Cornwall. It was originally planted on the left side of the stream; but, having been laid prostrate, the trunk fell on the opposite side, where it took root, and, rising again, has acquired such dimensions that it covers an area of one-sixth of an acre. The main stump, which now forms a natural bridge across the stream, is 10 feet in circumference, and the three trunks which rise from the opposite bank are not far short of the same stature. A somewhat similar growth is to be met with near the Lakes of Allias, Switzerland, where there is a fir tree growing in the midst of a forest which it overtops more than 30 feet. The trunk is 30 feet in circumference at the base, while at about a yard from the ground it puts out on the south side seven offshoots, which have grown into trunks as strong as those of the other trees of the forest.

The age said to be attained by some trees is indeed simply marvellous. Near the little Mexican village of Palenque, for example, there are trees whose age is estimated at from 4000 to 6000 years, taking us in imagination right back to the time of the supposed creation of man. Nor is Palenque famous alone for the extraordinary longevity of its trees. It is doubly famous as possessing close at hand the most remarkable aboriginal remains of America. There may be seen the ruins of what must have been a magnificent metropolis in the palmiest period of the Aztec race. Scattered about the plain are vast pyramidal structures of cut stone, round whose massive sides the long procession of priests and victims used to wind, in the sight of the whole city, till it reached the summit where the dismal rites were performed before the sacrificial stone, and by the side of the altars on which burned the fire that was never allowed to go out. Remarkable civilisation, which could boast at the same time of the most dreadful religious code in the world, and of a refinement in art second only to that of Ancient Greece! But doubt as we may—and very probably do—the vague and unsatisfactory authority on which rests the longevity of the Mexican trees, we are, at any rate, bound to respect the verdict of Humboldt, who calls the Baobab, or monkey-tree, also known as "the tree of a thousand years," the "oldest organic monument on our planet." This was the tree which was named after Adanson, once the most enthusiastic naturalists whom France or the world ever produced, and who calculated that a certain specimen in Senegal, where he laboured with extraordinary ardour for several years, must have been 5150 years old in 1794. Celebrated, too, among trees, is the mammoth orange tree in the exquisite garden attached to the Alcazar—the most beautiful of the Moorish palaces of Spain—and which was probably one of those originally introduced into Europe from the East by the followers of Mahomet. Still more interesting is the magnificent avenue of over a thousand orange trees, all of them said to be centuries old, corresponding in number with the pillars of jasper and marble in the interior of the old Moorish mosque at Cordova, now used as a cathedral, but which will long remain to perpetuate the fame of the founder of the Western Caliphs and the oriental splendour of the Arabian race.

It is said that one-third of the whole surface of the land is covered with trees; but this is rather difficult to believe. It may very well have been the case before the growth of settlement; but trees, like savage races and wild flowers, disappear before the approach of the white man. In that doleful period of English history when the whole country was subjugated by a horde of Norman robbers, who divided the land amongst themselves and laid the seeds for those glaring inequalities which still unhappily exist, the kings took the forests under their special care and protection, and occasionally laid waste hundreds of square miles, and burned thousands of their miserable subjects out of house and home in order to provide parks for their favourite deer. No wonder that the common people ascribed the violent deaths of two of the Conqueror's sons in the New Forest to the judgment of Heaven for the misdeeds of the ruthless king. Among the sinecure offices, frequently held by the English nobility, is that of Forest Ranger, the duties of which formerly consisted in prosecuting trespassers, although, nowadays, the ranger is merely an officer of State. The office is sometimes hereditary, as in the case of the Dukes of Grafton, who trace their descent to Charles II. and the notorious Duchess of Cleveland, and who, among a host of other offices, obtained the hereditary rangership of Whittlebury Forest. They seem to have thoroughly taken to heart the bon mot of the Duke of Oxford, who wittily defined timber as an "excrescence on the face of the earth, placed there by Providence for the payment of debts," and to have acted accordingly, for in Pitt's time, when timber was sorely needed by the Admiralty, only 5000 oaks were found standing out of over 50,000 which had been reserved by the Crown as suitable for navy construction. The office of Forest Ranger is, however, by no means a sinecure in some countries; nor will it be in this colony in future—if, indeed, it ever has been—as the Minister for Mines has decided that all applicants for the post shall pass an examination previous to being appointed, and shall in the first instance be placed as junior or assistant rangers, with a view of testing their capacity for the work. The inspector, indeed, goes further, and makes the capital suggestion that before being entrusted with the charge of a district as rangers, the candidates stationed at the head office should be placed for a year in the state nursery, or in Messrs. Shepherd and Co.'s nursery, which is on a more extensive scale, and receive six months' training in the outdoor department, three months in the propagating department, and three months in the seed warehouse. Such a training as this would, he thinks, enable the candidates to become practically acquainted with the management of seeds, the natural growth of various modes of propagating forest trees, and would in fact result in the Government being able to send into the field a class of forest-rangers eminently fitted for their work, and superior in practical knowledge and training to those hitherto employed. He suggests, too, that they should be encouraged to study the works on botany and arboriculture to be found in the department, although why such an excellent system of education should be limited to those "stationed at the head office" is not quite clear, since all candidates should be stationed at the head office before being appointed to their posts. The idea of training forest rangers is of course no new one. The Germans have long recognised the value of a scientific training for work of this kind. They were, indeed, the first to establish academies for the purpose, in which all branches of knowledge relating to forests are taught, and at which regular experts are trained. The first to make instruction in all matters connected with forests a particular branch of study was Herr Zanthier, who founded an academy at Ilsenburg, near the Hartz mountains. Prussia soon directed her attention to the subject, and at present no one in that country is appointed to an office in the Forest Department without having undergone a strict examination in all branches of knowledge connected with forests, and having served personally in the forests for a considerable time.

So far as this colony is concerned, the number of rangers employed amounts to 31, with salaries of £200 apiece, excepting only the first ranger appointed to the post, who receives £50 extra. Then there are 11 assistant forest-rangers, with salaries of £150 apiece—with one exception, in which £175 is paid. There are two junior rangers, who are being trained to the work; two acting rangers and one temporary ranger, and there are four minor officers engaged at various sums. Above these is the Inspector of Forests—Mr. John Duff, late of the Botanic Gardens—with a salary of £350, the successor in December, 1883, of the late Henry Kendall, who died on the 1st of September previous, after nearly a year spent in the Lachlan pastoral district, employed in inspecting and reporting upon applications for permission to ringbark timber, but who, says the report, was "unfortunately unable to withstand the hardship attending constant travelling in a dry season." Travelling, indeed, appears to form no small item in the daily round of both inspector and rangers. During the past year, for example, no fewer than 177,935 miles were travelled by the rangers and their assistants, much of the work consisting in reporting on applications for permission to ringbark timber on Crown lands. In addition to their ordinary work the forest-rangers also appear to have done good service in making collections of tree seeds and eucalyptus specimens, with a view of assisting Baron von Mueller in describing the eucalypts of the colony in his valuable work entitled "Eucalyptographia," as also in procuring collections of named specimens of the trees in their respective districts for reference in the Forest Department, as well as for transmission to the recent exhibition held in Calcutta. One hundred and sixteen specimens in all were sent to the exhibition, duplicates of most of which—sawn, planed, polished, and labelled by Mr. John Taylor—are preserved on the ground floor of the Mines Department. There may be seen specimens of a score or more different species of eucalyptus, five of native oak, a dozen of acacia—including the myall, the silver-leaved boree, the golden-green wattle, the umbrella bush, and the native willow—besides four species of Tristania—including the beach or swamp mahogany, the water gum, and the white box—the teatree, the native cherry, the beefwood, and the kurrajong. The example set by the Conservator of Forests for South Australia (Mr. J. E. Brown, F.L.S.) is also about to be followed here, it having long been a pet scheme of Mr. Inspector Duff's to prepare a work on the forest flora of New South Wales, with lithographic drawings of the leaves, flower, fruit, and bark, together with botanical and local names, uses, habitats, and scientific and popular descriptions of each species selected for illustration. The suggestion has been approved by the Minister, and several forest rangers have been instructed to collect specimens of the most useful timber in their respective districts, for illustration and description in the new work. There are naturally a great many obstacles in the way of its rapid publication, and it is not expected that the first number will be issued for two or three months. All this goes to prove that the more highly educated a ranger may be in matters connected with forestry the greater assistance will he be able to render the department which he serves. Over and above the officers already named—the inspector, forest rangers, and their assistants, &c.—there are six clerks connected with the head office, of whom Mr. W. F. Piper is chief, with salaries ranging from £150 to £300. The total expenditure for the past year, under the head of salaries, amounted to £9521 13s. 11d. I may add that the present Forest Branch dates back only three years. Previous to that period the work connected with forest management was done under the supervision of the Occupation of Lands Branch, only 19 forest rangers being then employed. In March, 1882, a separate Forest Branch was formed, and the number of rangers was largely increased, the present complement, however, not being reached till the following year, when the Appropriation Act was passed, and the staff completely re-arranged.

"No country," says the Director of the Botanic Gardens, in his excellent little pamphlet on "The Woods of N.S.W.," has been "more favoured by nature, with a greater variety and abundance of trees yielding strong, beautiful, and durable timbers, than this colony. Over the greater part of its vast surface trees possessing these qualities abound in more or less quantities." It does seem, therefore, somewhat surprising at first sight that in 1883, the last year for which returns are published, we should have paid away as much as £45,337 for timber of all kinds, the bulk of the undressed timber coming from New Zealand, British Columbia, and the United States, and the bulk of the dressed article from Norway, Great Britain, and America. It is, however, some consolation to know that during the same period we received the still larger sum of £67,240, principally for undressed timber, from outside, the balance being, therefore, considerably in our favour. As this question of balance of trade is important, I will give the figures as obtained from the latest issue of the Statistical Register. The import for 1883, according to this authority, was as follows:—Dressed timber, 16,221,000 feet, value £16,221; undressed timber, 31,344,000 feet, value £15,672; or a total of 47,565,000 feet, of the value of £31,893. A duty of 2s. per 100 superficial feet was levied on the dressed timber, and of 1s. on the undressed timber, both rates having been imposed in 1871. The bulk of the undressed timber, viz., 10,495,194 feet at £66,116, came from New Zealand, British Columbia and the United States coming next, with a little over 8,000,000 feet apiece, for which the former obtained £46,945, and the latter £60,248. Victoria and Great Britain followed a long way behind, the sister colony sending us 1,593,534 feet, for which she obtained £12,458, and the mother country a quarter of a million feet less, for which she only obtained £9,544. Sweden received £6,065 for three-quarters of a million feet, and Queensland and South Australia £4,711 and £4,084 respectively for less than half a million feet apiece. The bulk of the dressed timber, on the other hand, came from Norway, which received £42,120 for about 4½ million feet, Great Britain and the United States coming next with £36,000 and £34,843 for a little over 3½ million and 2¾ million feet respectively. New Zealand was fourth on the list with £27,230, and British Columbia fifth with £23,068, the only two others worth mentioning being South Australia and Victoria, whose receipts amounted to £5647 and £5307 respectively. Shingles, palings, laths, and "all other," as the Statistical Register very comprehensively puts it, are admitted duty free, but the united value of the imports under three heads only amounted in 1883 to £13,444, or less than either of the two items previously named. Most of the shingles—£1270 out of a total of £1679—came from the United States. Most of the palings came from Tasmania and British Columbia, the former receiving £3069 and the latter £1626, or between them £4695, out of a total of £6108. British Columbia was also to the fore in the matter of laths, for which she received £3115, the United States netting £1174, or between them £4289, out of a total of £5416. For "all other" Victoria played a lone hand, and netted £241. The exports for the same year (1883) were as follows:—Dressed, 218,517 feet, value £1960; undressed, 8,611,237 feet, value £57,775; shingles, £240; palings, £69; posts and rails, £7105; doors, sashes, and shutters, £91. The export of laths appears to be very small, at any rate if the returns are to be trusted, the total sum received on this head since 1873 amounting only to £266, distributed over 1874, 1879, and 1880. Comparing the imports and exports for 1883—although it is not safe to generalise on the basis of a single year—I find that whereas we paid away the sum of £45,337 for timber of all kinds, we received £67,240. From an analysis of the returns given above, it appears further that whereas the total sum paid away was pretty evenly distributed between dressed, undressed, and "all other" timber, the bulk of the receipts—£57,775 out of £67,240—was for undressed timber, showing, so far at any rate as timber is concerned, our customers are believers in the old adage that beauty unadorned is adorned the most. The receipts for undressed timber in 1882—the only other year for which returns are given on this head in the register, amounted to £88,165 for 5,701,868 feet, the year previously quoted (1883) showing therefore a marked increase in this line. Full returns are given of the export of dressed timber for the decade ending 1883, which are interesting if only for their fluctuating character. They are as follows:—1874, 5,361,788 feet, £39,814; 1875, 6,871,900 feet, £48,656; 1876, 3,515,200 feet, £22,960; 1877, 3,102,029 feet, £25,664; 1878, 4,096,802 feet, £35,033; 1879, 4,880,437 feet, £32,002; 1880, 2,015,180 feet, £19,233; 1881, 4,125,896 feet, £23,569; 1882, 132,894 feet, £2,565. From this it appears that the biggest export was in 1875, when the top figure of £48,656 was reached for dressed timber, 1874 coming next with £39,314, and 1878, third highest, with £35,033. As there are several other points connected with the trade which I have not touched, I will leave them for another article.

MALOGA ABORIGINAL MISSION STATION.

We have received a copy of the 10th annual report of the Maloga Aboriginal Mission Station, compiled by the superintendent, Mr. D. Matthews. He writes:—"Since the last report went out the numbers have largely increased. Additions have come from various places, and here at Maloga are dwelling in peace and concord, and as one family, representatives of many tribes and languages in Queensland, Victoria, and New South Wales. In no case have we ever had occasion to seek the aid of the civil authorities to secure order and peace in our settlement. The natural merriment of the blacks, and their peculiar faculty for discerning the ludicrous, we sometimes employ as a means for removing ill-feeling. This method often succeeds when an ordinary course of reasoning fails; but scarcely in any instance have we found them to be proof against prayer. The present race of aborigines (at any rate, those of New South Wales and Victoria) are a degenerated people. Most of the power of endurance, hardihood, and nerve that dwelt in the last generation has dwindled out, and left in its place a miserable wreck. Drunkenness, and every other hideous vice, have wrought a change that is heartrending to contemplate, so that we, or any others who undertake to rescue and protect them, are confronted with diseases of an alarming character. Not a few of those who have been inmates of our institution have fallen victims to such maladies. Still we have cause for thankfulness to Almighty God that in many cases the constitution of our people has been strengthened under the blessing of God by the wholesome food provided at the mission, and the regular habits of life observed amongst us. The Aborigines' Protection Association of Sydney has subsidised us largely by generous contributions, which have strengthened our hands and relieved me of much care and responsibility. It is matter also for extreme thankfulness to God that the large debit balance of £350 13s. 10½d., due to me as treasurer of the mission last year, and the expenditure of which caused me some pecuniary embarrassment, has been entirely liquidated by special vote from the funds of the association. There remains a small debit of £37 2s. 3½d., which we doubt not will be speedily wiped out, leaving us with a perfectly even balance-sheet. It would be just as well to advance two or three of the many reasons why the girls should not just now leave the mission. In the first place, every girl and woman who has entered the mission has been victimised and degraded by white people, either in camps or while engaged in service, so that when they reach us they are the mothers of illegitimate offspring, or soon become such. The girls of tender age who come in this way are carefully guarded and trained by us, but we can sparcely expect that they will be proof against the seductive influences that surround the ordinary white domestic, but which in the most of cases is more trying to the aboriginal, as her colour is no protection, and she has no father or mother to appeal to in case of strong temptation. It is rare to find people who know how to treat the blacks. Too much petting will spoil them; while on the other hand, harshness and severity will make them vicious and cunning. As a rule, the best and kindest of our race signally fail in their efforts to train the blacks, so what may be expected from those whose temper and manners are neither sweet nor attractive? It must not be supposed by the foregoing remarks that we are averse to sending people out. Not so, for when they are fully fortified by training, education, and religion to grapple with the difficulties and temptations of the world, we will gladly send them forth to take part in the stern realities of life. While thanking the numerous friends who from time to time send us packages of clothes, books, and other necessaries for the comfort of the blacks, we would again direct those who are anxious to help us in this way, the best and most expeditious way of transmitting such parcels. The Railway Departments of New South Wales and Victoria have generously permitted parcels to be sent from any railway station, without charge, if thus addressed—'Mr. Daniel Matthews, Maloga Aboriginal Mission, near Echuca—per rail—carriage free.' If the parcels are booked in New South Wales, it would be advisable to add, via Albury and Melbourne. For the guidance of those who remit subscriptions and money contributions, we beg to state that the safest method is by draft on the Bank of New South Wales in Echuca, Victoria, or Moama, New South Wales, by cheque, by post-office order on Echuca or Moama, or by stamps of either colony. It is a lamentable fact that there are upwards of 8000 blacks and half-castes in the colony of New South Wales, outside of our mission stations, totally ignorant and worse than uncared for, for many of them are treated worse than brutes. It is well that the Christian churches of these colonies manifest a liberal spirit for the cause of missions to the heathen nations of the earth; but is it not equally a duty that they should care for the heathen that lie at their very doors, the blood of whose souls cries to God for vengeance?"

THE LAND ACT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I feel it my duty to say a little respecting the new Land Act. I believe this Act would be a very good one (as far as the western division is concerned) if only honestly worked, but I have very grave suspicions about the working of it, and I think the sooner that clause of the Act is amended the better, which permits the pastoral leaseholder to become the mortgagee of a homestead lease, or any number of them. This clause of the Act appears to open up a clear road for the corrupt practice of dummying. I know of many cases which appear, at the very least, highly suspicious, or in fact beyond doubt; for instance, persons have been in the employ of squatters for some two years, more or less, on wages at the rate of about £1 per week, others as managers of stations—these persons take up homestead leases on the squatters' run, in whose employ they have been, and still remain; and in other cases the persons taking up homestead leases are immediately employed by the squatter owning the run. This is not only done on one, but on many stations. I must also add that these squatters have shown great opposition to other applicants, opposing those who were successful at the ballot in getting homestead leases on their runs, and have requested the opposition (unsuccessful) applicants not to come on them, but to go on some of their neighbours. Now, what does this mean? If all the applicants were bona fide, what would it matter to the squatter who took up his resumed area?

There are, again, other squatters who have many persons in their employ for very many years, yet none of these persons have taken up homestead leases on their runs, or on any others; yet the resumed areas on these squatters' runs have all been taken up (without opposition) by persons well and generally known to be in no way connected with them. What an injustice to the honest pastoral leaseholder, if other squatters secure the whole of their resumed areas by dummying, which is a misdemeanour under the Act. It is to be hoped that the land board have power to make the strictest and fullest investigation into, at least, all suspicious cases. I am quite sure the members of our land board will do their duty without respect to persons. Of course there is nothing to prevent a person taking up a homestead lease on his employer's run, and still remain in his employ.

The squatters are not noted for their kindness to their enemies, i.e., the bona-fide selector or homestead leaseholder. Some of these facts can be ascertained at the Lands Office by the proper authority if desired, unless the applicants have made false declarations. Now, if we are to have a Land Act, let us have it; but why should the country be put to such expense just to carry out a mere farce or a sham Land Act? The old Acts gave plenty of scope for dummying, but the new one gives 15 times greater facilities for this corrupt practice. I trust that steps will be at once taken to prevent it as far as possible. If any of my remarks give offence, it will not be to the honest squatter or to the bona-fide homestead leaseholder.

A DUEL IN HUNGARY.—A duel took place near Buda Pesth recently between Count Zichy, the well-known pianist with one arm, and a Hungarian journalist, M. Charles Pulszky. The quarrel arose out of an incident connected with some French visitors at Pesth. At a reception in the salon of the Countess Forgach M. Massenet and M. Delibes were accompanied by M. Pulszky. Count Zichy introduced the two former into the Salon, leaving M. Pulszky standing in the antechamber. The next day a concert of Count Zichy took place in honour of the French guests; but in order to mark their sense of the treatment to which M. Pulszky had been subjected, they rose and purposely left the room just at the moment when Count Zichy was about to play. The duel was fought at Shmeck, the end of it being that Count Zichy was wounded in his one arm, while M. Pulszky received a cut in his right hand. Hereupon the combatants shook hands. The affair has made a painful impression in Pesth.

THE PHYLLOXERA VASTATRIX IN NEW SOUTH WALES.

(BY OUR SPECIAL COMMISSIONER.)

VII.

How to fight the phylloxera is the question which has now to be solved by the New South Wales authorities and the growers.

The experience of European and American countries should prove very useful and of great help to form an opinion; indeed, there is nothing else to go by or to justify any new or independent course of action, as up to this day no one in any part of Australia has consecrated much time to the study and observation of the phylloxera since it was first discovered in Geelong, or, so far as it has been done, according to late official reports, the results obtained up to this day have been that the means previously resorted to, besides proving very costly, have turned out, as everywhere else, absolutely useless, and even dangerous, as they have caused a sense of false security under which the insect has been allowed to live and multiply if not spread during some five years.

The New South Wales Government and the interested colonists have been put in possession of information of a trustworthy character, which should enable them to avoid committing mistakes made elsewhere.

An International Congress on Phylloxera was held in Bordeaux in 1879; at that congress this colony, conjointly with Victoria and South Australia, was represented by Professor Thiselton Dyer, of the Kew Botanic Garden, near London, and received from its delegate an exhaustive report, which is of value at present. In addition to which, the information embodied yearly in the reports of the British consuls to the Foreign Office as to what is being done by foreign countries on this subject should also serve as a guide.

The measures to be resorted to must be divided into legislative or administrative and into technical or cultural.

Special legislation is, indeed, unavoidable—or, at all events, has been deemed to be so in every country wherever the ravages of the insect were feared. Although vine culture in New South Wales is not at the present one of the leading industries of the colony, the day cannot be very distant when a large number of colonists will discover that it will prove a valuable and staple industry. The taste of the people themselves is being brought and prepared for light wine drinking by natural agencies, and it remains a matter of education for our present growers, whose experience must be profitable to the next generation, provided always that the phylloxera will not destroy colonial vineyards, and ruin the present and future prospects of that industry.

It does not follow that implicit confidence should be placed in legislation. A law was passed years ago against the oidium, yet it is now flourishing in every colonial vineyard. The phylloxera is not likely to take much more notice of any Act of Parliament, but the main results and immediate effects of a special legislation are to act upon the minds of the people, and to better bring under the notice of even the most ignorant or sceptic grower the necessity to give his attention to the subject and to work with other people for the benefit of the commonwealth.

Such special legislation should of course include an intercolonial convention, based on the same principles as those of the Berne International Convention of 1878, between the leading vine-growing countries of Europe, for the purpose of joining not only in money expenditure, but also in every other way or system to be adopted for checking the spreading of the insect from one country to another, so far as such is practicable, for there can be no doubt that political borders will be not more recognised than Acts of Parliament by the phylloxera, however identical may be the interests of neighbouring countries against its progress.

On the same principle an internal quarantining of districts within any particular country has appeared advisable, as an attempt at localising the danger, but in reality more for the sake of delaying its activity, and of impressing more strongly upon the minds of the interested parties the absolute and imperative necessity to be cautious and prudent, although no one can hesitate to recognise the great difficulty there is in strictly carrying out the measures which follow a proclamation of quarantine on such a subject, even in very populated countries, with a strong force of rural police, much more so, therefore, in a sparsely inhabited territory like this. The necessity, however, to send everything by railway to the various markets would help to prevent the circulation of prohibited plants, &c.; but one single package taken by cart, or in a small hand-basket from one district to another may prove more than enough to bring to nothing all the other numerous percautions taken against the free circulation of regular invoices in the open and daily course of business.

People of any quarantined district cannot see with favour the proclamation of such a measure, which must necessarily prove rather detrimental to their local industry for the benefit of others, whilst it also considerably delays at least the settlement of people for starting new plantations; all this without any certainty to secure the end in view, and even with every probability that such end will not be attained after all.

It may therefore be suggested as worthy of consideration whether the best way for the Government to deal with the matter may not be by encouraging the formation of local syndicates or associations of growers, for the purpose of assisting and contributing to the necessary expenses for which the invasion by the insect of a vineyard belonging to any member of the syndicate may render immediately necessary, the Government giving, as is done in France and elsewhere in Europe, a sum equal to that subscribed by the syndicates, besides providing men with the necessary knowledge for supervising and directing the works, and whose duty should also be to impart every information in their power, by lectures and other ways of teaching, so as to enable every grower to soon find out for himself whether his vines are attacked or not by the phylloxera, as well as to direct such treatment as may be found advisable upon his own property.

The Government, it is suggested, might also grant reductions on the cost of railway carriage, and on Customs duties, if any, for such chemicals as should be required, especially for the purpose of checking the phylloxera, by the people in the inland districts.

Finally, a station of viticulture should be established in one of the infected districts, especially for observing and watching the possible peculiarities of the insect under this climate, and thus possibly might be found out some yet undiscovered way to deal with it more efficaciously than is so far known. Whilst as a matter of course this establishment might also be made of use as a school of viticulture, where the most complete information, both theoretical and practical, could be given to numerous young and other colonists who, as the recent inquiry revealed, are endeavouring to grow vines without any previous knowledge, and thereby go to considerably more expense of time and money than the cultivation of the vine requires; such a school would most certainly assist in the useful development of the national wine-growing and wine-making industries of Australia, and must appear in direct opposition to the official recommendations actually made to destroy vineyards already established.

MR. DIBBS AND THE TOBACCO DUTIES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In your to-day's issue "Veritas" passes a high compliment upon Mr. Dibbs for introducing the present tobacco duties, and goes on to say that their imposition has been a great benefit, and done no injury to vested interests nor the growth of this important industry. As a visitor, I hope that you will allow me the opportunity of giving this statement a most emphatic contradiction, for, instead of being a benefit, the present duties have had the effect of crushing out the trade of cigar-making in New South Wales; for whereas there were 50 men employed previous to the introduction of the present system, with the probability of that number being doubled, there are now but very few able to gain a bare existence at the trade. As a positive proof of this statement, I may call your attention to an advertisement in your columns, calling a meeting of the trade for taking into consideration the injurious effects of the present tariff, and endeavouring to obtain some modification of the duties.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

Ballots were taken, and resulted in the following officers being elected:—President, Mr. Thomas Caddy, president of the Trades and Labour Council of New South Wales; vice-president, Mr. B. Wells, of the Trades and Labour Council of South Australia; treasurer, Mr. James Finch; secretary, Mr. Thomas Symons; standing-orders committee, Messrs. Walker, Curley, Carpenter, Bennett, Galloway, Bromley, and Ferguson.

INSTALLATION OF PRESIDENT.

Mr. THOMAS CADDY was then installed as president. He thanked the delegates for the high honour they had done him in electing him to the position of president. It would be his pleasant duty to further the objects the congress had in view, and he trusted that at the conclusion of his services it would be found that he had given satisfaction. He also announced his intention of delivering his inaugural address on the following morning.

TIME OF MEETING.

It was arranged that the Congress should meet at 9.30 a.m., adjourn at 12.30 p.m., reassemble at 2 p.m., and adjourn at 5 p.m., each day.

STANDING ORDERS.

A number of standing orders were discussed and adopted, including one providing that no one shall speak more than once on any question, or for more than 15 minutes, except the proposer of a motion, who shall be allowed 20 minutes, and 10 minutes for reply; and another, providing that delegates absent one whole sitting without leave shall be named by the president, unless a satisfactory apology be sent.

Mr. SYMONS read the report of the standing orders committee, in which it was recommended that all members of the Congress and others wishing to read papers be requested to intimate their intention to the standing orders committee not later than the termination of the forenoon sitting of the day previous to that on which they wish to read such paper, and that the papers be submitted to the standing orders committee before being read. They also stated that a protest had been lodged against a certain delegate, but as that delegate had produced his credentials they had no jurisdiction. The committee intended submitting a resolution for the consideration of the Congress in reference to persons who are not bona-fide members of the trade being elected as delegates at any future Congress.

REPORTS OF PARLIAMENTARY COMMITTEES.

Mr. SYMONS read the report of the Parliamentary committee of New South Wales, which was as follows:—"The Parliamentary committee was first appointed in August, 1884, meeting fortnightly till January of the present year, when by resolution of the council it was discharged on January 22, 1885. The business under consideration by this committee was of a local character, notably an inquiry into the death of a member of the Sydney United Labourers' Protective Society, in the Hospital for Insane, Gladesville. The vote for immigration purposes had also engaged the attention of the committee. The further consideration of this, and also the subject of the introduction of a bill into Parliament for the better inspection of land boilers, lapsed through the discharge of the committee. The present committee were then appointed. After its officers were chosen, it was thought advisable to make the committee, if possible, partake of a more representative character than simply a committee of the Trades and Labour Council. It was resolved to invite the attendance of members of trade organisations not affiliated with the council. Several societies responded, and sent representatives, who gave great assistance to the committee in the selection of subjects proposed to be submitted for the consideration of Congress. The committee being appointed by the Trades and Labour Council, its recommendations and decisions were accordingly reported to that body from time to time. The recommendation of the committee to hold an International Trades Union Congress on the days following the eight-hour celebration was approved and sanctioned. An application was made to the Mayor of Sydney for the use of the vestibule of the Town Hall for the purpose of holding the Congress, and deputations interviewed his Worship, who complied with the application.

The report was referred to the standing orders committee.

Mr. W. E. MURPHY (Melbourne) read the report of the Victorian Parliamentary committee, which seemed to have been prepared with great ability. The report dealt with a variety of topics, commencing with the constitution and functions of the committee, and touching upon the Factories and Workshops Amendment Bill, the Employers' Liability Bill, and the Act to Legalise Trades Unions. The report went on to state:—"The latest subject which the committee have had under review was 'Direct Representation in Parliament.' It was alone by this means that the wants of the labouring classes of England were made manifest to the Imperial Parliament, and ensured a proper digest of and expedition in the passage of labour bills through the House of Commons. It was through the introduction to Parliament of such men as Thomas Burt, Alexander MacDonald, Henry Broadhurst, E. L. Stanley, and Thomas Hughes, and by the aid of others, such as Sir T. Brassey, J. A. Mundella, Joseph Cowen, J. Stansfield, and J. Barren, who had special knowledge of the wants of the working classes, that the measures which we have spoken of were passed into law many years ago in England; and here, with all the privileges of the franchise and democratic institutions, we have to regret the almost total incapacity of the Legislature to deal with matters of immediate and vital importance to the prosperity of the manhood of the country. The committee, therefore, acting for Victoria, strongly recommend that similar action shall be taken immediately, for the purpose of returning to Parliament men selected from amongst the trade organisations, who shall be competent to intelligently discuss questions affecting our interests, and the future welfare of our class. Every class in power claims to be able and willing, and even maintains that it represents the unrepresented classes. The English aristocracy maintained that they cared for the interests of the middle class before 1832, still the Reform Bill passed. Both the middle class and the aristocracy claimed that nothing would be gained by enfranchising the working class in 1867, and both landowners and farmers now deny that the nation will gain by the recent enfranchisement of two million farm labourers in England. The hollowness of such claims is made sufficiently clear by asking—When did landowners elect manufacturers, merchants, or farm labourers to represent them; when did teetotalers appoint brewers and publicans, and when were lawyers unrepresented by their own class? The opinions, needs and rights of those who live by manual labour never can be as faithfully represented by other classes as by their own. Their opinions are only fully understood by constant, in fact daily association; their needs can only be learned by the fullest expressions of fellow-feeling, which workmen only exhibit to those known to be in much similar circumstances to their own, and their rights are never seen so clearly by any except by those who know both their opinions and needs. Class questions require class knowledge to state them, and class sympathies to fight for them. Land, commerce, and capital are all cared for in all legislative assemblies; but labour, the source of all wealth, is only fought for, as labour should be, outside that body, and yet laws are made by it, and taxation imposed, which may either ruin or raise those trades on whose existence scores of thousands of labouring families depend. For these reasons alone direct representation of labour is both just and necessary. The Tory and Liberal parties at home have hitherto succeeded in splitting up the working class so thoroughly that common action on their part has been delayed. Promises have been made by both parties, that whenever a working-class candidate could be returned he should be supported by them. But at election times the fear of returning a Tory for a Liberal borough, or a Liberal for a Tory one, has been so strongly pressed on working men's attention, that they have almost invariably given way, withdrawn their nominee, and supported their political party. On all sides the strongest evidence prevails that the end of this policy is at hand, and that farm labourers, artisans of all shades, miners, co-operators, and the great trades union bodies are uniting for working-class representatives. The approaching general election in the United Kingdom is therefore expected to register many special representatives of labour, and, what is equally important, to replace very many professed friends of labour by known ones. The House of Commons now contains two special representatives of the trades unions—one is Thomas Burt, a coal miner, who represents Morpeth, and is the general secretary of the Durham Miners' Association, which body contributes £500 a year towards his expenses and salary; and another is Henry Broadhurst, a working mason, who is the member for Stoke-on-Trent. Labour had also another working-class representative in Mr. M'Donald, the member for Stafford, who died but a very short time ago. Amongst other persons who are expected to be elected by the constituencies are—Lloyd Jones, a fustian-cutter by trade, and a most active trades' unionist and co-operative representative, and who has been selected for Chester-le-Street, in Durham; Joseph Arch, the well-known farm labourers' representative; George Howell, late general secretary of the Masons' Union, and member of the Parliamentary Committee; and Henry R. Slatter, secretary of the Typographical Society at Manchester. The kindred movement to our own, viz., co-operation, is growing, and that much more rapidly in men's minds than in its application either to distribution or production. The bootmakers of Melbourne have registered a society and obtained over 300 members, who hold amongst them nearly 1000 shares, and who have actually paid enough capital to enable business to be commenced; whilst at Ballarat a co-operative bootmakers' society has been established since May last, and is now doing a paying business. How and in what trades co-operation should be applied, is engaging the minds of very many of the trades associations; and should the two societies now established prove commercial successes, as we believe they will, their success will lead to the establishment of similar societies in many other trades, especially where the capital required is not large. A subject fraught with much executive importance to future congresses has been considered by the committee by the election of future Parliamentary committees. It must be borne in mind that on this question we cannot follow in the path of English precedent. In England there is but one Legislature to govern the British islands, and it has been often found to be impracticable to apply the legislation and regulations of trades organisations by which societies are there governed to colonies beyond the seas. In Australia we have several separate Legislatures, where different politics and different conditions renders different treatment a matter of necessity, and with that object in view the Parliamentary committee of Victoria recommend future executive bodies of this character should be elected by the principal trade organisations in each colony, the number of representatives to be decided by each preceding congress. It has, further, been considered desirable to provide for all questions of intercolonial importance by the appointment of a central body or executive, nominated and approved of by the several Parliamentary committees—of, say, one or two from each colony—and which may be called the Australasian Trades Federal Council; this body, however, to be subject only to the control of the congress next following the date of their appointment, and the members' expenses to be defrayed out of a common fund subscribed by the several colonies in equal proportions, and such Federal Council to open the congress next following. The duties during their term of office of this executive to be to express opinions, when appealed to, on all questions of intercolonial interest to the trades organisations of Australasia, as in their opinion has either been ratified by preceding congresses or on such subjects as they may deem of sufficient importance to recommend to the succeeding congress.

Mr. WRIGHT moved the adoption of the report.

The motion was supported by several members, including Mr. Trenwith (of Victoria), who urged the representatives of trade organisations in this colony to make an effort during the forthcoming general election to secure as their representatives in the Legislative Assembly men from their own ranks, who knew what their needs were. He hoped that the general election would be a marked period in the history of New South Wales, and that in the next Parliament there would be a number of representatives of trade organisations.

The resolution was agreed to.

The congress then adjourned until half-past 9 o'clock on Wednesday morning.

PROTECTION AND POLITICAL REFORM LEAGUE.

The Protection and Political Reform League met at the Temperance Hall last evening, the president (Mr. William Richardson) in the chair. There was a large number of members present. Five new members were elected. Correspondence was read from Lithgow, Armidale, and Glen Innes, to all of which the secretary, Mr. R. C. Luscombe, was requested to send replies. The circulars calling the conference for next Monday were approved. The business of the evening centred in the forthcoming elections. A unanimous vote was passed that Mr. R. C. Luscombe retains the confidence of the league, both in the past and at present, and that the league wished him every success in his candidature for Northumberland. The next business was the nomination of a member of the league for South Sydney, when the president, Mr. Wm. Richardson was, with one exception, voted as the league candidate for this constituency. Mr. G. Brown, the late hon. secretary of the Wealth and Industrial Exhibition, then stated that he intended offering himself as a candidate for East Sydney. The members of the league then passed a resolution that the league would support Mr. Brown. The discussion lasted so long that all other nominations were left over until the conference on Monday next.

"UNITED WE STAND, DIVIDED WE FALL."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—A certain body of our legislators who, owing to the necessity for being on the popular side in the coming elections, were enabled to gather to their side a majority, have in their wisdom carried the resolution to make the 5th instant a public holiday, notwithstanding the protest made by others who, in the interests of the commercial part of the public, find it inconvenient. Now there is a pernicious influence at the root of this movement.

We know that compulsion is freely used to gain their demands by the mechanics to whom this day truly and only belongs.

The old proverb—"Give an inch, and take an ell"—is being carried out here.

The recent celebrations of this day have gained the sympathy of most people for some years past, but this does not suit our friends, who now force their views by a moral pressure that only lack the chance in future and more favourable times to take more coercive steps.

It was a fact known freely in business circles that it would be impolitic, unwise, or unsafe to open business places on this day. That is, of course, from the "Boycot" standpoint of safety and danger. Therefore a large percentage of the closed shops will mean less of sympathy than of a morbid fear of consequences.

Why those who in taking a holiday for which they lose their daily wages, and can therefore claim a right through the loss being theirs, should dictate even in so mild a manner to those who pay by the week and pay wages for holidays as well as workdays, is a question that will bear examination and proof before its justice can be admitted.

It may very easily be seen that any claim by the mechanics to force this demonstration on the employers of other labour than their own is simply to create division—that is, to draw the line simply between the two classes as employers and employees. Now this would be a disastrous evil for all; as simply destroying a good understanding existing for the most part between the greater bulk of the community in their friendly relations together.

The employer who all the year round, in bad times as in good alike, keeps his staff going in full working order, when, as in the employment of mechanics, he would employ only for work required, has a greater demand on the sympathy of those he employs.

In many cases capital invested in large businesses would bring far better return at a low rate of interest, with freedom from worry and risk, and of course no employees at all, or at most a petty one at a clerkship of a few pounds weekly.

The interests of both employer and employee are so closely united that any undue balance of power is as unsafe for the one as the other.

The time-worn fable of the "Belly and the members" is likely to be worked out as a fact in our midst.

To come to the heading of my letter, this is a true saying if worked out in its entirety, "United we stand, divided we fall." Capital and labour will always stand united, but the fall will be a natural consequence of the separation, if such should come in the establishment of antagonism. It is a pity the wisdom of our rulers did not go a step further and proclaim and enforce this holiday on all, including, of course, locomotive drivers and porters, steamboat workers, business and cabmen, &c., &c. What have they done that they should not have their holiday? This, of course, would be impossible, but for all that, it helps to show that members of society are dependent on each other's interests, which ought to work harmoniously for the general good, and not for a party good only. I am, &c.,

THE FRIEND OF MAN.—Courts have leaned so far in favour of the assured in the interpretation of insurance contracts, that we are not surprised at the ingenuity of counsel in the case of The Trojan Mining Company v. The Fireman Insurance Company, decided by the Supreme Court of California, May, 1885, in claiming that because a watchdog was kept in the building insured, while the watchman slept in another building across the road, and distant about 100 feet, there was no breach of the condition of the policy which required the assured to employ a watchman to be in and upon the premises night and day while the same were idle. It also appears from the evidence that it was shown that the dog "had the whole range of the building on the inside, and was accustomed to bark loudly when any stranger approached the building." But this also failed to prevail with the Court, and for once at least an insurance company secured a victory; but it shows what a narrow escape it had from losing the case from the "bark of a dog."—American Law Record.

THE USE OF BARBED WIRE FOR RAILWAY FENCING.

With reference to the recent discussion in the Legislative Assembly concerning the use on the Government railways of barbed wire obtained from the Australian Barbed Wire Company, the following copies of documents have been handed to us as some which would have been read in the House by the Minister for Works, in explanation of the transactions with regard to this wire, if an opportunity for so doing had occurred:—

"Barbed Wire.

"There are questions to be asked in the House to-night with reference to the use of barbed wire for fencing on the railway, and to the wire ordered from the Australian Barbed Wire Company. Previous allusion has been made to the action of the Department in connection with this matter, and an impression seems to be on the minds of some persons that—

"1. The inducement to use barbed wire was influenced by the Australian Barbed Wire Company.

"2. That it has been used recklessly, good fences having been removed to make room for it.

"3. That there has been no test, no competition, that an extravagant price has been paid, and very large orders given.

"I wish the precis writer to look carefully through the papers and to state exactly what they disclose. The Minister will probably read the precis to the House to-night. Mr. Badham can deal with the subject under three heads, probably in chronological order will be best.

"1. The state of the fences between Granville and Campbelltown. I think the papers will show the ruinous state of these fences was brought under my attention both by the public and the officers in charge some time before the question of using barbed wire was proposed.

"2. The origin of the determination to use barbed wire, and the action taken.

"3. The competitive test adopted between the Australian barbed wire and the Buckthorne wire (the only two barbed wires known to be available at the time), and the result of the test, the saving effected by the use of barbed wire for fencing as compared with the cost of the ordinary fence, the limitation of the orders to the Australian Barbed Wire Company, and the action of the Department when it was known that other barbed wire was in the market

"Mr. Badham will have but little time to extract the particulars from the papers, but it is desirable that the whole facts of the case should be made clear in reply to the questions which have been asked, and which are to be replied to to-night. "CHAS. A. G.

"Barbed Wire Fencing.

"In the early part of 1882 the fencing of the line between Campbelltown and Granville had from age fallen into a condition of dilapidation, and the officers of the Permanent Way Department reported that cattle could not be kept off the line, and that renewal of the fencing was absolutely necessary.

"Tenders were therefore called for fencing the line from 16 miles to 21 miles, and the tender of Messrs. Brain and Dowse was accepted.

"In October of the same year a circular of the Dominion Barbed Wire Fencing Company, of Canada, was received by the Commissioner, and the barbed wire thereon described (the Lyman) struck the Commissioner as being admirably adapted for the fencing of our railways, and he minuted that if the barb in the wire did not reduce the number of wires, it would render the wires which were used more effective. Where would Mr. Cowdery use the wire?

"Mr. Cowdery replied on the Southern line, and the Commissioner instructed the storekeeper to order 5 tons of the wire.

"The storekeeper asked where it was to be obtained; was there a Sydney agency?

"The secretary replied that no agent was known, and that inquiries should be made in the city.

"The storekeeper, after making inquiries, reported that Lassetter and Co. held three tons of the wire, and asked £60 per ton for it, but the Commissioner determined to indent for it to Canada, as it could be had there for £42 a ton.

"While the indent was being prepared a letter was received from Mr. G. R. Dibbs bringing this wire under the attention of the Department, and stating that he was sole representative of the agents, and that the merits of the wire were so great in respect of efficiency, durability, and cheapness that, beginning with a manufacture of 5 tons in 1874, the company had in 1881 made 60,000 tons of it. The price was £37 per ton. It may be stated here, in relation to the charges which had been made, that Mr. Dibbs was not at this time a member of the Government, nor was he even in Parliament.

"The Commissioner informed Mr. Dibbs that if he would import 10 tons of the wire, it should be tried upon our railways.

"About this time Inspector Waring, of the Permanent Way Department, reported that the fencing between Granville and Campbelltown was so rotten and dilapidated that a cow or a horse pushing against it would suffice to throw it down, and that, if not renewed, something serious might happen.

"Not long after an anonymous 'traveller' addressed the Commissioner in strong terms about the ruinous condition of the same fences, stating that he often saw men driving cattle off the line, and that he would not be surprised at another 'Jolimont' accident.

"Thereupon Mr. Cowdery reported that Brain and Douse, to whom the fencing from 16 miles to 21 miles had been let, had failed to carry out the work, and the contract with their consent had been cancelled. Recommended that fresh tenders should be invited, and that the boundaries should be surveyed.

"The Commissioner issued instructions accordingly, and tenders were advertised for.

"About this time a letter was received from R. Johnson and Nephew, of Manchester, offering to supply barbed wire at £37 6s. 8d. per ton, and an officer of the Department recommended that for future orders this offer should be accepted, representing the price of the Lyman wire as £41 per ton; but this was a miscalculation. The price of the latter, as will easily be seen, was £37 per ton, 6s. 8d. less than that quoted by the Johnson firm.

"The condition of the fencing still continued to cause uneasiness, and in May, 1883, Inspector Waring again pointed out that cattle could not be kept off the line.

"In June the tenders above referred to for the fencing were submitted, but were not acted upon, the Commissioner minuting that the accountant had represented that the expenses of the permanent way had been very heavy, that it was not unlikely that the vote would not suffice and that we must try to make the existing fence do until the end of the year. Moreover, he (the Commissioner) was anxious to try the barbed wire.

"Instructions were accordingly given to keep the fence in the best possible state of temporary repair.

"At this time Mr. G. B. Woodly of Newbridge, and others were complaining that the fences in their localities were not sheep-proof, and that their sheep got on to the line.

"Mr. Avern reported that three extra wires were required. The cost would be £40, but the fence was hardly worth the outlay, inasmuch as with the repairs that were being done it would soon require renewal.

"The Commissioner was sure that the barbed wire would make the fences sheep-proof. Ten tons had been ordered, and he would not be satisfied until a good trial had been given to the invention.

"Mr. Cowdery was instructed accordingly.

"By letter of 24th August, 1883, the attention of the Minister was drawn by Carson Woods and Co. to the barbed wire made by the Australian Barbed Wire Company, and

"On the 3rd September the secretary of that company wrote to the railway storekeeper sending a sample of the wire, and offering to supply it at £36 per ton; if galvanised, £39.

"The storekeeper reported that the wire was superior to the imported wire, and cheaper than the 'Lyman.'

"The Commissioner minuted that the Minister was not convinced of the advantages of the barbed wire over ordinary wire, and, as it was twice as dear, would like further evidence of its worth before ordering a quantity. If three, or even four, barbed wires would make a fence sheep-proof it would be cheaper than the ordinary kind which required seven wires with a top wooden rail. Would like a trial to be made with the barbed wire which came from America at the places where we were asked to put in extra wires. If four barbed wires proved effective where seven ordinary wires and a toprail had been used the test would be conclusive. Mr. Cowdery to carry out at once.

"In February, 1884, Mr. Cowdery submitted a tender for the supply of fencing material required for repairs on the Granville and Campbelltown line. The Commissioner recommended it for acceptance, and the Minister approved, but before any action was taken,

"The secretary of the Australian Barbed Wire Company wrote to the Commissioner offering to erect five miles of double line fencing, to consist of five annealed barbed steel wires, with posts, at the price of £95 per mile.

"In reply to the Commissioner, Mr. Cowdery reported that ordinary fencing would cost £288 per mile.

"The Commissioner asked if there was any objection to the use of the barbed wire, and thought the prospect of getting our fencing done for £95 a mile instead of £288 was very tempting. And here it may be mentioned that the cost of re-fencing the line in the ordinary way would have been £11,000, while the cost of the barbed wire fence would be only £4000, showing a clear saving of over £7000 by the use of the latter.

"Mr. Cowdery saw no objection to the use of the barbed wire fencing the whole distance from Granville to Campbelltown, as he believed it would answer well, both as to economy of cost and durability.

"The Commissioner reported the facts to the Minister, and recommended a trial of three miles of the fencing.

"The Minister withheld his decision, and asked for further information.

"In the meantime Mr. J. Griffin waited on the Commissioner, and, as a result of his interview, wrote a letter to the Commissioner, offering to erect five miles or less of the Buckthorn wire fencing, at the price of £85 per mile. The Commissioner, with a view to test the relative merits of the two wires, recommended that three miles of fencing should be erected by Mr. Griffin with the Buckthorn wire and a similar length by the Australian Barbed Wire Company with the wire of their make. The Minister approved, and orders were issued accordingly.

"Samples of the two wires having been forwarded to Mr. Cowdery, that officer stated that he preferred the Buckthorn wire to that of the Australian Company, and recommended it for adoption.

"Commissioner minuted that the Minister had already sanctioned a competitive trial of the two wires by the erection of three miles of fencing on each of the two systems.

"Per letter of September 2, 1884, John Dunn and Company offered to supply barbed wire at the price of £35 a ton. They also brought under notice an instrument for barbing ordinary wire.

"Commissioner minuted that if the trial of the barbed wire proved a success, we should be prepared to continue such fencing, and that he thought well of the proposal to barb our ordinary wires in places where fences were not sheep-proof, and complaints had been made in consequence.

"The Minister, however, did not adopt this view. He remarked that squatters had thousands of miles of wire fencing, and had no difficulty in keeping their sheep in the paddocks without barbed wires, and he did not see why the Railways should be compelled to adopt a precaution which no one else used.

"Under date of 24th October, 1884, Carson Woods and Company wrote offering to undertake a further length of fencing at the same price.

"Mr. Cowdery reported favourably on the fence already erected by the Australian Barbed Wire Company, but was of opinion that a sixth wire would be an improvement, and intimated that the Company would undertake this for £100 a mile. Recommended that the Company should be asked to tender for 20 miles.

"Commissioner requested Mr. Cowdery to report on the other fence also. Mr. Cowdery accordingly reported that the Buckthorn fence had not proved a success, the wire, or ribbon, being of very inferior quality.

"Carson Woods and Co., per letter of 18th November, 1884, tendered to construct the fencing at the following rates:—5-wire, £95 per mile; 6-wire, £100 per mile.

"Mr. Cowdery recommended the construction of 20 miles of 6-wire fencing.

"Commissioner minuted that, after the Minister's former decision, it was perhaps futile to submit this to him; but as a saving would be effected, he would place the proposal before him.

"The Minister minuted that, as the Commissioner was so strongly impressed with the merits of this fencing in respect of cheapness and efficiency, he must approve of its being used, but it must only be used where fences absolutely required renewal.

"Commissioner minuted that our fencing cost £780 a mile, while a fence as good, if not better, could be had for £95, and that he had no hesitation in urging its adoption, but that it must only be used where the fences in their present shape were past repair.

"It will be noticed from the foregoing that when the Commissioner first entertained the idea of testing the adaptability of the barbed wire for our railway fences the material was not regularly in the market; the Australian Company, and the agent of the Buckthorn wire, alone being able to supply wire of that description.

"The material now, however, seems to have grown into an article of trade in the colony, and when in June last it had become necessary to renew a further section of the fencing, tenders were invited from persons able to erect the barbed wire fence, eight tenders were received, and the tender of Potts and Medcalf, as the lowest, was accepted by the Minister.—C. A. B. 2-10-'85."

A MAN SHOT BY A CONSTABLE.

The Western Grazier, of Wilcannia, states that a telegram was received there on Tuesday, to the effect that R. G. Graham, the Packsaddle swindler, had been shot near Thargomindah by Constable Bolster, of N.S.W. police, and that an inquiry had resulted in a verdict of justifiable homicide. Particulars are not yet to hand, but from information published last week there is no doubt the unfortunate fellow resisted capture and paid the penalty of his temerity. A later telegram to the Wilcannia Times says:—Constable Bolster, accompanied by Mr. E. V. Gayer, J.P., of Morden, a black tracker, and one or two others, came upon Graham behind a tree at Caiwarra station. He at once ran away, and refused to surrender when called upon. Constable Bolster rode alongside of him for 200 or 300 yards, calling upon him to surrender, when Graham drew a revolver, firing three times at the constable, but on each occasion, fortunately, the caps snapped. Bolster then fired, and shot Graham through the head.

The Western Grazier gave the following particulars of the swindle for which Graham was being arrested when shot:—"That the reported discovery of silver at the Packsaddle, about which so many rumours have been prevalent of late, was unfounded, has been pretty generally known for some days, and it has also transpired that a number of confiding speculators have been badly hit. In fact, there is little doubt that a gigantic swindle has been perpetrated, which would have been even greater but for the suspicions of some of the victims being aroused, and who took prompt steps to ascertain the truth of the so-called discoveries. A warrant was obtained for the arrest of Graham, the soi-disant discoverer, who somehow got wind of what was coming, and cleared out northwards, whither he was followed by the police. A telegram received from our Thargomindah correspondent on Saturday reports on the matter as follows:—Graham, alias Rutherford, alias Power, the Packsaddle silver swindler, while being arrested by the police here on the strength of a warrant by wire from Wilcannia, presented a revolver and told Constable Sprague to keep back, and took to his heels down the street and across the river. Sprague could not catch him, so came back for horse and went in pursuit, but returned again. Graham is supposed to have swindled the people in the neighbourhood of Packsaddle to the extent of £1700."

RESTRICTION ON IMPORTED STOCK.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In your issue of 24th September last appears a letter under the above heading, signed by "Agricola."

My experience in cattle breeding, which extends over a period from 1855 to the present time, entitles me I think to give my views as to the advisability of withdrawing the present restriction on importing stock. During the years I have been engaged in breeding stud cattle for sale, I have had ample opportunity of marking the improvement made in breeding, both from colonial and imported blood, and the result of my experience is that I found, and do still find, that I am unable to make that marked progress and improvement in the stock by the using of colonial-bred bulls, although bought at very high figures, that I did with English bulls for a number of years—I may say up to the time of the great drought which ended, or was at its worst, in 1878, and by which I lost nearly all my stud and breeding cattle. I could claim to have worked up the best "herd of shorthorn cattle" in the northern district of the colony, through the introduction of bulls imported from England, but this drought of 1878 having destroyed nearly my whole herd, I have not since been able to improve my cattle as I would wish by the introduction of colonial-bred blood, although, as I before said, after paying extreme prices for bulls.

I feel justified in supporting the views and arguments of "Agricola" as to the restriction being removed. I feel sure there is no person who desires more than I do to guard against the danger of introducing diseases; but I have no fear whatever of danger, provided there are strict quarantine regulations enforced. I would further refer you to a paper read about four or five years ago by Dr. Morris (who is a good authority), at a meeting of the Agricultural Society, in which he stated that there was not the slightest fear of any of the diseases then prevailing in England reaching the colony; and further, about two months or more ago, a report was made after a careful investigation which proved that there was not a single case of foot-and-mouth disease in England. With these facts before the Stock Department, I certainly think an inquiry should be made, and if no serious objection be raised, or proof be forthcoming, showing that the danger is great enough to warrant the restriction, the same should be removed. For my own part I would hail the opening of our ports with satisfaction, and would use my best endeavours to obtain imported English blood for my stud herd.

I am, &c., CHAS. BALDWIN.

THE CRICKET SEASON.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Now that the cricket season is again upon us I would like to suggest a method of shortening and enlivening the matches.

There can be no doubt that some such change is needed. As at present played, the matches usually last four days, or more, and the game gets duller to watch, as the batting gets more scientific, and the pitches get nearer perfection. On this point I will quote from the Melbourne Sportsman:—"The spectator requires to be an enthusiast who can sit for hours and patiently witness the careful unenterprising playing of maiden after maiden of balls, two-thirds of which could with equal safety be hit to the boundary."

Numerous remedies have been suggested. It has been proposed to lessen the distance between the wickets, to narrow the bat, allow throwing, widen the wickets, and a dozen other more or less ingenious devices.

Now these plans have all one and the same fault—they would not make the game any more lively to watch. They might shorten the games certainly; but, if it is a wearisome sight watching as I have done a man get four runs in two hours, what would it be if he had a wider wicket to defend, or less bat to do it with, or had some demon bowler brought within 18 or 20 yards of his devoted body? What is wanted is some plan to make the men play more freely, and put a stop to the "defence, not defiance" play, which is so disgusting to a spectator.

My plan is this:—If the bowlers can bowl, say five consecutive maiden overs, let them have a wicket; put the man out who has played the three maidens. This would not alter the other existing conditions of play. It would make the batsmen play more freely. It would encourage artistic bowling, instead of the "off theory" we have had so much of. The fieldsmen would work better when they knew that saving runs meant getting wickets.

The plan is quite fair. If two men cannot get one run out of 20 chances, it is time someone else had a try. Of course I only suggest five as the number of maidens necessary to entitle the bowlers to a wicket. That would be a mere matter of experiment. I would like to see the plan tried by one of our senior clubs. I am, &c.,

THE RABBIT CONFERENCE.

The conference of delegates from the Sheep Board to consider the rabbit question resumed its session yesterday at Denman-chambers, Phillip-street; Mr. R. G. Higgins, chairman of the Sydney Board, in the chair.

Mr. HERDEN wished to add a word or two with regard to a resolution recently moved by him, referring to making the railway fencing rabbit-proof. The object of the resolution was to prevent the pest from extending, it being invariably found that the rabbits followed the railway line as a sort of trail.

Mr. FEATHERSTONHAUGH moved,—"That this conference wishes to express its earnest appreciation of the able and strenuous manner in which the Hon. Minister for Mines has endeavoured to deal with the rabbit pest, of his thoughtfulness in calling together the conference, and that it is the very decided opinion of this conference that if in the reconstruction of the Ministry the present Minister for Mines shall accept a different portfolio, the Ministry shall be requested to urge him to retain charge of the administration of the Act." This motion was seconded by Mr. WOLSELEY, and unanimously carried.

Mr. CAMPBELL then moved,—"That it is advisable that the members of the Central Board of Advice be elected annually by groups of Sheep Boards, in districts thickly infested, lightly infested, and non-infested, as determined on by the Minister." The motion was duly seconded by Mr. PRODGER, and carried.

On the motion of Mr. FEATHERSTONHAUGH, seconded by Mr. PANTON, a resolution was passed calling the attention of the Minister to the fact that while rabbits exist in considerable numbers in portions of the colony not connected with the infested portion it is currently reported that very little is being done towards the destruction of these rabbits, especially in the county of Cumberland, and this conference suggested that immediate steps be taken to accomplish the destruction of the rabbit in those parts. It was also resolved to recommend the advisability in any future legislation of maintaining the principle of compulsory rating.

The conference further committed itself to the opinion, on the motion of Mr. GREENE, seconded by Mr. FEATHERSTONHAUGH, that in any future legislation on the rabbit question the Government be allowed to make use of any existing fence free of charge or compensation in erecting rabbit-proof fences. On the motion of the same delegate it was also resolved—first, to recommend the amendment of section 36 of the Rabbit Act, so as to make it apply to any person putting or carrying rabbits over or through a rabbit fence; secondly, that the directors for the several districts along the Murray be requested to form themselves into a vigilance committee, to prevent the introduction of rabbits from Victoria; and, thirdly, that placards be posted throughout the colony, but particularly along the Murray and the outer line of rabbit-proof fence, offering a reward of £10 for such information as would lead to the conviction of any person having live rabbits in his possession. The reward named in the last resolution was originally placed at £100, but on the motion of Mr. Wolseley it was reduced to £10, on the ground that the larger sum would be likely to induce collusion.

On the motion of Mr. WOLSELEY, seconded by Mr. GORDON, the conference expressed an opinion that for the more efficient working of the measure to be adopted for the suppression of the rabbit pest, all gates crossing main thoroughfares on the lines of rabbit-proof fences be proclaimed public gates within the meaning of the Public Gates Act, and that that Act be amended whereby the penalty be increased for infringing any of the clauses of such Act, and that suitable rewards be offered for information which might lead to the conviction of any offender against the Act.

The delegates next decided to avail themselves of the invitation of Mr. Lysaght to inspect his wire-netting works on the Parramatta River on the following day.

Mr. STUART HOLMES, son of the Hon. Matthew Holmes, owner of the Castle Rock Station, Sutherland, New Zealand, was introduced by the Chairman, and gave a very interesting and important account of the means whereby his father's run of 76,000 acres, which had been infested with rabbits, had been almost entirely cleared in a very short time. A few rabbits made their appearance in the southern part of New Zealand about 1873, and were at first regarded as good sport. Next year they had increased to hundreds, and in 1875 the run was infested with them. For the next three years they endeavoured to get rid of the rabbits by employing men with dogs, and kept from 100 to 120 men constantly at work. Their experience was that men and dogs were the most useless and most expensive means for killing rabbits yet devised. In 1876 the back boundary of the run was fenced with wire netting, and they commenced laying down phosphorised oats. As a result 400 and 500 dead rabbits were being picked up in a day, and very shortly after that they shipped home 300,000 rabbit skins, which realised 2s. 4d. per lb. in England—six skins to the pound, or 4d. to 6d. each—so that the cost of killing them was partially paid for by the sale. They were then using poisoned oats and men with dogs and traps and guns. Previous to the arrival of the rabbits the run had carried 50,000 sheep, the wool from which fetched 2s. 8½d. per lb.; but the rabbits reduced the number of sheep to 23,000, and at the same time put the owners to the expense of £5000 a year for exterminating the rabbits before the adoption of the poisoned method. The phosphorised oats proved such a success that the men with dogs were done away with, and they found that the pest could be kept down easily by using poisoned oats in winter, the bi-sulphate of carbon in the spring, men with guns being used in rocky places. They were now getting ferrets, and as soon as they had obtained 300 or 400 they proposed clearing the men off altogether, and leaving the ferrets to deal with the rabbits alone. Referring to wire fencing, he said his experience was that the expense of getting a wire fence was nothing in comparison with that of endeavouring to get rid of the pest without a wire fence. At Castle Rock they had imported the wire direct from England, and landed it for about 3d. a yard. The mesh was about 1½ inch, anything larger allowing the young ones to get through. The netting was sunk from 4 to 6 inches in the ground, and stood about 2 feet 3 inches above it. They had found it necessary to import everything from England, especially the bisulphate of carbon, a single ounce of which, obtained by him from an eminent London firm, had proved more valuable than 3oz. obtained in the colonies, the bisulphate obtained in the colonies being frequently valueless. The preparation of the phosphorised oats required great care. He and his brother had experimented for three months in Dunedin with Professor Black, Government chemist, and the method used on the Castle Rock run was as follows:—He first well boiled the oats in a cauldron holding about 120lb. He then placed 1½ lb of phosphorus in a bucket of water, stirring it carefully till it commenced to ignite, when it was thoroughly dissolved. The dissolved phosphorus was then very rapidly and very carefully transformed in a revolving barrel, in which the oats had been previously placed, and the door immediately closed. The barrel was then made to revolve, and the phosphorus allowed to soak in for about an hour, till the whole was thoroughly amalgamated. There was no danger from the phosphorus catching fire. The rabbits took this preparation in the winter time very greedily without any further addition; but in the spring, when there was plenty of young grass, they let the mixture stand for 24 hours, and then added sugar, and, perhaps, a little oil of aniseed. The poisoned oats were laid in the following manner:—The men were provided with little canvas bags, containing the poison, and small wooden spoons. Little heaps of the phosphorised oats, about a tablespoonful each, were laid in lines over the country. At the end of three or four days the men were send out to collect the dead rabbits. A great many died in the holes in addition to those which would be picked up.

Mr. MYRING, chief of the Rabbit Department, stated that phosphorised oats had been extensively tried in this colony with very different results.

Mr. HOLMES understood that many of the experiments in this colony had been conducted under the auspices of Captain Raymond, a gentleman who had formerly occupied a run adjoining Castle Rock, but who had not succeeded in exterminating his own rabbits, and could hardly, therefore, be expected to be able to exterminate other people's.

Mr. MYRING observed that Messrs. Cudmore Brothers, lessees of the Avoca run, near Wentworth, had laid down phosphorised oats in the manner described by Mr. Holmes, but the results had been remarkably poor.

Mr. DILL said he had tried phosphorised oats on his run for two years without any effect on the rabbits, although large numbers of birds and wild turkies died from eating the poison, which showed that the quality was good. He had taken very great pains in the preparation of the poison, and had carefully watched and followed out Captain Raymond's method. Hundreds of them had tried the phosphorised oats with similar ill-success. They had also phosphorised wheat with like results, and some had even poisoned carrots, but had never succeeded in destroying many rabbits.

Mr. HOLMES thought it was rather dangerous work poisoning roots, but he had rarely known sheep or horses to suffer from poisoned oats, and then only where the poison had been laid down too freely. The oats should be laid in tiny heaps, and not shovelled out with a pannikin. Referring to native cats, he said he had tried 40 or 50, but had found them no good, and had left off using them.

Mr. FEATHERSTONHAUGH suggested that the run in question might have been too heavily infested for oats to be of any use, but in thinly infested runs they would probably prove exceedingly useful.

Mr. HOLMES thought the physical features of a run had something to say in the matter. The soil on Castle Rock was splendid, with plenty of English grassed paddocks and hills ranging from 500 feet to 1000 feet high, with good northern aspect; in fact just as good sheep country as could be wished. There was a river 60 yards wide and 20 feet or 30 feet deep running past at the rate of about 10 miles an hour, and although he got almost no infection at all from the river, yet he had seen rabbits swim across, and knew many instances of rabbits fording streams when necessity compelled them. In Otago the rabbit boards had managed to clear the country, which had been very much infested and was frightfully difficult country to deal with, by means of wire fences, phosphorised oats, and ferrets. The result of his experience was that by the four means he had adopted—fencing, phosphorised oats, natural enemies, and bisulphate of carbon—a run could be cleared of the rabbit pest in a comparatively short time. But when all was said and done he had come to the conclusion that the ways of rabbits were perfectly inscrutable.

Mr. WATSON differed with Mr. Holmes as to the value of dogs, which he had found invaluable in his thickly infested district.

Mr. HOLMES admitted that dogs were necessary in certain cases, such as for running the rabbits into their holes when using bisulphate of carbon, but he found that to employ a large number of rabbitters with, say half-a-dozen dogs apiece, on a run was to create a nuisance almost worse than the rabbits, for a number of the dogs were allowed to go wild by the men, and they then proved as difficult to deal with, and more destructive, than the pest they were supposed to cure.

On Mr. Holmes resuming his seat a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to him by acclamation for the very valuable information he had placed before the conference.

The conference then adjourned for luncheon, after which the Chairman introduced Mr. J. A. Parker, the sole patentee for the colonies of a "thoroughly effective process for the destruction of rabbits and other noxious animals" by means of a poisonous gas. Mr. Parker alleged that by means of this gas he could destroy more rabbits for £50 than could be destroyed by any other method for £1000. All he asked was that the conference should give it a fair trial. It had never been tried yet, no one having been able to overcome the dangerous properties of the gas. This he claimed to have perfectly succeeded in doing, as by means of his method the only danger incurred would be by the rabbits, and these would die soon after inhaling it. He submitted a pamphlet containing full particulars of the process, as also reports by Professor Smith, of the Sydney University, and Dr. Leibius, of the Royal Mint, to whom Mr. Parker's petition for letters of administration had been referred, as follows:—"The first claim of Mr. Parker, viz., the use of arseniuretted hydrogen gas for killing rabbits and other noxious animals, if it stood by itself, could scarcely be allowed, since the highly poisonous properties of this gas are well known; yet when applied as proposed, and with the apparatus claimed under clauses 2 and 3, we are of opinion that the three claims as a whole may be granted, especially as their application for the extinction of rabbits would, if successful, be of great public benefit." As explained in the pamphlet, the process consists of "an apparatus by which arseniuretted hydrogen gas can be safely and easily used for destroying rabbits, which has never before been arranged so that anyone can use it without exposing themselves to danger. Each one of the apparatus, when set in motion, automatically generates a large or small stream of this deadly gas, as the operator desires, which forms itself into a trap fatal to life for one week or longer (according to quantity of material used), so that every rabbit entering a burrow, pit, or hole during that time, and inhaling the gas, must die. The cost of the apparatus and material to keep up a supply of this gas for one week, will not exceed eightpence; and when once charged the chemical process goes on until it has exhausted its generating power. It is possible to kill hundreds of rabbits for that small amount. In operating on a piece of badly infested country, I propose use 16 of these fatal traps for every 640 acres of country. The cost of apparatus and material will be only 10s. 8d., and such effective means of destruction sown thus broadcast cannot fail to exterminate within one week every rabbit upon that area. If on a particular run rabbit-infested one man is employed to each square mile, at a salary, say, of even £3 per week, he will fill up the small burrows, and operate only on the large warrens with his sixteen traps. Say that it may take him a week to place his traps, the cost of exterminating the rabbits off a square mile of country will be £3 10s. 8d.—a charge which will include apparatus, material, and labour."

After some discussion the conference unanimously resolved in favour of giving the process a trial.

A brief discussion took place with regard to the suggestion made by Dr. Creed to inoculate the rabbits with tuberculosis, the substance of which is sufficiently explained by the following motion, moved by Mr. FEATHERSTONHAUGH, seconded by Mr. WATSON, and adopted—"That this conference, while thanking the Minister for Mines for having Dr. Creed's valuable and interesting letter laid before it, does not consider itself in possession of sufficient data to warrant it in giving any definite expression of opinion on the matter."

Mr. MYRING was then asked to give the conference some information with regard to the working of the present bonus system. He stated that the Department had obtained far better results at much less expenditure under the bonus than under the wages system. Questioned as to whether the Department preferred a uniform rate of bonus to a differential rate, he observed that in thinly-infested country differential rates would doubtless give most satisfaction, as at the present time occupiers of thinly infested country received nothing like adequate compensation for their expenditure, but it must be borne in mind that the Department had to make the money at its disposal go as far as possible, and this they were doing by helping as well as they could, the occupiers of the most thickly-infested runs. By so doing, the department was indirectly but materially assisting the occupiers of lightly-infested country, whose runs would be preserved from infection, while these in their turn were also assisting the others. The question had been mooted as to whether it would not be advisable to allow holders to pay what rate of bonus they liked, and subsidise them on the rate paid, provided the rabbiters did not in the aggregate make more than a reasonable wage; but the funds at the disposal of the department precluded them from coming to such an arrangement. Referring to the work done by the Government camps, Mr. Myring said that the work consisted largely in cutting tracts through the mallee, at intervals of every two miles, so as to allow the rabbiters to use their traps. Bisulphate of carbon was also laid, and burrows were destroyed—a work which the rabbiters, who were not paid for it, could not of course be expected to do. No dogs were employed, as the Minister had found during his recent tour that in certain parts they proved a greater curse than the rabbits themselves. The department did not, however, forbid the use of dogs by runholders.

The delegates' opinions as to the merits of dogs differed considerably, judging from a discussion which followed. Mr. Fraser believed that dogs had done more to extend the pest throughout the colony, by chasing the rabbits, than anything else. Mr. Dill bore testimony to the great value in the Balranald district of dogs and traps, 160,000 rabbits having been obtained by this means over a large and heavily infested area.

On the motion of Mr. GREENE, resolutions were carried, recommending the occupiers, whose land was fenced by Government in accordance with a general scheme of rabbit-proof fencing, should contribute a reasonable sum towards the construction of such fencing; and that not only should private enterprise in the matter of rabbit-proof fencing be encouraged and assisted, but in the event of private fences of a suitable character being erected previous to fresh legislation, the owners of such fences should be put exactly in the same position as regards compensation as those who fenced under future legislation. It was also decided that the proceedings of the conference be printed as soon as possible, and six copies supplied to each member for the use of his board.

A few other resolutions of a technical character were passed, after which the meeting adjourned till the following day.

LOCAL OPTION.

A public meeting was held yesterday evening at the Temperance Hall, Balmain, for the purpose of establishing a branch of the Local Option League in that suburb. Mr. Alexander Gow presided, and there were also on the platform the Rev. E. D. Madgwick, the Rev. G. Grimm, M.A., Messrs. D. M'Alpin, W. Russell, Alexander Hutchinson, J. R. Sedgwick, and others. Apologies for absence were received from the Rev. A. G. Fry, Rev. Mr. Archball, the Rev. F. B. Boyce, and Rev. Mr. Sturdee. The audience was small, but they did not lack in enthusiasm, and the various speakers were warmly applauded.

The Rev. Mr. MADGWICK moved the chief resolution, viz.:—"That, in the opinion of this meeting, it is desirable to form a branch of the Local Option League in Balmain." The rev. speaker spoke for about an hour, and in the course of his remarks he reviewed somewhat in detail an address which was recently delivered in Sydney by Mr. G. H. Reid. He urged that those who were agitating in the cause of temperance had a large and a powerful press working in opposition to them; and that, as a matter of fact, nearly all the ablest newspaper writers in Sydney were against them; and that, in addition, most of the members of the Cabinet were just as much so, inasmuch as they had, in a most remarkable manner, omitted all mention of local option from their proposed Local Option Bill. He said, and said it advisedly, that they had had no legislators as yet in Balmain who had had the manliness to take up the subject, and to risk their stand or fall by their action. Mr. Reid, he contended, evidently understood the Licensing Act thoroughly, but he had endeavoured, in the course of what was undoubtedly an able and a clever speech, to tell but half the truth, and to distort facts in such a manner as to throw dust in the eyes of the public. Particularly had this been the case with respect to his quotations from the Primate's statements with regard to the League, in having only quoted one-half of Dr. Barry's remarks, and in having left unrepeated the other half, whereby a totally incorrect view of his meaning and standpoint had been conveyed.

Mr. D. M'ALPIN seconded the resolution.

Mr. ALEXANDER HUTCHINSON, who was present as a delegate from the Grand Lodge, supported the resolution. Mr. Hutchinson related the origin and the progress of movements in the cause of temperance during past generations, and he pointed out that during the last 400 years there had been passed no fewer than 400 licensing Acts of one sort or another, the whole of which had been framed for the ostensible purpose of regulating a traffic which was in reality never meant to be a source of profit to the State. The sale of liquor, he explained, had been, de facto, a traffic which was only tolerated for the accommodation of a certain section, and in view of the iniquitous extremes to which it had been carried, the time had long since arrived when the public should have a perfect right to record, by their votes, as to how it should be regulated. He quoted extensively from statistics, and urged that at the present political juncture some united and determined effort should be made on the part of professed total abstainers.

A branch of the League was formally established by those present, but owing to the lateness of the hour (about 10.45 p.m.) the appointment of a committee and of executive officers was postponed until a future date. A further public meeting was arranged for.

LAW REPORT.

INSOLVENCY COURT.—TUESDAY, OCTOBER 6.

(Before the CHIEF COMMISSIONER.)

CERTIFICATE MEETINGS.

It was ordered that, upon payment of court fees, charges and expenses, certificates of conformity should be issued to Robert M'Gowan, Patrick Mead, and John Robert Cattanach.

The applications of F. J. Polle, James Mather, and Andrew Laurie Reid were struck out, insolvents not appearing; and the applications in the several estates of William Wilson, John Murphy, John Thomas Gates, Joseph Frederick Dunn, Charles Hodson, William S. Muddle, Charles Page, and J. H. C. Morland were adjourned.

CERTIFICATE MEETINGS.

In the matter of Edward Russell Daunt. His Honor delivered the following judgment herein:—This estate was compulsorily sequestrated by order nisi dated 15th March, and by order absolute on the 29th March, 1883, and the act of insolvency was leaving, on the 4th November, 1882, his dwelling-house with intent to defeat his creditors. In fact the insolvent went away from the colony to Hongkong about that date; but he returned and attended his adjourned second meeting on the 8th June, 1883, and he filed his schedule on the 19th July. That schedule stated debts at £5672 2s. 11d., and estimated assets at £536 9s. 11d., leaving £5139 13s. as the amount of deficiency; but the plan of distribution, confirmed by order of the 13th December, 1883, shows assets realised £50 7s. 10d. only, which, after paying the petitioning creditor, costs, and the charges and expenses, gave to the creditors (who had proved to the extent of £1927 9s. 5d.) a dividend of 1d. and a fraction in the pound, and no more seems likely to fall in. When the application for a certificate was first called and the averment made in the affidavit of conformity filed 23rd March last that the insolvent had never taken the benefit of any Insolvent Act, I required explanation, and eventually by his affidavit, filed 12th May last, it appeared that he had been insolvent in Victoria, and twice in Queensland, and on the last thereof his certificate or discharge was refused by the Supreme Court of the last-named colony, as now appears by his subsequent deposition. Upon a resumption of the application for a certificate a proved creditor, Wren, had filed three specific objections, and evidence both oral and documentary was given thereon on several days, and I had the benefit of hearing Mr. Wise, counsel for the insolvent, and Mr. George Sly, for the creditor, and I reserved my decision. The oral evidence was decidedly contradictory, and some of the documentary evidence was equivocal; but it must be noted that the affidavit of conformity leaves the insolvent open to suspicion of being an inaccurate, if not untruthful, witness; and his trading here, as his supplementary schedule shows, was to the extent of £46,000 odd (on each side of the account) during seven months, he being an uncertificated insolvent from an adjoining colony. On the whole of the evidence, and having special regard to exhibit 3, of date 7th October, 1882, I consider that whatever may have been the inception of the dealings between the insolvent and the opposing creditor, a new contract (or novatio) was created by that document on that day, and that the subsequent conduct of the insolvent on the 10th October, 1882 (when the scrip should have been handed over), and by his absconding on the 4th November, 1882, before the 22nd November, 1882, the day to which the handing over was from the 10th and 18th October adjourned, are such as to be fatal to the application being granted. If the second objection be not absolutely proved, yet, as held in the cases of Bingham and Lloyd by the Supreme Court, his conduct under the third objection and on the first objection, and under the 17th section of the Act 7 Vic. No. 19, require that the certificate should be refused, which I accordingly do.

In the matter of Archibald Watt Davidson and James Forsyth Porter, ex parte James Forsyth Porter—His said he had read through the proceedings in this matter, and was of opinion that they did not amount to any specific offence which necessitated a refusal of the certificate. Still the conduct of insolvent was very far from satisfactory, and a suspension of his certificate was patently required on the first objection. He considered that the facts of the case would be sufficiently met by a suspension of four months from the date of the first application.

SECOND MEETING.

In the matter of Harry C. Hind. One debt was proved, and the meeting closed.

SURRENDERS.

Alexander Robinson, of North Willoughby, general storekeeper; liabilities, £257 5s 7d; assets, £348 3s. Mr. F. Macnab, official assignee.

Cuthbert Allison, of Wilcannia, brickmaker. Liabilities, £1381 7s. Assets, £1153. Mr. E. M. Stephen, official assignee.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT COURT.—TUESDAY.

(Before his Honor Judge DOWLING.)

WHITE V. JAMES.

In this case the plaintiff sued the defendant, a pawnbroker, carrying on business in Liverpool-street, Sydney, for £5 damages for the wrongful detention of a brooch. Mr. L. Levy appeared for the plaintiff, and Messrs. Bull and Bull for the defence. Verdict for £3.

M'EWAN V. CARNE.

To recover £8 5s. 6d. for work and labour done. Messrs. Gannon and M'Laughlin appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. T. M. Williamson for the defence. The sum of £3 1s. 3d. was paid into Court, and his Honor gave a verdict for £3 in addition.

MACNAMARRA V. THE BOROUGH OF LEICHHARDT.

To recover £25 damages for that the plaintiff being possessed of certain land in the borough of Leichhardt fronting to Reuss-street, and bounded at the back by a certain lane, the defendants, so carelessly negligently, and improperly executed certain works in and upon the lane, in connection with the levels, the gutters, and the drainage of it, and so improperly deposited material upon it, that the plaintiff's access to his lands at the rear was rendered difficult and dangerous. He also complained that his land had been injured, and had deteriorated in value in consequence of quantities of water being diverted upon it by the defendants. Mr. Heydon, instructed by Messrs. Slattery and Heydon, appeared for plaintiff; and Mr. Pigott for the defence. The defence was "never indebted," and that the plaintiff was not possessed as alleged. His Honor gave a verdict for 40s., saying that the plaintiff might have had a cause of action if he had pleaded that the defendants had constructed the lane so as to prevent the drainage of his land from flowing away.

METROPOLITAN QUARTER SESSIONS.

TUESDAY.

(Before Mr. District Court Judge MURRAY.)

The sittings of the Metropolitan Court of Quarter Sessions were continued yesterday at the Darlinghurst Courthouse, before his Honor Judge Murray. Mr. Healy prosecuted on behalf of the Crown.

JURORS FINED.

The following jurors were fined £2 for non-attendance:—Henry Oulton, Abercrombie-street; John Cain, Albion-street; James Richard Woodland, Taylor-street; Charles Cullen, Ashfield; and James Coleman, Bourke-street.

LARCENY.

James Robinson, a youth, pleaded not guilty to a charge of having stolen a coat, the property of Henry Hall. It was shown that the prisoner had gone on board of the steamer Prince of Wales, of which the prosecutor was the master; and, having abstracted the garment, he subsequently pawned it for 38s. His plea was that he had received it from a man whose name was unknown. The jury returned a verdict of guilty of receiving, and a sentence of five months' hard labour in Darlinghurst gaol was passed.

ALLEGED TAMPERING WITH LETTERS.

John Elias Wilkins, a boy who had been employed in connection with the postal service, was found not guilty of a charge of having stolen a letter. He was remanded in custody upon a second charge of a similar nature, in that he did at Ashfield, on August 5th, steal a letter which had been entrusted to him for delivery.

ALLEGED ROBBERY IN COMPANY.

Thomas Dobbey, who stood charged with having, in company with another, on July 25, assaulted and robbed one Robert Flew, was at his own request remanded until the next sessions, in order to admit of his procuring witnesses for the defence. Bail was allowed, and was forthcoming.

UNNATURAL OFFENCE.

John Smith, or Schmidt, was found guilty of having committed an abominable crime, and he was sentenced to five years' penal servitude, the sentence being the lowest which is provided for under the Act.

STEALING RAILWAY PROPERTY.

James Rose and William Green pleaded guilty to two charges of having stolen four bottles of brandy and two pairs of ladies' boots, the property of the Commissioner for Railways; and also to having stolen a Bible, the property of one James Kirby, on the night of the 2nd August. Mr. Levien appeared on behalf of Rose, and Mr. Slattery for Green. Both the prisoners had been employed as railway porters, and their downfall was shown to have arisen from their having broken open a case of brandy, with the contents of which they made themselves intoxicated, and then wandered about during the night in a condition of semi-stupidity from the effects of the liquor. Certificates of the highest character as to previous good conduct were put in, and it was shown that the prisoner Rose had recently been the means of securing the arrest of two bushrangers—Scanlan and Egan—who stuck up Mr. Cotton, of the railway contracting firm of Messrs. Topham, Angus, and Co., and stole from him more than £1000 in cash. His Honor characterised the case as an extremely pitiable one, but he pointed out that in the interests of the public and of the department, an offence of such a nature could not be passed over with a nominal punishment. A sentence of eighteen months hard labour on each charge was passed; the terms of imprisonment to be concurrent.

ACQUITTAL.

Patrick Saville and Susannah Saville were acquitted upon a charge of having, in company, assaulted and robbed a man at the Glebe. His Honor said that he concurred with the verdict; but he cautioned the accused to be more careful for the future in their dealings with strangers.

The following cases are set down for hearing to-day:—George Dowler, attempt to stab; Joseph Wright, assault with intent; John G. B. O'Grady, forgery; Robert Harley, larceny; John Graham, stealing from the person; Robert Spencer and another, burglary.

POLICE.

At the CENTRAL POLICE COURT yesterday, before Mr. Abbott, S.M., William Phillips was charged with having stolen several articles, including a cap, a silk handkerchief, and two shirts, the property of J. J. Ryan, draper, of George-street, Haymarket. The theft was committed during the fire which took place at the prosecutor's premises on Saturday night. The prisoner was sent to gaol for two months. John Kenny was sentenced to three months' imprisonment for stealing a purse containing 11s. 3d. from a little girl named Alice Hill, in George-street, and a sentence of 14 days was passed on Millicent Lewis for stealing money from the person of H. P. Heilbrown. Thomas Smithway, alias Fitzsimmons, was sent to gaol for two months for having stolen a till containing 8s. out of the shop of Edward Morris. A sentence of one month's imprisonment was passed on Elizabeth Mackenzie for having stolen an axe, valued at 3s. 6d. W. Rogers was sent to gaol for 6 months for stealing 104 yards of tweed, valued at £2 17s. 6d., the property of H. Summerfield and Co. Richard Johnson was charged with having stolen a doorkey, a silver watch, and two silver watch-cases, value £10, the property of Neils Rasch, and was sent to gaol for three months.

Mr. Addison, S.M., disposed of the business in the Charge Court at the WATER POLICE COURT yesterday, and Mr. Yates, D.S.M., dealt with a number of cases in the Summons Court. George Brown, 18, labourer, charged with having assaulted one Bat Passel, was sent to gaol for a month. Michael Sadlier, 21, carter, for having assaulted one Frank Thompson within view of a constable, was sent to gaol for three months, with hard labour. He was fined 40s., in default 14 days' imprisonment, for having behaved in a riotous manner in the pavilion at Chowder Bay. Alfred Walford, charged with having insufficient lawful means of support, was sent to gaol for a month. John Terry, dealer, for having played at the game of monte on the Agricultural Society's ground, was sent to gaol for a month. James Collins, 45, seaman, charged with having been absent from the s.s. John Elder without leave, was ordered to be imprisoned for 24 hours. John Riley, 25, similarly charged, was sent to gaol for seven days. Mary Dorey, a middle-aged woman, was charged with having stolen a bottle of brandy and two bottles of wine, a quantity of beer, and a brush, valued at about 15s., the property of Franklin Jackes. The evidence of the prosecutor, landlord of the Burlington Hotel, showed that the prisoner, whilst in his service as domestic servant, was detected in the act of carrying the articles in question out of the house in a small basket. After the evidence was taken the woman elected to be summarily dealt with, and pleaded guilty to the charge. Nothing was known against her character up to the time she committed the offence in question. She was ordered to be imprisoned for 14 days.

At the NEWTOWN POLICE COURT, on Tuesday, before Mr. G. O'Malley Clarke, S.M., Percy Layt, 8 years old, was charged with stealing a silver watch, value £5, the property of Thomas Irvine. When arrested the boy said that he found the watch at Marrickville; but subsequently he said that he would tell the truth, and that he got it in a new building on the Edgeware-road. Thomas Irvine, stonemason, stated he missed the watch from a new building at Enmore on Wednesday evening last: he next saw it in the hands of the police; he valued it at £5. Prisoner elected summary jurisdiction, and, having pleaded guilty, was ordered to be imprisoned till 6 p.m. Michael Farley, for assaulting Senior-constable Stonoix whilst in the execution of his duty, was sentenced to six weeks in gaol with hard labour; and for assaulting Constable Brown in the execution of his duty, was sentenced to six weeks in gaol with hard labour, the two sentences to be cumulative. Robert Whitfield v. John Robinson, for assault at Newtown. Complainant said that on the 1st instant he was waiting for a tram on the Newtown-road; defendant came up and said "This won't do for a Salvation man to be with young women;" he then shoved complainant and afterwards threw him down on the street. Complainant gave defendant no provocation, nor did he strike him or lay his hands upon him. For the defence, John Robinson deposed he was a clerk, and on the 1st instant he said in a joke that it didn't do for him (complainant) to be standing about with the ladies. Complainant then shoved him. He (defendant) challenged him to fight, when complainant said he would send him away. Complainant caused the marks on defendant's face. Defendant was fined 20s., and 5s. 10d., or 21 days.

At the ST. LEONARDS POLICE COURT, yesterday, before Mr. W. Johnson, S.M., Samuel Turner, for assaulting Alexander M'Lean, at Lane Cove, on September 30, was fined 20s. and costs, 4s. 10d., or 21 days' imprisonment. Robert Thomas (17) and John Sullivan (18) were charged with stealing one pair of trousers and one vest, valued at 13s. 9d., the property of William H. Stephenson, draper, Lane Cove-road. The prisoners, who elected to be summarily dealt with, pleaded guilty, and were each sentenced to 14 days' imprisonment, with hard labour.

At the PARRAMATTA POLICE COURT, yesterday, before Messrs. P. Müller and J. Whitworth, Js.P., Charles Ewallason was, at the instance of the inspector of nuisances, fined £5 and £1 8s. 4d. costs for allowing offensive matter to flow into a street gutter.

LICENSING COURT.

A Licensing Court was held yesterday at the Central Police Office, Mr. Macintosh, L.M., presiding. The following applications were granted:—Transfer, Annie Dunn to John Keely, Cross Keys Hotel, Lower Campbell-street; music, John R. Harris, Town Hall Hotel, Forest Lodge; liquor stand for Liedertafel, James Rainford, Cambridge Club Hotel, Oxford-street.

Green peas and French beans are preserved for winter use in France by the following course of treatment:—They must be mature, and fresh, and dry to begin with. If old they are not worth keeping; if very young they will not keep well, being too watery. Take a middle-sized stew-pan and nearly fill it with peas or beans, over which sprinkle very lightly pounded loaf sugar. To a quart of peas should be added two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Put the pan over a slow fire, and carefully stir two or three times. As they become heated, a little water will flow from them, which is the sign that they are heated enough. Turn them out on a soft cloth to drain, and when rendered as dry as possible remove them to sheets of paper spread out in an airy room. In doing this look for any that are bruised or discoloured, and remove them. When quite dry pack them in smallish earthern jars, and tie down and store in a cool dry place. If they are not quite dry mildew will soon appear and render them worthless. But if the work is well done they will be coated with a thin glaze of sugar, which is peculiarly preservative in its nature. French beans preserved in this way are of good colour and flavour when used in the winter, and will require only the ordinary process of cooking. Green peas fully grown, but still tender, may be preserved for soups by spreading them on trays or papers and drying them in a cool oven—say, not hotter than the hand can bear without inconvenience. They will be much shrivelled, but will be excellent for soups and ragouts.—Amateur Gardening.

CENTRAL CUMBERLAND ELECTORATE.

SIR HENRY PARKES AND MR. VARNEY PARKES AT PARRAMATTA.

Sir Henry Parkes and Mr. Varney Parkes addressed an open-air meeting of the electors last night, from the balcony of Flood's White Horse Hotel, Parramatta. There were about 500 people present.

Alderman W. J. FERRARS was voted to the chair, and introduced Mr. Varney Parkes, the first speaker.

Mr. PARKES said he had been very much flattered by being returned to Parliament against such a candidate as Mr. Bull. He had only had three sittings in Parliament, but he was wonderstruck, even in that short time, to see members of the Opposition first speaking against the Government, and then voting with them to keep them in power. He held that the Government were in a most peculiar position. It was his impression that they had broken the Constitution. No member of Parliament, and certainly no Minister of the Crown, should be a Government contractor. There was no doubt but that, as Mr. O'Mara had said, one of our Ministers had perpetrated a fraud on the Constitution, and accepted contracts for works without competition. When those and other similar charges were ventilated by the representatives of the people in Parliament, then the Ministry showed their fear, and endeavoured to create a new Government out of the materials of the old. He trusted that the constituencies would, in justice, pronounce conviction against them and against their supporters. The Minister for Works was one of the largest shareholders in a firm which was connected with the Government, and he knew for a certainty that where demurrage had been charged on the goods of farmers and wood-carters in Darling Harbour, the goods of Wright, Heaton, and Co. had gone without demurrage. The charges made against the Government by the Opposition were not sufficiently definite, and the Opposition should have upheld those charges more firmly. When this Government prorogued Parliament, and endeavoured out of the embers of the old to form a new Ministry they insulted the country. Instead of doing that, they had a right to go before the electors to explain their conduct and say truly and honourably that the charges which had been brought against them were false. How they could go and break the Constitution of this country as they had done he could not imagine. The truth was that they were afraid to meet the people, who, he said, ought to abolish the Government. It mattered not what Government came into office so long as they were conscientious, and legislated for the good of the country. He accused the Government of tampering with the public purse by expending money on works from which there could be no return for interest, and they had borrowed to an enormous extent; and not only that, but they had spoiled the credit of the colony. Financiers at home had seen what the Government had been spending money upon; they saw that the works upon which the money had been expended would not yield a return, and therefore had lost confidence in the colony. Nothing had done so much to damage the colony in the estimation of financiers as the withdrawal of the five-million loan; and there was no occasion for it. They might try to blame Sir Saul Samuel for the failure, but he contended that the blame rested upon the Colonial Treasurer. Any candidate coming before the electors must oppose the Government on all its principles, for it had not brought in one good Act that had been beneficial to the people, and which would not require amendment. The taxation of the colony at present amounted to £27 per head for every man, woman, and child; and that debt was, he contended, far too great. In borrowing money for these far inland distant lines which would not bring in a return the Government were in error. There were many works requiring attention in preference to the carrying out of the far inland lines. The extension of the railway into the city of Sydney was one of these works—(applause)—and should at once be taken in hand; but they had no right to construct the back lines unless they first constructed double lines to Goulburn and Bathurst. He also expressed himself as opposed to sending troops from the colony, maintaining that it was far the wiser plan for the colony to content itself with the pursuits of peace, and the building up of the community on a sound commercial basis. If the Contingent had been despatched to Afghanistan, in case of a war with Russia, the probability was that the colony would have lost 500 or 600 men, and been landed in an expenditure of one million of money. He promised that, if returned in the coming election, he should endeavour to represent them truly, and procure for them the privileges to which they were entitled. He would forward the Local Government Bill as being, in his opinion, one of the finest measures that Parliament would ever pass for the country. It would not only relieve a representative of the task of attending to many matters for his constituency, but would give him an opportunity of legislating for the country as he should, besides giving the people the advantage of spending the money they themselves had raised. If he were elected, it would be his duty to look well to the interests of the constituency of Central Cumberland, and do all he could to promote its fruit trade as one of the prime industries of the country, but one which at present was least fostered. He was sure that it was an industry which would in time yield a large revenue. He tabled a motion on the subject when he entered the Assembly recently, and if he were again returned he would give notice of that motion again. He also assured them that he would look after the interests of Central Cumberland generally, which had not received correct or proper attention at the hands of the Legislature of the country. (Hear, hear.) In conclusion, he thanked the electors for having so kindly given him a quiet hearing. (Applause.)

On the motion of Mr. A. J. LOVE, seconded by Mr. J. H. MARSHALL, it was unanimously declared that Mr. Varney Parkes was a fit and proper person to represent Central Cumberland in the Legislative Assembly.

Mr. PARKES having briefly returned thanks,

Sir HENRY PARKES came forward, and was received with loud cheers. He said that, though he was there tonight, not unnaturally, considering the relationship of their candidate to himself, yet he should not presume to address them unless he clearly understood that it was their wish that he should do so. (Yes, and cheers.) What he proposed to do was not to say one word in support of Mr. Varney Parkes. He must fight his own battle—(hear, hear)—and he had faith enough in him to believe that he was able to fight it. However, if they would permit him, he would say a few words to them on the present situation of affairs. (Hear, hear.) Of course, every man who took as active a part as he did in public life would be supposed to take a more or less one-sided view; but they could make allowances for that, and draw their own conclusions from what he said. (Hear, hear.) In the newspapers that morning there was an address from Sir Alexander Stuart. In that address he said that his Government had met with an unparalleled and unprecedented course of obstruction. (A voice: "So they have.") Well, he wanted to show that gentleman that they had not. (Hear, hear.) No Government that ever existed in this country—and he had seen all of them—ever had so fair a measure of support, or so much tolerance, as the Government of Sir Alexander Stuart. (Hear, hear; and a voice, "You are right, old man.") What he wanted to show was the present position of things, and what had been done in this short session. Our Parliament was elected for three years, and by the expiration of that time it would cease to exist at the end of December next. Now, they were told by no less an authority than Mr. Gladstone, who said that he spoke on the authority of preceding statesmen, that Parliament ought not to be suffered to exist until the period of its legal expiration. The House of Commons was elected for seven years, and Mr. Gladstone's contention was—and he said that all statesmen on both sides agreed with him—that in that seven years Parliament ought not to deal with more than six sessions of business. If that be so in England, surely, by a parity of reasoning, our Parliament ought now to be dissolved. The reason was this, that towards the end of the legal term of Parliament men's minds got so disturbed—each thinking of his own re-election or some individual interest—that members were not in a fit state to calmly and deliberately legislate on the affairs of the nation. (Hear, hear.) That stood to reason, and they were told on this high authority that it had been the rule invariably observed by all statesmen in England that Parliament should be dissolved six or eight months before the time of its expiration. If they thought so in England, surely here Parliament ought to be dissolved two or three months before its expiration. The late Government—for the Government was dead—convened this session of Parliament at so late a period that it was impossible to consider legislation. He would give them an illustration. Three years ago he was at the head of an Administration that called Parliament together, and in the opening speech the Government promised a Local Government Bill. Parliament at that time had 15 months to run, and Mr. Stuart (now Sir Alexander Stuart) moved a vote of censure on the Government for calling Parliament together at a time when it was impossible to consider the Local Government Bill, notwithstanding that there were 15 months in which to consider it; and yet he now asked them to consider a similar bill when there were only three months to consider it. (Hear, hear.) Now, there was an illustration. Was it possible if this Bill could not have been considered when they had 15 months of Parliament, that it could be considered when Parliament would die in December next? (Hear, hear.) Well, they called Parliament together at this late period, when they had really promised to call it together in May last. They broke a solemn promise to Parliament, and he and others said it was a mere farce to ask them to consider an important bill which they had not time to consider. That was a very different thing from obstruction. They did not want to put the Government out of office, but they wanted them to dissolve Parliament and appeal to the people. That was all they asked, and there was no reason why they should not take that course. Parliament was elected for three years, and it had already voted supplies for that period, and he asked everyone of those present to exercise his understanding and say whether the Assembly ought to lay its hands on the estimates that belonged to the new Parliament. They had voted estimates and supplies for the three years for which Parliament was elected, and he said unhesitatingly that it would have been a felonious act for this Parliament to have laid its hands on the estimates and supplies which belonged to another Parliament. That then showed them the real situation in which he and others who acted with him were placed, and they were perfectly justified in trying to force the Government to go to the country. (Hear, hear.) It was time they went on many accounts; and, even if the conduct of the Ministry had been most blameless, it was time in the course of nature that they went to the country for the reasons he gave them. Well, what had been the matters which had taken up the time of the House? One was a resolution declaring that it was improper for Mr. Wright (of the firm of Wright, Heaton, and Co.) to be the Minister placed over the railways of the country. That question had been very much confused by the Government advocates. They had tried to show that a merchant having transactions with the Custom-house was in exactly the same position as Mr. Wright. He would show them in two or three minutes that the two cases were not in any degree alike. They had had merchants in office. For instance, there was the late Robert Campbell—as noble a man as ever lived. He was a merchant, and occupied the position of Colonial Treasurer; and then there was the late Mr. Weekes, who was also a merchant, and had held office as Colonial Treasurer. Again there was Mr. James Watson, who was Colonial Treasurer in his Government. He was a merchant, and his firm, in passing entries for goods imported, paid duties which were laid down by the provisions of statutory law, and they could not be altered. (Hear, hear.) It was not in his power to alter the duties, even if he were base enough to tamper with the Collector of Customs, because the collector was carrying out a statute under which duties were levied, and he had no power to make them one penny more or less, or to remit them in any case. He hoped that he had made that case clear. What was the case of a Minister placed over the railways? The passenger time-table and the goods time-table were made by himself, and he had to determine what should be the rates for the carriage of goods. And he took this time-table, after he had adjusted it, and laid it before his fellow Ministers in Cabinet, and if they had confidence in him each Minister being too occupied with his own Department—they accepted his version and arguments as conclusive, unless, indeed, there was some feature in the case, possibly, which struck them, and it was generally assented to on his advice. It passed the Executive Council, and was stamped with legal power, by which the money was taken from the public for the conveyance of their goods, and so the Minister for Railways virtually made his own laws both for the passenger traffic and the carriage of goods, and the rates were not prescribed by statutory law, as in the case of duties levied through the Custom House. That being the state of affairs, what kind of a position was a man in who was the greatest carrier on the railways? (Hear, hear.) Wright, Heaton, and Co. were said to transact business on the railways to the extent of more than a quarter of a million per annum. Mr. Wright could make his own laws as to the charges upon goods that were carried, and not only so, but the goods could only be carried by the employment of Government trucks, and if there were only 30 trucks at a particular station—Junee, for example—he should like to know what chance small carriers would have if Wright, Heaton, and Co. wanted all the trucks for the carriage of their merchandise. (Hear, hear.) So they saw at one glance the enormous difference in his position and the position of a merchant in regard to the Custom House. (Hear, hear.) This gentleman had occupied the position of Minister for Railways for more than two years, while his great firm had been the principal customers to the railways, and he at the same time having authority to fix the charges. He was sure that everyone there who was unprejudiced would agree with him that a gentleman in such a position should not have been Minister for Railways. (Hear, hear.) A motion to that effect was the one which was defeated the other night, and members of the Assembly who voted against the motion knew in their hearts that Mr. Wright's position was wrong, just as he knew it was wrong. (A voice: "He will never get back again.") That was one motion, and one case, that occupied time. Would anybody say that it was not a proper subject to occupy time upon? ("No.") If there was any neglect on the part of the Assembly, the error was in not bringing the motion forward some months ago. It was actually charged against the member who brought it forward that, as he had been silent so long, he ought to be silent still. That was precisely the appeal a thief might make when one of his companions was objecting to the course of conduct he was taking. There was another thing which came to light very recently. Several members of the Government were shareholders in a company called the Standard Paint Company, and the Minister for Works declared in his place in Parliament that in future he would recommend that that paint be used on the Government works. Then, again, a number of Ministers were shareholders in a company for the manufacture of barbed wire, and they advocated it as a colonial industry. The consequence was that good wooden posts and rails, as sound as a rock, had been pulled up by the mile, and barbed wire put in their places, in the interests of these Ministers. (Hear, hear.) Was it not a scandal and a shame that they should have Ministers who, for the sake of some little commercial profit, formed themselves into a company, and pulled up the posts and rails along the railway lines to put down fences of barbed wire, simply because they manufactured it? Were not these questions well deserving the attention of Parliament and of the people? The very day that Parliament was so suddenly dissolved there were a number of awkward questions on the business paper. One was—How many tons of this wire were ordered, how much was paid for it, and how many miles were placed in a certain direction? There was another question also inquiring into this barbed wire mystery, and another as to the purchase of a site for a courthouse at Parramatta. There were several other questions on the paper, one by himself, in which he wanted to know—and he was not a frequent questioner—what amount the firm of Wright, Heaton, and Co. owed to the Railway Department on the 20th of the month, and what was the amount of the bond they gave for the payment of the sums due to the department? To explain the meaning of this question he must tell them that any carrying agent who employed the railways had to give a bond for the amount he was likely to be in debt to the Government at the end of the month. Supposing that the business of a carrying firm with the railways amounted to £1000, they would have to give a bond for the payment of that sum to the department within two or three days of the close of the month. He believed it was undoubtedly a fact that the bond given by Wright, Heaton, and Company was for £5000, and that it was also a fact that the amount they owed to the railways at the end of the month was not only double that—£10,000—but even £20,000, and often more, so that their bond did not cover a quarter of their indebtedness, while in the case of the small carriers it covered the whole. The latter had also to pay at the end of the month, while Wright, Heaton, and Co. did not pay until the end of the second month, so that very frequently £20,000 or £30,000 that ought to have been paid into the Treasury was in their hands to be played with. He put a question, asking if this was so or not. It could have been answered from the books of the Railway Department in five minutes, but the Government declined to give an answer. Was that nice? ("Voices: No.") Did it not look dark? He would not assert that what he had stated, and which was believed to be the case, was absolutely so, but why was not his question answered? He brought the question on again, but the Government swept it away by the prorogation. He was in favour of a dissolution of Parliament, and so were all his friends. He believed if those present gave a show of hands as to their opinion it would be also in favour of a dissolution. Notwithstanding all that the Government did in the first place, they did not know how to prorogue Parliament. They advised the Governor to issue a proclamation last Friday. Hitherto the proclamation had been forwarded to the Speaker some half-hour before the time for the House to meet, and it was posted on the door, or in some conspicuous place so that members would know what had happened. These gentlemen allowed the usual bell to be rung, allowed members to go into the Chamber, dangled the proclamation in their hands, looked at one another, and then went out again. It was a species of child's play. But this was not all. Sir Alexander Stuart having advised the representative of the Crown to exercise his high prerogative and prorogue Parliament, ran away the very next day, and up to this day Parliament had not been dissolved. The previous Parliament had been dissolved on his own advice. If they would refer to the Gazette of November, 1882, they would find that the proclamation proroguing Parliament was issued on the 22nd of November, and the proclamation to dissolve it on the 23rd, only one day intervening, and the writs for the new elections were also issued on the 23rd. In other words, he did what any other man in his place should have done, he let nothing interfere, after having decided to dissolve one Parliament, to call another together as quickly as possible. Now, however, nothing was being done towards the formation of the new Parliament, and, according to the newspapers, the member who prorogued the House having run away, the Government was trying to create a new Ministry. This was a course which had never taken place in all the history of England. When it was deemed expedient for the public welfare to prorogue Parliament with a view to dissolving it, no event should be allowed to intervene in making in good faith an appeal to the people. Whoever heard of a Premier trying to patch up his Government after prorogation? If a Premier in England did so he would sink for ever, and never hold up his head again. The Assembly was really the Parliament, for there could be no Parliament without it. The Assembly was virtually dead, but no step had been taken to call another into existence. During the interim the country had no Parliamentary Government at all. It was true that a number of persons had got possession of the public offices, just as a number of burglars get possession of a bank; but they were not there by Parliamentary authority, and whatever they did in the interim was done behind the back of Parliament, and in the spirit of pure oligarchy. Without saying anything about their conduct previously, their acts during the last month were sufficient to ruin any set of public men. They had been charged with delinquencies, and had refused to answer in their places; they had been proved to have held office in the most questionable way, as in the case of Mr. Wright. Now they had advised her Majesty's representative to exercise the high prerogative of proroguing Parliament; and, instead of accelerating the dissolution, were trying to save themselves by getting any person with a decent character to join them, and give them a new lease of life. He would ask them to look at the matter from another point of view. The Ministry which prorogued Parliament last Friday had gone to the winds, and if the House was to be dissolved it must be dissolved by another Ministry. They had not an idea last Friday that another was coming into existence. It was certainly not by the will of Parliament, certainly not in accordance with the great rules of Parliament which they derived from their fatherland, but it was coming into existence for the personal benefit of this rump of a Ministry when its head and shoulders had gone. If they admitted that the Land Act was as beneficial as it undoubtedly was disastrous; if they admitted that the Civil Service Act was as just as it undoubtedly was unjust; and if they admitted that the management of the public finances had led to prosperity instead of having led, as it undoubtedly had, to public indebtedness; admitting all that, still the record of the last month would be enough to sink any Government in the world pretending to be British, and pretending to have government by parliamentary institutions for its guide. His object in speaking to them was to state the real condition in which they stood before the country. They had to elect three members for Central Cumberland; let them elect whom they chose; he was not there to try to influence them in that respect, but let them be sure of this—that the work of the new Assembly would be of a more momentous character than that of any of its predecessors. In the first place the population of the colony was more numerous than it was when the last Assembly was elected. In the next place a number of industries had now so ripened that they demanded a different treatment to what they demanded before. In the third place the colony had spent so much money on the construction of railways into the country, penetrating it in all directions, that the expenditure had made the public lands more valuable than in years past. (Applause.) In the fourth place the colony's finances were admittedly deranged. When his Government retired from office they left in the public treasury a surplus of two and a quarter million sterling—(hear, hear)—over and above what was required to meet the public expenditure, but now, instead of a surplus the colony was in the condition in which the income did not amount to the same as the expenditure; and whenever the financial statement should be made they would find that what he was telling them was the simple truth; and if the colony spent more money than it received he need tell them where it would land them, and land them very shortly. It would land the country in such a state of things that any new Government would have to come to them for new taxes. (A voice: We have enough already.) (Applause.) They would not like that, but the money must be found. One word about the Land Act. Many of them knew Mr. Farnell. (Hear, hear.) He knew him very well and had a great personal regard for him. It was Mr. Farnell who had conducted this Land Act through the Assembly. Mr. Farnell represented New England, which typified as no other district in the colony did pastoral occupation and agricultural farming. There was no constituency in the colony which was more characteristic of these two industries than New England. (Applause.) Mr. Farnell was elected Minister for Lands two years and nine months ago, but he dare not go back to his electors, who had well-studied the character of the Land Act. (A voice: Why don't you go back?) He had no occasion to go back, but it was an undoubted fact that the Minister for Lands had so displeased all classes in the New England electorates that he could not go back to New England. He (Sir Henry Parkes) knew of no stronger evidence than this of the character of that piece of legislation. (A voice: He had better go to North Shore.) He was very much afraid Mr. Farnell would find it difficult to get any electorate to take him unless his friend there found one for him. (Laughter.) That he had a right to speak on the general position of things no one would deny. (Applause.) If he had no right to speak, no man had a right in this country to speak. (Cheers.) His name was identified with more Acts of Parliament than that of any other man, or half-dozen men in the country, for every municipality in the country had been established under his law. Every school had been established under his law. Every volunteer company had been established under his law. (Some slight interruption was caused at this stage by an individual in the crowd.) He believed there was a lunatic asylum in Parramatta. (Laughter.) If all the Acts of Parliament which he had been instrumental in passing were effaced from the Statute-book, he believed it would be almost a blank. If that did not give him a right to speak, he should like to know who had a right to speak. (Cheers.) They might rest assured that when he thought proper he would speak, and with as loud a voice as he could, until he saw the present state of things swept entirely away. (Hear, hear.) He thanked them very much for listening to him, and he knew that being Britons, and being actuated by the spirit of independence as men, they would do their duty in the coming contest—(applause)—and if they did their duty the state of things to which he had called attention would pass away and could not be repeated. (Prolonged applause.)

The Chairman then called for three cheers for the Queen, this terminating the proceedings.

IS THERE A GOVERNMENT?

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The latest action of the persons who hold possession of the offices of Government in this colony is the most revolutionary thing that has been done in my time. In many respects the late Stuart Ministry has reminded one of the soul-deadening reign of mock Cæsarism which was inflicted upon France by Louis Napoleon; and the Ministerial metempsychosis which is now reported is of the character of the crime of the 2nd December.

Her Majesty's representative has been advised to exercise the prerogative to prorogue Parliament, ostensibly with a view to its dissolution. Either here or in England there will be found no example where a new Government has come into existence between the act of prorogation and the supplementary act of dissolution; where one Minister has advised the beginning, and another Minister (not known to Parliament at that time) has advised the ending of this extreme exercise of the power of the Crown. On the 2nd October Parliament virtually ceased to exist, and instead of the necessary steps being taken to immediately bring into existence another Parliament, the conspirators in high places set to work to create an oligarchy behind the back of all Parliamentary authority.

Has the Queen's representative knowingly been a party to this unprecedented and revolutionary proceeding? He certainly cannot escape from direct responsibility in the exercise of the prerogative; and whether intended or not by his Excellency, the prerogative has been exercised, not in order that an appeal may be made to the people by his advisers (for they have disappeared from the scene), but to enable the rump of a discredited Ministry to repair their political fortunes by assuming a new form of existence before that appeal is made on other advice.

I have nothing to say here of the reception which this oligarchical junta ought to meet with at the hands of the people. My present duty is done in pointing out the improper advantage which has been taken of the prerogative of prorogation.

It was a right thing to dissolve Parliament, but my contention is that the dissolution should have followed immediately upon prorogation, with only the delay necessary for arranging the new elections, and that the Minister who advised the first stage should have completed the transaction; and that the formation of any so-called Ministry in this state of things is an unprecedented and a glaringly improper proceeding. Your obedient servant,

October 6. HENRY PARKES.

NATIVE FLOWERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I should have thought it strange that even one apologist could have been found for the destruction of what he admits to be two of our most prized native plants if I had not heard that your correspondent derives a large income from their sale. Self-interest is, unfortunately, very apt to warp the judgment if it does not produce even a worse result. It is a pity that Mr. Wilson has not informed us of the amount of his income derived from this source, and whether he gathers the waratah and lycopodium from Crown lands; and also, whether he has obtained the sanction of the ranger of the district for so doing.

If I am not mistaken, the Commissioner for Railways last year issued a regulation forbidding the sale of waratahs on the stations; but as it is evident that this regulation is either ignored or extensively evaded, it will probably become necessary for him, with the view of protecting private as well as public property, to impose a high charge on the carriage of these flowers, or to forbid their being carried at all.

The destructive effect of the treatment to which the waratah in its native state has been subjected is conclusively proved by its almost absolute disappearance from the neighbourhood of Sydney and Manly. Mr. Wilson's statement as to the effect of bush fires is partially true, but I have already stated facts which prove that constant gathering is exceedingly mischievous, if not ultimately fatal. However, even admitting that this practice does very little mischief, would it not be advisable to allow the flowers to stand unmolested in charming profusion, and in their dazzling native beauty, redeeming the sterility of their favourite haunts, and enhancing the attractions which already induce so large an influx of visitors from Sydney and elsewhere?

Though a near relation of the waratah is found in Victoria, and a more distant one in Tasmania, the true waratah (Telopea speciosissima) is found only in New South Wales, and there only in a comparatively small portion of the colony. It is not only one of the handsomest flowers in the world, but it is considered so peculiarly characteristic of the flora of this colony that it is invariably figured in every picture, medal, and sculpture where flowers can be introduced.

It is well known that when the lycopodium is gathered a considerable portion of the root is almost always torn up to the great injury of the plant, and this portion is usually cut off afterwards in making up the broom-like bunches which are offered so profusely for sale to travellers.

I do not doubt Mr. Wilson's statement that he has never mutilated waratahs, for his purpose can be served not by entire or partial preservation but by complete destruction only; but having been warmly thanked by respectable members of all classes of the community for my attempt to influence public opinion in favour of protecting wild flowers, and of discouraging the deplorable vandalism and destruction which have received so great an impetus from the institution of native flower shows, I can well afford to ignore Mr. Wilson's sneer at me for endeavouring by a most distasteful sacrifice to effect a very partial protection of my own property, especially as the animus which prompted the sneer and the object for which it was published, must, under the circumstances of the case, be quite intelligible to everyone who will bestow a moment's thought on the matter. A CASE OF SOMNAMBULISM.—A young man, a tourist, last night engaged a room at the Railway Hotel at Tramore, county Waterford, and retired to rest. About 3 o'clock this morning some persons saw a man undressed holding a lighted candle, open a window on the second floor of the hotel and deliberately lower himself from it, falling a depth of 14 or 15 feet. The fall apparently did not affect him, and with the candle still lighted in his hand, he walked into the town and knocked at a door. Here he returned to consciousness, and was provided with shoes, hat, and an old coat. He then went to the police barracks and asked for admission. The sergeant who had charge of the station at once took him to the day-room, where he was provided with clothing and refreshments, and soon returned to the hotel.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH BILL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In a former letter I pointed out some objections to the constitution of the proposed board of health. I will now with your permission place before the public defects in their proposed mode of procedure. The board is to be empowered to hold inquiries, administer oaths, issue summonses to compel witnesses to give evidence and produce documents, and to decide out of what rates their orders as to costs shall be paid. In England such inquiries are held locally by some person appointed by the Local Government Board, and all parties interested are invited to attend and give evidence; in this manner any scheme brought forward by any local authority is well sifted before it is sanctioned by the Local Government Board, and the whole cost is under £5. In rural districts the police magistrate is designated as the local authority—has he any power to make rates?—and if the Local Government Bill is passed there will be two authorities. There seems likely to be a conflict of authorities with these two measures which must be detrimental to any real efficiency in many points. Next, as to officers of health. The board may appoint a legally qualified medical practitioner for the district of each local authority, and in section 271 such an officer may be appointed for a united district. In England the appointments are made by the local authority with or without the approval of the Local Government Board. In the first case, for a united district the Government refunding half the salary; in other cases, where a local practitioner is paid a small sum by one local authority only, no refund is made. The united districts employing a medical officer of health, well paid and debarred from private practice, have worked well. When a local practitioner has been employed the Act has remained almost a dead letter. A medical officer of health who does his duty is bound to offend some one, and it is not likely that a local doctor, whose bread depends upon his neighbours, will bring up any subject that may be distasteful to them. This plan is being done away with as faulty, and it would be a great pity to inaugurate it here. The appointments are made by delegates from each authority, generally eight in number, and are for five years. It can never work harmoniously when a central authority appoints whilst the local authority has to pay the salary. For this reason, and also for the support which it gives to the health officer, it is desirable that half the salary should be paid by the Government. Regulations for health officers should have been issued by the central authority, and not embodied in the Act. There are too many reports required. The local authority will require an informal report monthly at its meetings, and an annual report, copy of which should be forwarded to the central authority; otherwise an officer's time, which might be better spent, is taken up in making 16 reports.

Section 13 should be enlarged, so that the registrars should supply quarterly returns of births and deaths to the health officer, and be entitled to a small sum for each entry to remunerate them for their extra trouble. An inspector of nuisances for each authority should be appointed, subject to the approval of the central authority, and half his salary refunded. This officer requires the support thus given quite as much as the health officer, otherwise he is at the mercy of any bigoted member of the local authority, and powerless in exposing evils. These appointments are renewed annually. It will be fatal if inspectors are appointed as proposed by section 16. Section 25 provides for appeals against bylaws of a local authority; these appeals should be made within one month of their promulgation; by the section as it now stands an appeal is made whenever the shoe pinches, and it will be open to every one against whom a bylaw is enforced to appeal to the central authority at any time. With regard to Part II., quarantine, I could point out that in section 28 the Board is to have power to impose fines or penalties not exceeding £20. In other sections there are fines and forfeits which may or may not be recoverable from the persons who are most likely to attempt to break away from quarantine. In two instances there are penalties of £200 and return to quarantine, and £200 or less and imprisonment with or without hard labour. The latter certainly looks like a double punishment for one offence. In Part III., the notices to be given in the case of infectious disease are too confused. In one clause they are to be given by the householder to the health officer, and perhaps to the secretary of the Board of Health; in the next section the medical attendant's certificate is to be forwarded by the householder to the local authority; section 52 gives the power of removal to the quarantine ground, nolens volens, with a heavy penalty; and at the end of section 54 there is power to impose such penalty, not exceeding £50, as to the said board appears expedient. Then, again, we should have a Board of Health able to impose fines at their discretion.

By section 56 whole families may be kept from school for six months or more on account of infectious disease. Now, in the case of smallpox any child might return to school after two months—and I consider two months ample in all cases.

Power should be taken to close schools, if thought necessary. This has been found very beneficial in England in certain cases, more especially where diphtheria is prevalent.

In Part XI., which deals with the adulteration of food, the framers of the bill appear to think that analysts are to be found at the corner of every street. First of all, a public analyst or analysts for New South Wales are to be appointed; then analysts for every local authority; and finally the Government analyst is mentioned as referee. Now, including the Government analyst, but excluding the University men, there are not above six analysts in New South Wales, and of these only two have any practical acquaintance with the Adulteration of Food and Drugs Act of England, and are members of the Society of Public Analysts. It is desirable to keep the Government analyst as referee, and to him no doubt the examination of teas would be confided; but all other work should be thrown open, and the public have the power of producing a second analysis in defence of any action. If, as in section 156, the defendant requires the analyst to be called as a witness, he should be compelled to tender a fee of £5 5s. with the subpœna.

It is ridiculous for the board with the advice of analysts to determine and publish processes for the various analyses required. As well might the Board of Health determine and publish the mode of treatment to be adopted by doctors in infectious disease.

Whether they think that they can manufacture analysts in this way I do not know; but let it be understood, you may publish processes, but unless you have got men who have gone through a long training in this particular branch of the profession, they cannot be relied on, nor have they the manipulative skill even necessary to carry out these processes accurately. In conclusion, I would urge that, unless this bill can be materially amended in committee, it would be desirable that it should be dropped, and a new bill at once brought in by a new Parliament.

LAW AND CONSCIENCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The following letter appeared in the London Standard, and, as it records a new departure in the right direction in the manner of treatment of clients by counsel, it deserves attention. In our courts heavy fees are paid by solicitors to counsel, and it frequently happens that counsel do not appear in the case at all, or, if so, merely for a short time, without knowing what has been going on meantime in their absence; but I do not hear of fees being returned by counsel in these cases. This suggests the question—should not counsel be brought under some obligation, if he receives a client's fee, to perform the duties for which he has been paid, or in case of non-performance of them be made responsible?

I am, &c., SUITOR.

"Sir,—The vexation occasioned to litigants, and the injury their interests are not infrequently exposed to when counsel whose services have been retained and liberally paid for fail in attendance, have often been the subject of discussion and complaint. The purely honorary character of the relationship between counsel and solicitors is neither appreciated nor voluntarily acquiesced in by clients, and the following recent incident may therefore be found interesting, as it indicates a new departure in the practice hitherto maintained, and, at the same time, raises a hope of the introduction of a higher ethical code than which has too long prevailed.

"In an action recently tried I had retained an eminent leading counsel. Brief and papers had been duly delivered, and consultation held, but he failed to attend upon the trial. My clients, not unnaturally, felt much aggrieved at not receiving the benefit of an advocacy they had expected and stipulated for, and it was at my suggestion determined to communicate with the learned counsel for a return of the fees which had been paid him. I accordingly wrote to this effect, and received the courteous reply that 'he would be happy to return the fees if he could find any precedent for doing so.' The whole matter was then referred to the Attorney-General, and it cannot fail to interest your readers and the legal profession to be made acquainted with his views and usage, which is 'to return so much of the brief fee as exceeds the amount which would have been proper if the brief had been simply a case for opinion.'

"Following this high example, the learned counsel promptly sent me a cheque for the difference, and I have much pleasure in giving merited publicity to a circumstance so unusual and praiseworthy.

"The adoption by the Bar of the example of their eminent leader, the learned Attorney-General, would be a welcome and healthy change in the unjustifiable conditions hitherto observed.

"No return of fees could, of course, compensate a litigant for the serious loss often sustained by the non-attendance of his counsel; but it would be some solatium in his misfortune to know, especially when the fees paid were high, that these were not wholly lost to him, and that their restoration might be relied upon.

"I am, &c., WILLIAM S. NORTON.

THE AMERICAN SUGAR INDUSTRY.—An annual statement, showing the importation and consumption of raw sugar in the United States for 1884, has been issued by the New York Shipping and Commercial List and Price Current. It appears that the receipts were 946,574 hogsheads, 9860 boxes and cases, 7,290,091 bags, mats, and baskets, making a total of 1,082,340 tons. This was an increase of 149,818 tons over the receipts of 1883. The maple sugar crop is estimated at 25,000 tons, and sugar from beetroots at 1,650,000lb. The survey of the sugar industry shows that there is no lack of sugar, but the ability of the markets to absorb what may become available is the all-important question. The estimated supply of the world for the coming crop year is as follows:—Cane sugar, 2,100,000 tons; beet sugar, 2,505,000 tons: a total of 4,605,000 tons.

At a meeting of shareholders of the Broken Hill South Silver-mining Company held at the Chamber of Commerce to-day, some preliminary business was transacted. The articles of association were submitted, and the meeting was then adjourned until next Tuesday.

A meeting of the Universal Land, Building, and Investment Company, Limited, was held this afternoon at the Exchange. Some business of an initiatory character was entered on, and the election of directors and other matters postponed until Thursday.

In the Import markets to-day's business did not open very briskly, after the holidays. The fourth of the month has passed over fairly well, the applications for renewals not having been excessive. Stocks of most descriptions of goods continue large, recent shipments having filled the stores; and what is now required is an active demand. The town trade is fairly good, but country storekeepers continue to purchase cautiously, in view of an uncertain season. Much more rain is wanted to give anything like assurance of a favourable year either for the pastoral or agricultural interests. In breadstuffs, business was quiet, buyers operating for little beyond the requirements of the day. Town brands of Adelaide flour, £9 15s. to £10; country, £8 15s. to £9; New South Wales and Victorian, £8 15s. to £9 10s. Wheat firm at 4s. 8d. for prime samples. In tea, the trade is not marked by much activity; the sales transpiring being of little importance. To-morrow (Wednesday) morning about 4500 packages new season's will be offered publicly at the City Mart. Foochow files by the Catterthun (s.) confirm the previous intelligence. Under date 7th September, Messrs. Russell and Co. report a steady demand from Australia for all first crop teas, which had resulted in the market being nearly cleared of such, at an advance of from 1 to 3 taels. The effects of the extreme prices paid for common congous during the latter part of July were becoming evident in that supplies of third crop congous were coming to hand more freely, and exceeded last year's at the same date. Very little of this class had been bought for Australia, prices asked by the native teamen being 10 per cent. above current offers. Export figures showed a considerable excess, and it was estimated that they might reach 20,000,000 lb. by the end of September. Foochow quotations were: Sifting and broken leaf, 4½ to 8 taels; short, low common, 8 to 8½; good common, 9 to 10½; flavoury, 11 to 15; medium, 16 to 19; good medium, 20 to 23; fine, 24 to 28½ taels. Shipments of scented teas to London having resulted badly, prices were rather lower. Settlements of orange pekoes were 14,020 boxes, at from 14 to 16 taels ordinary to fair medium, and 17 to 24 taels for good medium to fine. The settlements of congou had been 458,830 chests against 453,200 chests at the corresponding date of last year, and the stock was 72,670 chests against 62,800 chests. Of scented tea the settlements had been 69,810 boxes against 59,500 boxes in 1884-85, and the stock in hand was 5,690 boxes against 5500 boxes. The exports to Australia, exclusive of the shipment ex Catterthun (s.) amounted to 16,271,580 lbs. against 13,702,665 lbs. to the same date last year. Exchange had declined rapidly, closing—On London, six months' sight credits 3s. 6⅝d., four months' 3s. 6½d. The vessels expected to sail for all ports were the Tannadice (s.) and Suez (s.), and for Sydney and Melbourne only the Woosung. The rate of freight to Sydney and Melbourne 30s. per ton of 40 cubic feet; to Adelaide, 40s. per ton of 40 cubic feet. At auction this morning the demand for groceries was far from active. About 1100 packages of sugar were quitted at from £18 for yellow to £22 10s. for low white—prices about equivalent to those ruling last week. Privately we hear of sales of good white up to £26, but notwithstanding the firmer market in Melbourne it cannot be said that there is any change here, the company's tariff practically regulating the market. Business quoted in Thorne's chicory at 3d. in bond. Epps' cocoa done at 1s. 5¼d. In dried fruits, good old currants are quoted at 4½d. to 4¾d.; elemes, 6½d. to 6¾d. Good figs are unobtainable from first hands: new fruit expected at the end of the month. Bottled fruits are rather scarce, and command from 11s. 6d. to 12s. American canned fruits plentiful and cheap. Dairymaid condensed milk is not so freely inquired for, and 6s. 1½d. is the rate at which business is done. Coarse salt to land is selling at 65s., all descriptions of salt being overstocked. In fish, the trade continues exceedingly limited; we note business in Bull's Head ling to arrive at 6½d. The weakness of the candle market is shown by the fact that the highest price at auction obtainable to-day for paraffin candles—two-thirds plain and one-third fluted—was 7¼d., at which 25 to 50 box lots were disposed of. In pickles, several lots of Stephens' hexagon were done publicly at 4s. 10½d.; Overall's brought 5s. 6d. A parcel of cigars was quitted privately at equal to 45s. In brewers' goods, malt was rather firmer, but still, more than 7s. could not be quoted for ordinary samples of English. Tasmanian hops, 11d.; English, 1s. 6d. In liquors, a moderate trade only is mentioned. Glen Kinchie and Gaelic whisky were noticed at agents' list prices. In brandy we hear of fair sales of Sazerac and Biscuit Dubouche at current rates. Some business was done in medium quality of wine. The metal trade disclosed nothing of special importance; large stocks of most descriptions depress prices so low as to be cause of general complaint by importers.

Messrs. Fraser and Co. will offer at auction, to-morrow (Wednesday) morning, new season's teas, groceries, colonial sugars, other groceries, &c.

Messrs. Harris and Ackman will offer at auction, to-morrow (Wednesday), morning galvanised iron, &c.

Messrs. Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Limited, brought forward a small catalogue of the odd lots of scoured and greasy wool to-day, and cleared nearly every lot at prices which are considered to compare favourably with present London values. They also report having submitted a large catalogue of dry skins, which met with good competition, every line being disposed of at from 4d. to 4¾d. for best, 2½d. to 3½d. for medium, and 1d. for inferior. Green skins were in short supply, owing, no doubt, to the holiday yesterday, and a catalogue of 265 skins was sold up to 8s. 7½d. each.

The New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency Company, Bridge-street, have received the following London telegram, dated 5th October:—

"Wool.—The sales closed on the 5th instant at an average decline of about 7½ per cent. on last sales closing rates, except for long staple merino, crossbred medium quality, light in grease, and superior merino lambs in grease, for which the market is unchanged. The principal decline has been in medium and inferior greasy, medium and inferior clothing washed, medium and inferior combing washed and scoured. Wools of a faulty character are neglected. The American demand is good, also the Home demands. Competition on Belgian and German account is active. The sales comprise about 268,000 bales; 70,000 bales have been held over for future disposal. 8500 bales have been taken for America, 97,000 bales have been taken for the Continent."

At the leather sales to-day the market was dull: and there were no changes in value. Messrs. Hill, Clark, and Co.; F. L. Barker, John Bridge, and J. H. Geddes and Co., report sales at the following prices:—Sole, 8d. to 10d.; damaged, from 7d.; kip, 12d. to 15½d.; tweed, 17d. to 29d.; calf, 26d. to 30d.; harness, 11d. to 13½d.; bag, 7d. to 11d.; bridle, 6s. to 11s.; basils, 6s. to 11s. Marsupial skins were in good demand at the sales of the day, reported by Messrs. John Bridge and J. H. Geddes and Co.; best kangaroo selling at 58s.; medium, 15s. to 30s.; small, from 4s.; wallaby, 2s. to 6s.; opossum, in limited demand, with a bare market, up to 4s. was paid.

Messrs. R. Goldsbrough and Co., Limited, report having held a sale of sheepskins to-day, clearing a catalogue of dry skins at current prices. They quote butcher's green sheepskins up to 43½d.; pelts, 6d. Messrs. J. H. Geddes and Co., and Hill, Clark, and Co. report sales of green skins at market rates.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1885.

Sir Henry Parkes wants to know whether there is a Government. Perhaps the best advice to be offered him is that he should diligently and patiently examine each issue of the Government Gazette for a few days. By doing so he will probably soon obtain a decisive, though not perhaps to him a satisfactory answer. And besides that, he may, by attentive reading, learn to improve his style, which has lately shown a tendency to deteriorate. Making due allowance for the trying circumstances of the hour, and also for the influence of the associations that have surrounded him since his return to public life, it is to be observed with regret that his adjectives are becoming redundant, that his epithets are impolite, and that he seems to be in some danger of getting upon the track which leads to irreparable loss of both force and form.

In Sir Henry Parkes's opinion the "Ministerial metempsychosis," as he terms that change in the headship and composition of the Government which gives the country a new Ministry so closely identified with the last one as to keep alive responsibility for the past and to pledge continuity of policy for the future, is an "unprecedented and revolutionary proceeding." Upon this the first remark is that a proceeding may be unprecedented without being revolutionary. Absence of precedent does not necessarily imply absence of justification. On the other hand, revolutions are not always justified by the citation of precedent. In some men there is a tendency to rely upon precedent without having a clear perception of the principle that underlies it, and should govern its application; and anyone who has closely watched the sayings and doings of Sir Henry Parkes will easily recognise him amongst the number. There may be an absence of precedent for a particular act, and yet that act may be a means of giving effect to constitutional principle.

It is more important to inquire whether this proceeding is revolutionary than whether it is unprecedented. A revolutionary proceeding is one taken outside the law, and of such a character as to overturn it. What law is overturned in this instance? All the laws bearing upon the case are complied with. There was no law to prohibit the resignation of office by Sir A. Stuart and his colleagues, the acceptance of their resignations by the Governor, the appointment of a new Premier and a new Ministry, and it is in accordance with the law, rather than in violation of it, that the newly-appointed Ministers, although exercising the functions of a Government, should forthwith cease to be members of the Assembly and seek election as holders of office. If the change had been made in the middle of a session, the same procedure would have been followed. The significance of it is rather increased than diminished by the circumstance that the new Ministers go to the poll at the time of a general election. It is not nicely accurate to describe as a revolutionary proceeding a course of action which gives opportunity to the whole body of the electors to declare by constitutional methods approval or disapproval of what has been done. If it be said that the opportunity may be postponed, as dissolution did not follow prorogation immediately, what guarantee is there that it will follow with reasonable promptitude? There is the same guarantee—neither more nor less—that there would have been without a change of Ministry. The word "immediately" in either case has no such definite meaning as to fix the number of days or hours between a prorogation and a dissolution. But in both cases, after the dissolution is proclaimed, the law steps in and fixes the maximum of delay before the writs are issued, the date of their return, and the meeting of the new Parliament. Why were these provisions embodied in the law, when, according to precedent, the Ministry that obtained the prorogation was the Ministry holding office when the dissolution took place? The answer is, that this mere retention of office was not recognised as a guarantee against abuse.

Sir Henry Parkes says that his Excellency has exercised the prerogative "not in order that an appeal may be made to the people by his advisers, for they have disappeared from the scene," &c. Has his Excellency, then, no advisers? If some have disappeared, others are in their place, to advise a dissolution, or to accept the responsibility of the advice upon which the dissolution takes place. But, as to there not being an appeal, is Sir Henry the man to complain of that, when he has been demanding a dissolution as a coup-de-grace for a Parliament incapable of action and in the throes of death? Had Sir A. Stuart retained office the situation would have been the same in that respect. There would not have been an appeal in the common sense of the word. A Ministry does not appeal to the country against a majority that supports it against all attacks, and treats contemptuously the efforts of a minority to discredit it. But, whether the dissolution be an appeal or no, the fortunes of those members of the late Ministry who remain in the new one, and give character to it, can only be repaired or improved by the consent and action of the constituencies. The constituencies lose nothing in power or opportunity by the proceedings of which Sir Henry complains. Should they approve of the new Ministry, even though it is called an "oligarchical junta," the effect of those proceedings will be to save the loss of time which would have been involved in Ministerial elections had the reconstruction been delayed until after the writs were returned; and time, this year, is short.

It is cheering to be told, as we were the day before yesterday, that if the first plank in the platform of the English Conservatives is the improvement of existing institutions, the second is the improvement of the relations between the colonies and the mother country. The relations between the mother country and the colonies may not be greatly strained at present, but on both sides there is room for improvement. The colonies expect more than they get from the Imperial Government, and the Imperial Government is not altogether satisfied with the colonies. The Government of Mr. GLADSTONE troubled itself very little about the colonies. It is not too much to say that the events of the last four years have somewhat weakened the attachment of some of these colonies to Great Britain, and that there is a very general opinion to the effect that for some of those events the Imperial Government was directly responsible. The late SECRETARY OF STATE FOR THE COLONIES did more than neglect this section of her MAJESTY'S dependencies, he distinctly broke faith with them. He refused to do what they unanimously desired, and then did what they earnestly deplored. If the new SECRETARY OF STATE is bent on inaugurating a new regime, he has a fine field before him, and an excellent opportunity. There is the question of colonial defences; it is high time that this was grappled with. Where is the action of the colonies to begin, and where is that of the Imperial Government to stop? This is a matter upon which no understanding has been arrived at, or even seriously sought. Nor is this the only business that awaits settlement. There is the question of what is to be done with the islands of the Pacific, which certainly ought not to be much longer delayed. There is also that of the medium of communication between the colonies and the mother country, of which we have been hearing so much lately. Is the Agent-General system to be continued, and if so are there to be new conditions, or are the old ones to remain? Again, there is the question of Imperial Federation, to which so many prominent English statesmen have been giving their attention. Are we to understand that the new Conservative Government intends to give its patronage to this or some other project for the consolidation of the Empire? So much might be gathered from the somewhat remarkable statement that the new Government is to have two planks, and that the strengthening of the relations between the colonies and the mother country is to be one of them.

We confess, however, to a doubt as to whether the assurances of the FIRST LORD OF THE ADMIRALTY meant more than assurances made in similar circumstances often mean in this colony. For some years past the English Conservatives have been in the habit of posing as the friends of the colonies, and now that they have succeeded to power they are naturally anxious to continue to do so. The complaint against the Liberals was that they cared too little for the Empire, and the complaint was sometimes well grounded. The Liberals too frequently allowed things to drift. But so far what else have the Conservatives done? Lord SALISBURY has now been in power four months, and what action has been taken, or what evidence is there that any is to be taken? We fail to see either the one or the other. The truth is that, little as the Liberals care for the colonies, nearly all that has been done for them has been done by Liberal Governments; and one reason why the Liberals have interfered so little with the colonies is that they have made the colonies able to take care of themselves. In regard to the colonies the Liberal regime was certainly bad enough; but, thus far at least, the Conservative regime does not promise to be a better one.

We do not forget that it was on their beer duty especially that the Liberals were defeated, that the contention of the Conservatives was that if a higher duty was placed on beer a higher duty should be placed on wine, or that the placing of a higher duty on wine would have laid an embargo on an important colonial export. The fact was pointed out to the Conservative leaders, but they did not regard it as one of any moment. At that time the beer of the English working-man was of much greater consequence than the wine of the colonies. In the islands of the Pacific Lord DERBY did something. He did not secure the whole of New Guinea, but he secured a part of it. The portion of the island that he saved is much too small, but it is better than nothing. But what island or what group of islands does Colonel STANLEY intend to save? We are told that the Pacific question is one of the utmost importance, but we do not gather that the Colonial Office has any idea of practically recognising the fact. When Germany was laying hands on the Caroline group the other day it was conveyed that what she did commanded the approval of the British Government. In opposition the Conservatives complained that the Liberals allowed the Germans to do as they pleased, but in office they show less desire to check the Germans than the Liberals did.

Yesterday we published Colonel STANLEY'S despatch on the Federal Council Bill. We know how little Colonel STANLEY and his friends concerned themselves about this bill twelve months ago. The idea then was that the Conservatives staved off the bill because they desired that so important a measure should be fully considered. But the bill has been as little considered this year as it would have been last year. There is no evidence that the measure has occupied much of Colonel STANLEY'S time and attention. But though the bill was treated as a very small affair while it was before the Legislature, now that it is through the SECRETARY OF STATE asks us to believe that he looks upon our acceptance of the measure as a matter of the utmost moment. Before the bill was passed Colonel STANLEY paid little heed to the objections of New South Wales and New Zealand, and now that it has passed he lectures these colonies for standing aloof from their neighbours. In one part of his despatch Colonel STANLEY points out that the bill will not interfere with the independence of the colonial Legislatures, and in another he argues that if the amendments of New South Wales and New Zealand had been accepted they would have destroyed the independence of the Federal Council. So far, it must be confessed, the Conservatives have adopted an original method of strengthening the relations between the colonies and the mother country. Nor do we find that they are beginning better elsewhere than in Australia. Writing of South Africa, the Spectator said a few weeks ago, "We augured little good and not a little mischief from the recent change of Government, but we did hope that the change might involve one incidental advantage, the incorporation of a little more backbone into the conduct of our colonial affairs. Lord DERBY never seemed able to settle anything. We did hope that his successor might be more capable of a definite course. We fear that we shall be disappointed. The infirmity of the Colonial Office during Lord DERBY'S reign seems too likely to be the infirmity of the Colonial Office during his brother's regime." The Spectator may do the new SECRETARY FOR STATE an injustice; but up to the present the Conservatives have failed to show that they intend to do very much to bring the colonies nearer to Great Britain.

According to our London correspondent, the demand of the advocates of local option in Australia, that publicans whose places of business may be closed by the application of the principle shall not receive compensation, is regarded with astonishment in the old country. Such a demand is considered to be both unreasonable and unjust; and every thoughtful and unprejudiced person must agree with that opinion. From the first, the Local Optionists in this colony have set their faces against the principle of compensation. They have argued that the publican is an enemy of society; that his business is spreading disease, misery, and death on every hand; and that, therefore, he ought to be abolished without ceremony, and his vested interests confiscated. If these were only the extreme teetotal standpoint from which this question could be considered, no doubt we should have to accept these conclusions. But there is another standpoint, and some will think that it is a far more rational one than that occupied by the opponents of the publicans; it is the circumstance that the calling of a licensed victualler is sanctioned by the law. In consideration of the payment of a special tax by the publican, the State gives him authority to sell intoxicants in any quantity between six o'clock in the morning and eleven o'clock in the evening on six days in the week, and it guarantees to him the same protection in conducting his business that it affords to society in general. That being the condition of affairs, the State would be guilty of an act of injustice if it abolished the publican and refused to give him compensation. Governments sometimes do strange things, but it may be hoped that no Government that has any respect for the principles of the English Constitution could be capable of such tyranny as that. No statesman either in England or Australia has approved of this dishonourable doctrine. Mr. GLADSTONE has sympathy with one form of local option, but he has expressed himself in terms of strong condemnation of the non-compensation theory. So has Mr. BRIGHT. The Victorian Licensing Bill, which has recently passed through Committee, contains the principle of compensation. If it had not it would have been thrown out on the second reading. Only a few weeks since a public-house in London was resumed by the Metropolitan Board of Works to enable a certain street to be widened. Seven years ago the publican gave £10,000 for the goodwill and lease of the business, and at the time of the resumption the lease had 32 years to run. Our Local Optionists would not have given him a farthing as compensation; but the Board of Works gave him £11,730, and no complaint was made of their action, because it was considered to be just. In the opinion of a number of persons local option is an unconstitutional principle, because it implies the supersession of Parliamentary government. That objection alone makes the task of its supporters in forcing their system into law extremely arduous; but when they associate non-compensation with local option they create obstacles to their enterprise which, in the present state of public opinion, they are not likely to surmount.

The facts contained in Mr. LAWES' letter upon the New Guinea massacres (yesterday published) are of much more value than the theories which they are made to bear. Mr. LAWES fixes the locality of the "murders, massacres, or outrages" with accuracy, and relates the true story of the affairs by which they were preceded. It was at Moresby Island, 240 miles from Port Moresby; the victims were men, "the whole course of whose lives and treatment of the natives were such that I am not in the least surprised at the ending." The natives were simply obeying their own laws, and guarding their own liberty. These are the premisses the missionary lays down, and from these he argues, not as may be supposed in agreement with the ordinary current of expressed Australian opinion. He says:—"There are some states of society in which lynch law is justifiable as a very rough and ready way of checking crime and executing justice. The same plea holds good for club law. There is no other known among the natives of New Guinea. The restraints upon evil-doing, which are to be found in every civilised community, are unknown among barbarous tribes such as these, and we may be quite sure that the club is sometimes a minister of justice, although a severe one." And he holds, apparently, that the club or spear, though severe and cruel and brutal, has been a minister of justice here. Captain FRIER used to boast of the punishment he inflicted upon the natives. "He said, 'They are liars and treacherous, and I fight them with their own weapons.' No doubt he did, and he has died from their own weapons, too." From WEBB'S boat it was known that a black boy had been shot "because someone else had stolen two sticks of tobacco." READ, killed at Slade Island, is said to have provoked the natives by persistently following their women, and others had prepared their own fates by similar means. The natives simply desired to be let alone; they would not go on board the men-of-war. They said, Send us back our boys; we want nothing more from you. They resented any settlement, they did not care for any trade, and the idea of the missionary is clear enough, they were, and they are, fairly justified, if not right. He hopes that the new GOVERNOR will make a full and patient inquiry, and do justice. But the serious question for white men and for white traders, also for those fond of making broad studies of abstract justice, is what will follow the GOVERNOR'S decision? Will the natives be continually left alone, or reserved for the slow advance of the missionaries; and if this immunity from invasion is to be granted to the inhabitants of New Guinea, by what right or under what pretence shall we continue our advance upon all the aborigines of this continent? What is the difference between the method of the island trade and the squatting pioneer? Does even a pretence of justice underlie the conduct of either party, and can either put forward any fair plea of necessity?

NEWS OF THE DAY.

MR. DIBBS, we understand, completed his task of reconstructing the Government yesterday, and this morning the new Ministers, and those who filled offices in the Stuart Administration and who will resume office under the leadership of Mr. Dibbs, will be sworn in. The names of the members of the new Government were not officially stated yesterday, but, so far as rumour mentioned them, they are given in another column. Parliament will be dissolved to-day, and the writs for the new elections will most likely be issued to-morrow.

WHEN the San Francisco mail service was the principal service of the colony it was arranged to receive letters at the Custom-house on payment of a late fee of 1s. up to 2.45 p.m., the steamer sailing at 3; but as there is at present a weekly mail independently of it, and in view of the fact that very few letters are now posted at the place mentioned, it has been decided in future to only receive letters there till 2.30 p.m. Under the new arrangement, which will take effect from to-morrow, the late fee will be 6d., and the special steamer that has hitherto had to be engaged to convey the letters on board the mail boat will not now be required.

SIR HENRY PARKES and Mr. Varney Parkes addressed an open air meeting of about 500 electors last night, at Parramatta. Mr. Varney Parkes was the first speaker, and he condemned generally the acts of the Government. At the conclusion of his address a vote of confidence was accorded him. Sir Henry Parkes, who then came forward, was well received, and he also attacked the policy of the Government. He contended that it was a most unconstitutional act not to dissolve Parliament as soon as possible after a prorogation obtained for that purpose, and alluded to the fact that when the previous Parliament was dissolved in November, 1883, on his advice, only a day intervened between the prorogation and dissolution. The proceedings will be found reported in another column.

IN another portion of this day's issue we publish a further contribution from our special commissioner, dealing more especially with the character and effects of legislative or administrative measures which it may appear advisable to resort to with regard to the phylloxera vastatrix in this colony.

IN his fourth article on the timber trade of the colony, entitled, "The Timber and Timber Trade of New South Wales," our special reporter prefaces his account of Forest Rangers by some interesting particulars of celebrated trees all over the world, and gives a detailed account of the import and export trade in timber done by this colony.

THE University senior and junior examinations begin on Monday next. The number of metropolitan candidates is this year so large that the authorities have, by favour of the Mayor, obtained the use of the Exhibition Building in Prince Alfred Park. In addition to the examination in Sydney, local centres have been established in the following places:—Brisbane, Rockhampton, Maryborough, Gympie, Ipswich, Toowoomba, Bathurst, Goulburn, Lithgow, Mittagong, Armidale, Grafton, Maitland, Singleton, Wollongong, Albury, Parkes, Forbes, Newcastle, Wellington, Yass, Burrowa, Wagga Wagga, Bega, Junee Junction, Deniliquin, Orange, Glen Innes, Wilcannia, Tamworth, Cooma, Young, Richmond, Bourke, and Queanbeyan; altogether 35 local centres. In Sydney the numbers of candidates are as follows:—Senior males, 26; senior females, 15; junior males, 267; junior females, 111: total, 419. In Brisbane there are 18 junior boys, 15 junior girls, 4 senior boys, and 3 senior girls; altogether 40 candidates. The largest local centre is Bathurst, at which 62 candidates will present themselves for examination, including 35 junior boys, 10 junior girls, 3 senior boys, 3 senior girls, and 11 candidates for the Civil Service. Goulburn comes next, with 52 candidates, comprising 22 junior boys, 4 junior girls, 8 senior boys, and 18 candidates for the Civil Service. At Maitland there are 25 junior boys, 2 junior girls, 1 senior boy, and 20 candidates for the Civil Service; total, 48. The Sydney candidates should assemble at the Exhibition Building at 9.15 a.m. on the day of commencement.

A LARGE number of resolutions, many of a technical character, were passed by the rabbit conference yesterday, and some very interesting information was given by Mr. Stuart Holmes of the exterminating work done on the Castle Rock run, in Southland, New Zealand, where the pest had been got under in a very short time by the use of phosphorised oats, bi-sulphate of carbon, and other means. Mr. J. A. Parker described his process of destroying rabbits by an apparatus for generating poisonous gas, and claimed that he could do more work for £50 than could be done under any other system for £1000. A resolution was passed in favour of giving the process a trial. The conference testified their appreciation of the manner in which the Minister for Mines (Mr. J. P. Abbott) had endeavoured to deal with the rabbit question. The conference adjourned till to-day, when the committee will present a report, the delegates will visit the wire netting works at Parramatta, and the remaining business will be concluded.

OUR obituary notice of yesterday contained the name of Mr. Melmoth Hall, who at one time held a very prominent position in the community. When the Colonial Sugar Company commenced operations at Chatsworth, on the Clarence River, Mr. Hall, who had previously practical acquaintance with sugar-growing, entered the service of the company and continued in it from 1868 to 1881, when owing to failing health he retired on a well-earned pension. During his early connection with the company he was chiefly employed in lecturing to the farmers, who were taking up a new industry, and instructing them practically in the development of it. His efforts were marked with singular success, and he may almost be ranked as the pioneer of sugar-growing on the northern rivers. On his health giving way he joined the staff of the company at headquarters, and proved of invaluable assistance to the board in tendering it to practical advice with regard to opening up new fields of industry. Some years ago, when sugar-planting in the colonies was discussed in the public journals of the day, Mr. Hall contributed some very valuable papers on the subject, which were read with considerable interest, and his advice was highly valued by the farmers on the northern rivers, who turned their attention to the cultivation of sugar-cane. In private life Mr. Hall was a genial and cultured gentleman, and an enthusiastic botanist. He took a very prominent position in all horticultural societies, and as a grower of roses was, perhaps, the most accomplished florist we had. For some time the deceased gentleman had been in feeble health, and he succumbed at last to a stroke of paralysis.

THE third Intercolonial Trades' Union Congress commenced at the Town Hall yesterday morning, when about 100 delegates were present. Mr. Thomas Caddy, president of the Trades and Labour Council of New South Wales, was elected president; Mr. B. Wells, of South Australia, vice-president; Mr. James Finch, treasurer; and Mr. Thomas Symons, secretary. It is anticipated that the sittings will last the whole of the week. A proposal was made that the delegates should, in addition to the morning and afternoon sittings, meet at night, that the constituents of those elected locally might attend to listen to the deliberations, but this was scouted as an innovation of the eight hours' principle, and it was resolved that only morning and afternoon meetings should be held.

DURING the heavy fog which enveloped the city yesterday morning the steamer Gannet, of the Neutral Bay Ferry Company, while making a trip from the Circular Quay to Neutral Bay, ran on the rocks at Kirribilli Point. The steamer Little Dupleix went to her assistance, and succeeded in towing her off. The Gannet did not receive injuries of a serious nature, for she was able to continue her usual trips during the day.

A TELEGRAPHIC message received from Dr. Peirce, in charge of the hospital ship Faraway, yesterday, states that the whole of the patients suffering from smallpox are making favourable and satisfactory progress towards recovery. Ada Phillips is doing well. The persons quarantined at the North Head are reported to be in excellent health. No further cases of variola have been reported to the health authorities.

THE council of the Rifle Association have decided to postpone the garrison gun match to some Saturday yet to be fixed previous to the second Saturday in February next, as for all the Saturdays in the current year the batteries are already engaged. The following officers have been appointed captains of the teams for the international match:—England, Major Walker; Ireland, Captain Longfield; Scotland, Lieutenant-colonel Goodlet; Wales, Lieutenant Mason; Australia, Major Richards. An invitation has been received from Victoria to shoot in a match during the week ending 28th November. Conditions: 10 men aside, 15 shots each at 800, 500, and 600 yards; Martini-Henry rifles, with sights as authorised by the military authorities of the respective colonies; position as indicated in the manual for musketry instruction. General post entries for the forthcoming meeting at Paddington Ranges will close on Monday next, the 12th instant, and nominations for the Company Bugle, Engineers' Trophy, and Schools' Match must be made not later than the 19th instant. In the Schools' Carbine Match there have been received 72 entries, of which eight are from the High School and only two from the Public schools at head quarters, both of these being from the suburbs. This strange state of affairs certainly demands explanation. The schools' challenge shield has been completed, and is on view at the shop of Messrs. Fairfax and Roberts, in Hunter-street. This trophy, which was described some time ago in these columns, will be a perpetual prize, and is instituted this year for the first time. It is a handsome piece of work, and should excite keen competition among the schools.

THE City Improvement Board met yesterday at the offices in Castlereagh-street. Present: Mr. Benjamin Backhouse (chairman), Mr. W. Bailey, Dr. Craig Dixson, Mr. George Evans, Mr. F. Senior, and Mr. F. C. Rooke (secretary). Several references from the city building surveyor, Mr. T. H. Sapsford, were dealt with. It was ordered that some condemned awnings connected with premises Nos. 168, 170, and 172, Pitt-street, owned by Mr. W. J. Uther, at 102, King-street, belonging to Mr. James Taylor, and occupied by Messrs. Jackson and Morton, should be taken down within 14 days; also, that awnings at Nos. 141, 143, and 145, Bathurst-street, owned by Mr. Louis Cohen, should be taken down within seven days. The principal business consisted of a consideration of the City Building Surveyor's report, condemning four dwellings in Riley-street, Surry Hills, known as Nos. 309, 311, 313, and 315, and eight dwellings forming the basement thereof, and separate therefrom, belonging to Mr. John Powell. Evidence was given as to the state of the buildings by Mr. J. P. Walker, builder, and, after the usual inspection by the board, it was ordered that the buildings be strengthened, secured, and partially rebuilt, to the satisfaction of the City Building Surveyor. In regard to some premises, consisting of six buildings, situated in rear of 397, Kent-street, belonging to Mr. G. P. Slade, concerning which a reference had already been dealt with in August last, an application was made for a re-hearing. The opinion of Mr. W. Gregory Walker, counsel, was handed in by Messrs. Creagh and Williams, solicitors in the case, and it was stated that the owner, who was absent from the colony when the matter was dealt with, had not had the opportunity of properly instructing his solicitors. The board agreed to rehear the case.

THE monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Sydney Hospital was held yesterday afternoon. Dr. Renwick (president) occupied the chair, the other directors present being Messrs. J. Pope, Starkey, Griffiths, M.L.A., Lees, S. Burdekin, M.L.A., Hardie, Chapman, M.L.A., M'Coy, Josephson, Dean, and Dr. Morgan. Accounts amounting to £1372 12s. 3d. were passed for payment. It was decided, on the recommendation of the permanent structure committee, that the roof of the Nightingale wing be roofed with iron. Mr. Josephson moved the addition of certain words to by-laws 88 and 89 to make them read as follows, the added words being shown in parenthesis: 88. There shall be four honorary physicians, who shall be duly qualified by the possession of a degree in medicine from a British, Irish, or Australian University (or from such foreign universities as may be recognised by the Medical Board of New South Wales). 89. There shall be four honorary surgeons, who shall possess a degree in surgery or a surgeon's diploma from some university or college of surgeons in the United Kingdom of Great Britain, Ireland, or Australia (or from such foreign universities or colleges of surgeons as may be recognised by the Medical Board of New South Wales.) After a short discussion it was decided to postpone consideration of the matter until next meeting, and in the meantime the matter will be referred to the medical staff of the Hospital. The meeting then adjourned.

PAPERS recently received from Paris give the names of the following gentlemen as having been elected members of the Institution Ethnographique of that city:—Mr. John Fraser, B.A., &c., "Deleque-General pour l'Oceanie," Maitland; Hon. W. Macleay, M.L.C., F. Linn. Soc. of N. S. W., Sydney; Rev. Peter Macpherson, M.A., "Deleque Correspondant," Sydney; and Mr. John Tebbutt, F.R.A.S., &c., "Deleque correspondant," Windsor, N. S. W. Names also occur in connection with Victoria, Queensland, New Zealand, and Melanesia.

IN the Insolvency Court, yesterday, the Chief Commissioner delivered his reserved judgment in regard to the application of Edward Russell Daunt for a certificate. His Honor held that one at least of the objections lodged was fatal to the application, and he therefore refused the certificate. In the matter of James Forsyth Porter, the issue of a certificate was suspended for four months from the date of the original application.

THE sittings of the Metropolitan Court of Quarter Sessions were continued yesterday at Darlinghurst Courthouse, before Mr. District Court Judge Murray. Mr. Healy acted as Crown Prosecutor. James Robinson was sentenced to five months' hard labour for larceny. John Elias Wilkins was acquitted on a charge of having tampered with a letter. Thomas Dobbey was remanded until the ensuing sessions on a charge of assault and robbery. John Smith received a sentence of five years' penal servitude for having committed an abominable offence. James Rose and William Green pleaded guilty to two charges of stealing, and they were sentenced to eighteen months' hard labour in Darlinghurst Gaol. Patrick Saville and Susannah Saville were acquitted on a charge of assault and robbery.

THE decision of the directors of the New South Wales Zoological Society to admit the children attending the Public schools to the Zoological Gardens, Moore Park, on certain days, was taken advantage of yesterday, when children from the following schools, accompanied by their teachers, visited the grounds:— Paddington, 4 teachers and 160 pupils; Waterloo, 1 teacher and 25 pupils; Prospect, 1 teacher and 41 pupils; Granville, 2 teachers and 55 pupils; North Sydney, 2 teachers and 30 pupils; Gardener's-road, 2 teachers and 54 pupils; Paddington, 2 teachers and 80 pupils; William-street, 1 teacher and 40 pupils; Bullanaming-street, 1 teacher and 44 pupils; Bourke-street, 1 teacher and 32 pupils; Marrickville, 2 teachers and 54 pupils; ditto, Boys', 1 teacher and 48 pupils; Cleveland-street, 2 teachers and 74 pupils; Macquarie-street, 3 teachers and 63 pupils; Cleveland-street, 1 teacher and 42 pupils; Redfern, 2 teachers and 76 pupils; Waterloo, 2 teachers and 60 pupils; Ultimo, 1 teacher and 26 pupils; Newtown, 3 teachers and 103 pupils; Sussex-street, 1 teacher and 27 pupils; William-street (Girls'), 1 teacher and 24 pupils; Redfern, 2 teachers and 103 pupils; Glenmore-road, 1 teacher and 59 pupils; Plunkett-street, 2 teachers and 49 pupils; Darlinghurst, 1 teacher and 39 pupils; Plunkett, 1 teacher and 20 pupils; Macdonaldtown, 2 teachers and 49 pupils: total number of teachers, 45; total number of pupils, 1477.

THE proceeds of the recent opening services of St. Andrew's, Summer Hill, amounted to £338, and the sale of work, without raffles, &c., to £274, making a total of £612. The incumbent has just received 300 volumes of books, which had been sent for from England, to form a nucleus of a Sunday school library, together with a number of large illuminated texts for decorating the walls of the schoolroom.

THE REV. MORGAN WILLIAMS, pastor of the Parramatta Congregational Church, announced to his congregation on Sunday morning last that he intended to resign his charge at the end of the year. He said he had received a requisition asking him to reconsider his decision, but he declined to do so.

THE extraordinary number of 32 prizes were obtained by Messrs. Brooke Brothers, of Tapio, for sheep, at the Wentworth Agricultural, Pastoral, and Horticultural Show, held yesterday. Twelve out of the 32 prizes were firsts, two were champions, two were specials, and the remaining 10 were second prizes. The Tapio run is situated on the Darling, near Wentworth, and has long been celebrated for its stud sheep.

A RIDING school—an institution new to Sydney—has been recently established by Sergeant-Major King at Double Bay. The sergeant-major, who was in her Majesty's service for 17 years, and was until recently connected with the 7th Dragoon Guards, has brought a wide experience to bear on the erection and general appointment of his school, which has been fitted up in a most careful manner. The building is of wood, provided with dressing-rooms for ladies and gentlemen, and a railed balcony, from which parents and friends can witness the lessons being given. The balcony looks down on to a tan-covered quadrangular court, 80 feet by 40, where intending equestrians receive instruction sufficient at least to prevent them from becoming objects of derision when appearing in public on horseback. The lower portions of the walls are sloped forward, so that it is impossible for a horse to crush the rider's leg, a very useful precaution. Revolving leaping bars, which turn if the animal should strike them, are also provided. At the rear there are stalls, with a number of well-conditioned good-tempered horses in them. The building is capitally lit and ventilated, and bids fair to answer fully the purposes for which it is intended. Sergeant-Major King is also enclosing an adjoining piece of ground, where the more advanced pupils will be able to take their lessons.

ON Sunday last, the Rev. John L. Taylor, late of Gunning, in the diocese of Goulburn, commenced his clerical duties at Christ Church, Enmore, there being large congregations both morning and evening. Mr. H. Duff presided at the organ, and the services were rendered by an efficient choir. The Primate will on Friday evening next induct the new incumbent. The late incumbent, the Rev. J. W. Johnstone, succeeds Mr. Taylor at Gunning.

ON Sunday last the anniversary of St. Mark's Sunday School, Granville, was celebrated by special services, all of which were largely attended. There was a celebration of the Holy Communion at 8 o'clock, followed by the ordinary service at 11, the preacher being the Rev. W. A. Phillips. In the afternoon the Rev. E. A. Colvin conducted a children's flower service. The edifice was very tastefully decorated for the occasion, and a large number of the children brought bouquets, which, after the service, were collected for distribution in the local asylums and hospital. In the evening the Rev. Canon Gunther addressed a large congregation. The offertories were in aid of St. Mark's Sunday School fund. Yesterday the scholars had their annual picnic in the Parramatta Park.

THE Rev. A. Osborne, M.A., commenced a series of evangelistic services at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Parramatta, on Sunday last, when he preached three times, to good congregations. In the afternoon the rev. gentleman conducted a children's service, and in the evening delivered a very practical address on the life of John Bunyan. His remarks were listened to with reverent attention, and appeared to create a favourable impression. The services will be continued each evening during the week until Friday. On Monday and last night the addresses were founded on "The Pilgrim's Progress," and were illustrated by lantern views."

A MUSICAL recital, under the conductorship of Herr Kretschmann, will be given in the large hall of the Sydney University on Saturday afternoon next. Master Frank Smith will be one of the executants, the principal object of the recital being to afford the public an opportunity of judging of this young artist's skill and the progress he has made with the violin.

A SALE of useful and fancy work was held in the schoolroom of St. John the Baptist's Church, Ashfield, on Friday and Saturday, the 2nd and 3rd instant, to pay off, if possible, the debt on the church organ. During the evenings various songs and pieces were rendered by amateurs, and listened to with marked appreciation by those present. On Monday evening the sale was brought to a conclusion by a Bruce-auction, at which the remaining articles were disposed of. In every respect the sale must be considered an unqualified success. Not only was the debt amounting to about £50 paid off, but a like amount was handed to the churchwardens, in aid of the debt for repairs to St. John's Church. By a careful examination it was found that out of 150 persons who held sittings in the church not more than 30 were present at the sale, and with the exception of about six seatholders, who assisted the ladies with hand and pocket, little help was afforded them except by their younger friends.

A FIRE broke out yesterday morning at about 3 o'clock on the premises, 24, Campbell-street, Haymarket, owned by Mrs. Graham, of Summer Hill, and occupied by C. Y. Lee and Co., tobacconists and tea dealers, sub-let from R. Marklove, produce merchant. A quantity of kapok and other stores, comprising tea, sugar, &c., was damaged by fire and the water in the back part of the ground floor, and a quantity of pollard, bran, &c., were damaged in the back portion of the first floor. The contents of Lee and Co.'s shop were insured in the New Zealand Insurance Company for £500, and the contents of Marklove's store were insured in the Phœnix for a similar amount. The building was insured in the Mercantile Mutual. The flames were extinguished by the M. F. B., assisted by No. 1 Volunteer Company. The fire is believed to have broken out on the lower floor of Lee's premises.

ONE of the stipendiary magistrates recently decided at the Water Police Court, Sydney, that milk was not adulterated by being mixed with water. In Brisbane, however, the magistrates are of a different opinion, as on Friday last, at the Police Court in that city (reported in the Courier), a milkman pleaded guilty to selling adulterated milk. From the analysis of Professor Pepper, public analyst, it appears that there was 33 per cent. of water in the milk. Mr. Bruce, who appeared for the defendant, said that Martin, finding that he had not sufficient milk to meet the demands of his customers, indulged in a little mixture of water in order to give the quantity if not the quality. The bench considered that the quality of the milk was of more consideration than the quantity, and taking this view of the case fined the defendant £8, inclusive of costs.

THE following is the order of musical service at St. Andrew's Cathedral this afternoon:—Magnificat, Bennett in F.; Nunc Dimittis, Bennett in F.; Anthem, Garrett's "Praise ye the Lord."

THE band of the Permanent Artillery will perform this afternoon in the Botanic Gardens (weather permitting).

IN Monday's issue of the Herald an announcement appeared intimating that Messrs. Campbell Brothers' Royal Furnishing Arcade, George-street, would be closed on that day. A similar notice was inadvertently published in yesterday's issue, whereas the establishment was open, and business transacted as usual.

A MISPRINT appeared in the second paragraph of Mr. W. A. Dixon's communication upon "Municipal Taxation," published in yesterday's issue of the Herald. The figures should have been £19,000, instead of £17,000.

THE following is the report of St. Vincent's Hospital for the week ending 3rd October:—Number of patients in hospital at last report, 61 males, 29 females; total, 90. Since admitted, 9 males, 6 females; total, 15. Discharged, 12 males, 5 females; total, 17. Died, nil. Remaining in hospital, 58 males, 30 females; total, 88.

THE NEW MINISTRY.

Mr. Dibbs completed his task of reconstructing the Government yesterday; but we are not in a position to publish this morning an authoritative list of the names of the Ministers and their respective offices, as before such a list is made public it is considered that the names should be submitted for the information of his Excellency the Governor. Mr. Dibbs, we are able to state, will fill the position of Premier and Colonial-Treasurer; but beyond that the personnel of the new Government is not positively known. Mr. Dibbs declined yesterday to give any information with regard to his new colleagues, and, as every gentleman supposed to be associated with him was equally reticent, any names that are made public, or any statement of the rearrangement of the Ministerial offices, cannot be relied upon implicitly. It may, however, be said that Sir Patrick Jennings is reported to have been offered, and is believed to have accepted, the position of Colonial Secretary; that Mr. J. P. Abbott will fill the office of Minister for Lands; that Mr. W. J. Lyne, it is thought, will be Minister for Works; that Mr. F. A. Wright will go to the Post Office; that Mr. J. H. Want is to be Attorney-General, and that Mr. Farnell is going into the Upper House, probably as Vice-President of the Executive Council. This arrangement leaves the offices of Minister of Public Instruction, Minister for Mines, and Minister of Justice to be accounted for, and in the first it is said Mr. Trickett will remain, and the second will be filled by Mr. See. According to these statements, the list would be:—

Mr. DIBBS	Premier and Colonial Treasurer.
Sir PATRICK JENNINGS	Colonial Secretary.
Mr. W. J. TRICKETT ..	Minister of Public Instruction.
..	Minister of Justice.
Mr. J. H. WANT ..	Attorney-General.
Mr. J. P. ABBOTT ..	Secretary for Lands.
Mr. W. J. LYNE	Secretary for Public Works.
Mr. F. A. WRIGHT ..	Postmaster-General.
Mr. J. SEE	Minister for Mines.
Mr. J. S. FARNELL ..	Vice-President of the Executive Council, with a seat in the Legislative Council.

There will probably be two representatives of the Government in the Legislative Council, but only the name of Mr. Farnell appeared to be known yesterday. With regard to the office of Colonial Secretary, it is said it was not absolutely certain up to last evening that it would be filled by the gentleman to whom it had been offered, and who is believed to be Sir Patrick Jennings. Sir Patrick has been out of town for the last two or three days, on a visit, it is said, to one of his squatting properties in the neighbourhood of Gunnedah, and all correspondence with him has had to be carried on by telegram. There did not, however, appear to be much doubt that the office would be accepted by him. It is also said that overtures were made yesterday to Mr. M. H. Stephen, Q.C. with regard to the Attorney-Generalship, but whether this statement is true or not we are unable to say. The new Ministers, we are informed, will be sworn in this morning, their names being first submitted by Mr. Dibbs to the Governor, and subsequently a meeting of the Executive Council will be held, and Parliament will be dissolved. The writs for the new elections, we understand, will most likely be issued to-morrow.

VICTORIA.

MELBOURNE, TUESDAY.

At a meeting of the Melbourne Presbytery to-day attention was drawn to the reasons given by the Rev. Robert Scott for resigning the pastorate of Chalmers Church, viz., his want of sympathy with the action of the presbytery in regard to the Scots Church and the Rev. Charles Strong. The matter was postponed, owing to the absence of Mr. Scott. It is generally thought that this action will lead to further trouble in the presbytery. It was intimated that the Rev. Professor Rentoul would deliver a course of lectures in support of revealed religion, in answer to the prevailing sceptical objections.

The Steam Navigation Board to-day conducted an inquiry into the cause of the total loss of the steamer Gulf of Carpentaria recently, between Cleft and Anser Islands, on the voyage from Sydney to Adelaide. After two hours' deliberation, the board found that no blame could be attached to the officers of the vessel, and that the rock on which the vessel struck was not marked on the last Admiralty charts. It was suggested that if Captain Thomson applied for assistance for expenses and witnesses' fees, the board would report favourably on the application.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

ADELAIDE, TUESDAY.

Yesterday a large and influential deputation waited upon the Attorney-General to present a resolution passed at the Town Hall on last Friday evening, with reference to the Exhibition proposed to be held in Adelaide. The Attorney-General admitted that the arguments adduced in favour of the Exhibition were very forcible, and promised to give the matter all consideration, and also to lay the wishes of the deputation before his colleagues.

In the Supreme Court to-day the action instituted by the Adelaide (North-East) Suburban Land and Investment Company against Sir William Wadham and others, vendors and promoters, for the recision of the contracts by which the company became possessed of several sections of land in the suburbs of Adelaide, was concluded. The contention of the plaintiffs was that the vendors had concealed the fact that they were promoting a company through paid agents, and that they were getting a very large profit on the land. The amount involved in the action was £64,000. The vendors themselves had taken shares in the company. The case has lasted 10 days, and 14 solicitors were retained. The Chief Justice to-day gave a decision for the defendants, with costs.

The Corn-trade Association have adopted the alteration of the grainbrokers' charges to 1 per cent. commission all round.

At the latest inspection of the City Battalion of the Rifle Volunteer force Major-General Owen, in addressing the volunteers, said that both the officers and men have to do and learn a great deal more before they can be regarded as efficient. They must work still harder to gain that machine-like movement that the science of war now demands.

A public welcome was accorded to-night to the Rev. S. Hebditch, of Clapton Park, London, who has assumed the pastorate of the North Adelaide Congregational Church. A letter was received from Bishop Kennion, who is out of town, extending a welcome, and the Rev. Dr. Jefferis, of Sydney, sent a congratulatory telegram. The Rev. S. Chapman, representing the Collins-street Baptist Church, Melbourne, presented a congratulatory motion which had been carried by that congregation. Representatives of all denominations in the city were present.

It is proposed to organise meetings in the suburbs with the object of stimulating public feeling in favour of the Jubilee Exhibition.

GENERAL SUMMARY.

LONDON, SEPT. 4.

Lord R. Churchill made an important speech last night at the Cutlers' feast at Sheffield, of which the substance has been already cabled. After announcing the settlement of the Zulficar difficulty with Russia, Lord R. Churchill said that the Government looked forward to a new departure in Central Asia, and hoped that by moderation, patience, and perseverence some arrangement might be concluded with Russia, giving to the present state of affairs in Central Asia some degree of permanency and security; but the lesson on recent events would not be lost upon the Home or Indian Government. The provision which has been commenced for fortifying the Indian frontier, for increasing and reorganising the native forces in India, will be actively pursued. These provisions can give no cause of offence or be in the least degree provocative towards any European power. Lord R. Churchill paid a warm eulogy to the ability of Lord Dufferin, whom he regarded as the man in the public service capable of realising the great modifications of the British position in India brought about by the recent events in Central Asia, and of acting in accordance by pursuing a prudent but effective policy, while giving no annoyance to Russia. Lord R. Churchill, made no allusion to Mr. Parnell's recent declaration; but as regards the government of Ireland, he urged reliance on the ordinary law.

Spanish feeling on Germany's action in the Caroline Islands has more and more excited indignation, and meetings continue to be held in Madrid and the principal provincial towns. A subscription has been started for increasing the fleet and building torpedo boats, though a very small sum—below £200—has been at present collected. The Spanish Cabinet has displayed great incompetency in dealing with the matter. Germany, at the outset, manifested a willingness to retreat from the position it had taken up; but the Ministry let slip the opportunity of accepting what was a virtual apology. Public opinion became inflamed, and even the ravages of cholera for the moment were forgotten. Senor Canovas del Castello and the Ministers are making efforts to throw upon the King and the Monarchical cause he represents the responsibility for the crisis, and popular indignation against Germany is being used by the leaders of the revolutionary party as a lever to overthrow King Alfonso. Their tactics are supported by French intrigue. Germany, as already cabled, has made a proposal to Spain to submit the matter to arbitration by a friendly power, but in the pass to which matters have reached, it is doubtful if Spain will accept. The English press regard Germany's offer as fair and reasonable.

The Daily Telegraph is publishing a series of very interesting and brilliantly-written articles from Mr. G. A. Sala upon his Australian experiences.

As soon as the Trans-Caspian railway is completed to Merv and Broidalah, about next autumn, the Czar will proceed to Samarcand, there to be crowned as Emperor of Central Asia.

The anniversary of Sedan was celebrated at Berlin on the 2nd, with the usual pomp. A grand military parade was held, at which the Emperor William for the first time inspected the troops from his carriage instead of on horseback.

The construction of a railway tunnel four miles and a half long, under the Bristol Channel, has been successfully completed after 12 years' work. The engineer is Mr. W. Richardson, engineer to the Great Western Railway. The first train runs through this week.

AUSTRALASIAN PARLIAMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

MELBOURNE, TUESDAY.

In the Legislative Council of Victoria to-day, Colonel Sargood introduced a bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the naval and military forces, and to make better provision for the defences. The bill was read a first time. When the House last sat Colonel Sargood moved the recommittal of the Explosives Bill, in order to strike out certain provisions described as money clauses on constitutional grounds, the measure having originated in the Legislative Council. Dr. Hearn objected to the recommittal of the measure, contending that the House was authorised by the Constitution Act to deal with such provisions. The President suggested that the matter should be referred to the Standing Orders Committee, but intimated that he believed that Colonel Sargood had proposed the proper course, in view of the previous practice, and the practice of the Imperial Parliament and the Constitution Act. The suggestion was adopted, and the bill was held over. The Legal Professions Amalgamation Bill had its second reading, moved by Mr. Beaver, who said that he would be prepared in committee to move an amendment requiring a solicitor to have the degree of LL.B. before being allowed to practise. That would meet the objection of the Council of the University that the qualifications of solicitors were so low at present as to prevent them from being allowed to practise as barristers. Dr. Hearn said that the bill should have been sent up from the Legislative Assembly in its proper form, as there was no guarantee that the amendment would be agreed to in committee; and he moved that the bill be read the second time that day six months. The amendment was agreed to by 16 votes to 14.

In the Legislative Assembly this afternoon Mr. Service, in replying to Mr. Walker, said that he asked Admiral Tryon to have a re-survey made of the Anser Islands, where the steamer Gulf of Carpentaria was lost.

BRISBANE, TUESDAY.

In the Legislative Assembly of Queensland to-day the Probate Act Amendment Bill was passed through committee with verbal amendments. The House went into committee for the further consideration of the Licensing Bill. The clause dealing with licenses for the sale of Queensland wines was amended so as to include intercolonial and foreign wines. The wineseller's license fee was increased from £5 to £10, and packet licenses to £5 for each 200 tons, but not to exceed £20. A number of amendments were proposed with the object of increasing the stringency of the bill, but few were accepted. The local option clauses have not been reached yet.

ADELAIDE, TUESDAY.

The Legislative Council of South Australia sat for three hours this afternoon, and then adjourned for a week. The Supply Bill was carried, and a bill was introduced providing for the encouragement of gold-mining, the second reading of which will be moved next Tuesday. The second reading of the Local Courts Bill was carried, and the measure was passed through committee.

In the Legislative Assembly the portrait of Sir R. R. Torrens, painted by M'Cormac, was exhibited for the first time. The picture was hung on the northern wall alongside the painting by the same artist of the late Sir George Kingston. Doctor Sterling resumed his seat in the House after a prolonged absence owing to illness. The report of the Committee of Ways and Means upon the increase in the excise duty on spirits was adopted. Mr. Ward resumed the debate on the second reading of the Customs Bill, speaking at great length and with vigour in favour of free trade. He showed a strong opposition to the tariff proposals, which he said would reduce South Australia to relatively as unsatisfactory a position as that now occupied by Victoria, which for the material prosperity of the labouring classes was not at all to be compared with free trade New South Wales. He moved as an amendment to the motion for the second reading,—"That this House, whilst fully recognising the desirability of further revising the tariff, and also of the necessity for increasing the public revenue by equitable and legitimate means, does not approve of the proposed tariff embodied in this bill, and is also of opinion that any radical alteration of our fiscal system should not be attempted until it has been submitted to the constituencies of the colony." After some further discussion, during which no Minister spoke, the motion, on division, was carried unexpectedly, the amendment was negatived, and the second reading was passed by 26 votes to 11. In committee the lines relative to the tax on horses and cattle crossing the border were made uniform with the Victorian tax, and a special provision was made to meet the case of stock imported for stocking purposes in the Northern Territory. Women's and children's lasting and stuff boots were transferred from the 15 to the 10 per cent. list. The excise duty on colonial spirits was reduced from 10s. per gallon to 9s. 4d. per gallon. Several minor amendments were carried, and the bill was reported.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

AUCKLAND (N. Z.), TUESDAY.

The arrangements for the continuance of the San Francisco Mail Service have been settled on the following basis:—The Union Steamship Company to carry the mails between Sydney, Auckland, and Honolulu, and the Oceanic Company from Honolulu to San Francisco; the Government of New South Wales to pay the sum of £10,000 and have a share in the postage, or £7000 without sharing in the postal rates. These arrangements have still to be ratified by the Government of New South Wales, and a number of details have yet to be settled.

ALBURY, TUESDAY.

The Albury Circuit Court was opened to-day by Sir James Martin. The following cases were dealt with:—George Robinson, for maliciously wounding, was sentenced to twelve months' penal servitude; William Wilson and William Watson, for robbery, were sentenced to imprisonment for one year, with hard labour; Richard Whiting, charged with obtaining money under false pretences by means of a valueless cheque, was sentenced to two years' imprisonment, with hard labour. In connection with this case, the Chief Justice animadverted in strong terms upon the credulity displayed by publicans in cashing cheques for unknown persons. His Honor remarked that so marvellous was this credulity, and so great the labour thus caused to the police and others in the resulting prosecutions, that he was not sure if it would not be better to make this kind of fraud no offence at all. A heavy list of civil causes will be commenced on Thursday.

BATHURST, TUESDAY.

At a meeting of the School of Arts committee, held last evening, a resolution was proposed that the books of the institution should be open for inspection one night a week during stated hours, but the motion was negatived. A somewhat similar proposal was negatived at the late annual meeting of subscribers.

BREWARRINA, TUESDAY.

The Land Court sat till late on Saturday night, and again reserved its decisions till this morning, when it was further postponed till this evening to admit of more cases being concluded. Whilst every credit is given to the Board for its desire to arrive at a fair and impartial decision regarding the rental, it is considered by the holders that the rents fixed are somewhat severe, inasmuch as the Act provides for a periodical increase on the rental now fixed. In all cases the Board made ample provision for roads and stock reserves.

The heat to-day has been intense for this time of the year. It is now clouding up as if for a storm, there being heavy clouds and no wind.

HAY, TUESDAY.

The weather has been very hot during the last few days. The grass is looking splendid in this district.

The river is 8 feet 6 inches above summer level, and rising.

MORUYA, TUESDAY.

The Bishop of Goulburn confirmed 20 candidates here on Sunday morning, and preached in the evening. He also addressed two meetings last night. A committee was formed to make arrangements for building a suitable church here. Last week the bishop administered the rite of confirmation to 20 persons at Cobargo, and discussed with the church members there the division of the parish as desired, and last night at the public meeting the division was likewise approved of here.

MURWILLUMBAH, TUESDAY.

The weather here is dry and warm. Rain is badly needed in this district, but no losses in stock are reported.

Cane-cutting is still going on, and there are good hopes of a profitable return.

NEWCASTLE, TUESDAY.

At a special meeting of the Borough Council held last night, tenders were opened for laying the pipes required for the reticulation of water in the city of Newcastle. Only 10 tenders were sent in, and that of Mr. John Frogley, at £1869 11s., was accepted. This was the lowest, but it was £400 above the estimate of Mr. Trevor Jones.

After a lively discussion last night, the City Council decided to grant the corporation labourers a holiday on the 15th instant, on the occasion of the eight-hour demonstration, but it is to be at their own expense.

WINDSOR, TUESDAY.

The Court of Quarter Sessions was opened here to-day, but as there were no cases on the list Judge Wilkinson was presented with a pair of white kid gloves.

MANAGERS' REPORTS.

Prince of Wales and Old Poverty Company, No Liability, Tarnagulla, Victoria, October 3.—The chamber is now being formed, and during the week we have sunk the shaft 4 feet, total 546 feet. A frame was put in at 545 feet, which will be useful to suspend the lift at any time, and will act as a sole piece for opening out set of the chamber. Battery works are progressing, and a small settling dam for return water is being made.

Last Chance Tribute Company, Ballarat East, October 3.—Bottom level: Have completed rise, and are now fixing opening sets. Plenty of stone in sight. Stopes are looking well. Will clean up battery at end of week. Now engaged taking out a trial crushing from the Last Chance lode.

Normanby Company, Ballarat East, October 3.—Main crosscut has been extended 4 feet in splendid-looking slate, intermixed with quartz veins. Directors have decided to sink the shaft a further depth, and tenders will be called forthwith. There is every probability that in sinking the country will become more settled, when good payable quartz may be expected.

Duke Company, Timor, October 3.—No. 3 drive east extended 45 feet for week; wash keeps level; now 2 feet 6 inches over back. Western workings: North-west drive extended 35 feet for week in wash. Am now putting up rise between Nos. 1 and 3 shafts; will be in wash this week. Yield, 48oz. 5dwt.; No. 1 tribute, 9oz. 2dwt.

Duke Consols, Timor, October 3.—No. 3 crosscut south extended 36 feet for week; west crosscut from north drive, 24 feet. Yield: No. 1 tribute, 26oz. 8dwt.; No. 3, 3oz. 2dwt.

North Woah Hoap Company, Ballarat East, October 3.—Lower level: Have struck lode in eastern crosscut, and will shortly take out trial crushing from same. Rise connected with winze, which has greatly improved the ventilation. Plenty of stone in sight showing gold. No change in upper level. Will clean up at end of week.

Hepburn Consols Gold-mining Company, October 3.—All the payable wash has been taken out at Nos. 3 and 4 shoots, and in consequence of the gutter being very narrow in our western workings, and the length of time occupied in completing agreement with the Gladstone Company, which caused the reef drive to stand idle for over five weeks, it has been found necessary to discharge 50 men, there being now only three parties blocking at No. 5 shoot. The lay-off in reef drive extends 42 feet for the week; total from No. 5 shoot, 277 feet. Will start to put up a rise in Gladstone Company's property on Monday (to-day).

Ristori West Gold-mining Company, October 3.—No change of consequence in the mine, everything working first-rate. Week's yield, 361oz. 14dwt.

Madame Berry Gold-mining Company, October 3.—No. 1 shaft: The intermediate drive has been extended 26 feet; distance in, 302 feet; reef hard; the drive from rise is not so hard, and better progress is being made. There is nothing special to report in the other parts of the mine. No. 2 shaft: The chamber has been extended 24 feet; distance in, 60 feet; the liners are all in and the plat laid. A balance shaft will be put up at 90 feet in from main shaft. Week's yield, 685oz. 15dwt.

Bell's Freehold Gold-mining Company, October 3.—North gutter drive in 160 feet, with strong wash. East crosscut in hard cement, which requires shooting. West crosscut carries good wash. Have tried this ground separately during the week, with very satisfactory results. Will start driving from the new rise on Monday. South reef drive extended 46 feet for week. Will start to rise here in a few weeks. Yield, 67oz. 12dwt.

Australasian and Eaglehawk Gold-mining Company, October 3.—Reef drive extended 26 feet, rise up 17 feet; poppet legs up, and a good deal of machinery on the ground. The contractors have had bad weather to contend with during the fortnight, which made progress slow. All work now stopped below for erection of machinery.

North Australasian Gold-mining Company, October 3.—Extended the south-east reef drive 24 feet for three days; total distance from starting point, 364 feet. Have been cutting down the bottom and laying down a permanent road. There is no change in the blocking faces worthy of note. Yield for week, 107oz. 9dwts.

Australasian Extended Gold-mining Company, October 3.—South reef drive extended 24 feet for week, and the north drive 58 feet. There is not any noticeable change in the washdirt faces. Week's yield, 34oz. 5dwt.

New Australasian Gold-mining Company, October 3.—No. 2 shaft: There is no improvement in the ground opened during the past week. No. 3 shaft: The rise constructed for the eastern slope (mentioned in last week's report) broke into a good-looking wash with fair prospects of gold; drive from prospecting rise south still in a barren country. No change in other parts of the mine. Yield: No. 2 shaft, 28oz.; No. 3 ditto, 119oz. 10dwt.: total, 147oz. 10dwt.

Berry Consols Gold-mining Company, October 3.—Started sinking second cylinder on Monday afternoon, the timber of big shaft to cut on one side the whole depth to landing on timber of small shaft at 10½ feet; have since sunk 2½ feet in small shaft—total depth, 13 feet. Are now engaged cementing bottom of second cylinder to keep the sand and water from coming in whilst the bottom lock is being put on.

Victory Gold-mining Company, Limited, Charters Towers, Queensland, October 3.—"Victory obtained 42oz. from final cleaning up, making a total yield of 1404oz. from 427 tons stone."

Great Central Copper-mining Company, Limited.—For September:—In Hodge's shaft the stopes above and below the 20 feet level have turned out a good lot of sulphide ore this month; about 80 tons. The tributors have relinquished their pitch in the air shaft. In the corner shaft, 25-fathom level south, a hard horse of mullock has nearly filled the lode, leaving only a small branch of ore either side; the other parts are looking well. Ore raised during the month, 235 tons; smelted, 289 tons, making copper metal equal to 42 tons; fine copper despatched, 30 tons.

Victoria Silver-mining Company, Limited, September 25.—"Since my last report have extended the tunnel an additional 8 feet, making total distance 123 feet. The country has been very hard, but in the last three feet driven there is a great change for the better, a few quartz leaders coming in, the country now being easier to work, and heavily charged with pyrites."

The Great Western Silver-mining Company, Limited, Sunny Corner, Mitchell, October 3.—The tunnel has been extended a further distance of 2 feet with one shift of men, making a total distance of the main tunnel of 502 feet. The rock is about the same as last reported, with round mundic balls and mineral through it. In the winze sinking is being carried on to cut No. 1 lode, and a further distance of 9 feet has been sunk with two shifts of men, making a depth of the winze of 15 feet. On No. 2 lode 10 tons of galena ore have been raised with two shifts of men, making a total of 125 tons of ore in paddock to date. A survey of this mine has been completed by Mr. Surveyor E. S. Nixon.

The Silver King Mining Company, Limited, Sunny Corner, 6th October:—"I have driven south from the winze a distance of 11ft. The drive is in the lode, which is principally black mineral; but there is gossan ore to the west of the drive. It is impossible to tell the width of this lode until a crosscut east and west has been made. South drive, timber is being put in to enable to block out east and west when necessary. Outside work,—the top floor is being laid, and the reservoir has been dug out, and about half the opening round the dams is completed. Water in the dams is within a foot of the bye-wash in both dams."

The following is a return of copper received at Darling Harbour station for the week ending September 26:—From Orange: 146 ingots, 8 tons.

FLEMINGTON TRAINING NOTES.

MELBOURNE, TUESDAY.

This morning, at Flemington, St. Odille and Doncaster went for a spin of seven furlongs in fast time, and Kit Nubbles did a couple of useful rounds on the sand track in clothing. Old Commotion was early at work on the tan, and went slowly, and Chatsworth did some useful work. Then Trenton ran a strong mile and a-half, pulling up well, and Sardius went twice over the same distance. Liverpool went slowly by himself, when he was joined by Thunderbolt and Winchester, and the three did a strong gallop, going over the last mile in 1 minute 54 seconds, in which Winchester appeared to have a shade the best of the argument. Prince Imperial went twice round the sand track at a rattling pace, and Ravensworth made a similar run. Philip Augustus, along with Tamarisk, started off at a half pace, and wound up with a quarter of a mile spurt. The first named is without doubt the biggest and best finished two-year-old that is training at Flemington. Acme and Brigantine followed with some useful work, whilst Anchorite, after going slowly, improved to three-quarter pace. The Agent cantered slowly, and The Israelite, after going for a while at half speed, was then sent once round pretty fast. Oudeis and Vanguard moved slowly, and Perchance did some sound work. Uralla went slowly, whilst Nordenfeldt and Despot in company did the circle at full speed to wind up with. Monte Christo, Tempe, and Percussion cantered, after which they broke into a strong gallop, Percussion tailing off before the finish. Two minutes and 39½ seconds was the time taken for the round. Chuckster did a fast mile, the time recorded being 1 minute and 51 seconds. Helene and Signor after a slow beginning ran home at top speed. Plausible and The Trawler did some good work. Islander and Jocular went fast, and Medea did strong work. Sternaway went for a spin of two miles, Agatha bringing him home. St. John and Country Boy did a couple of miles at top pace, making 2 minutes and 39 seconds for the last round; and Coronet performed a strong gallop in his customary brilliant style. Madelina and Repose struck out for a fast half-mile, which was done in a shade over 52 seconds. The Bey worked on the tan track, and Alpha and Trojan covered half a mile in 54 seconds. Waiting Miss went slowly on the sand track, followed by Opal. Kenneth was sent for a strong half-mile with Alphabet on the tan. Hawthorne, Ritawa, and Wymerie cantered on the sand track; and Curiosity did some long, steady work. Lord Wilton went slowly. Amongst the others that worked before breakfast were Mia Cara, Brinkman, Mainsail, and Bonheur, and the course track was occupied by Acolyte and St. Lawrence, who did two rounds at their best pace. Lesbia did half-pace work, and Distiller and the Riot Colt practised over the hurdles. First Consul and Anita did mild work, and Utopia with Damocles went a fast half-mile in good style. Middlemarch covered a mile in fast time over the tan track. In the afternoon The Pencil galloped a mile and a half on the course, attended by Bon Bon over the first two-thirds of the journey. Ringmaster and Lucky Hit did a fast mile, while Off Colour and First Prince did a useful gallop.

At Caulfield Grace Darling did a preliminary canter and then a fast round. Vision performed similar work. Waverley was kept bowling along. Blink Bonney and Hippogriff worked together slowly, and were then taken to the end of the straight and started off for a rattling mile and a half gallop. The horse was allowed to have his way to the turn for home, but thereafter last year's Cup winner had the best of it, pulling up as sound as a bell. The mare afterwards cantered. Robin and Umberto did medium work on the sand track together, when the latter wound up his morning's work with a fast spurt. Mozart went the Cup distance, Highland Chief falling in at the mile-post, and making the pace hot. Astronomer and Rosicrucian strode along the sand track, and Melodious went once round strongly. Velocipede came out, piloted by Young Bence, and expectations of something out of the common were amply realised, for the Queenslander started off at a strong pace, and were joined at the mile by Chandos, and Eleanus at the five-furlong post; when fairly into the final run home, the Cup horse had it all his own way, covering the last six furlongs in one minute 22½ seconds. After this sensation a solo by Louis, and some useful work was done by Plympton. Master John went briskly over a half-mile. Peeping Tom, Master Pinetop, Idle Boy, and Oculist bowled along the sand track. Defrauder and Clansman began with a canter, and spurted for half-a-mile, whilst Bonnie Belle and Gadfly did the same kind of work. Eagle Grange, who only arrived from Sydney yesterday, was only asked to canter. Camerine, Dulcet, and Manxman II. cantered together, and then parted for a fast half-mile. Bohemian only worked slowly on the sand track. Lando did some useful work, winding up with a smart mile. Primus finished by running home the last four furlongs at a brisk pace. Grey Ashton, General Jackson, and The Stag did sound work. Too Too went round the circle at his best pace, whilst Orlando and Mossface went a fast five furlongs. Salvo, Mabel Grey, and Ishmael covered the same length on the track, Promise, Berta, and Here Goes doing a similar amount of work. Ditto went twice round, winding up with a spurt.

THE VICTORIAN TURF.

MELBOURNE, TUESDAY.

A sensation was caused in the betting market to-day by the introduction of Velocipede for the Caulfield Cup, who was backed for all the money in the market from 100 to 7 down to 10 to 1, on the strength of his gallop to-day. Late at night a commission was put into the market about Liverpool for the Melbourne Cup, all the available money at 20 to 1 being appropriated on the colt, and he left off at 100 to 6. The following are the prices:—Caulfield Cup: 10 to 1 v. Velocipede, 12 to 1 each v. Lord Exeter and Helene; 20 to 1 each v. The Andes, Claptrap, Gratitude; 25 to 1 v. St. Lawrence, St. John, Marie Louise; 33 to 1 v. Grace Darling, Vision. V. R. C. Derby: 100 to 30 v. Nordenfeldt, 8 to 1 v. Dunlop, First Chester; 10 to 1 v. Monte Christo, Thunderbolt; 100 to 6 v. TWEED RIVER RACING CLUB.

MURWILLUMBAH, TUESDAY.

A meeting of the committee of the Tweed River Racing Club was held last evening, to draw up a programme for the forthcoming annual races, which take place on the 26th December. Mr. Wardrop, vice-president, occupied the chair. The following programme was adopted:—Handicap, of £75; Maiden Plate, £25; Hack Selling Race, £15; Corinthian Stakes, for amateur riders, £12; Flying Handicap, £20; and Consolation Stakes, £10. The nominations for the handicap close on November 11, and the handicap will be declared on the 17th November. The night of general entry has been fixed for December 23. It was decided that the full programme be advertised in the Sydney Mail of 16th and 30th October, and also in the Queenslander and local papers. The committee are sanguine of success, and subscription lists are being rapidly filled up. The racecourse is to be improved, and nothing will be left undone to attract visitors and horses from distances. The first meeting on the Tweed River was held last year, when there was a £40 handicap; on this occasion it is £75, and next year the committee hope to increase it to £100. It will thus be seen that sporting is obtaining a firm hold among the residents of the Tweed River, which hitherto has been regarded as being almost outside of civilisation.

The Grosvenor C. C. journeyed to Leichhardt Park last Saturday to try conclusions with the Leichhardt Victors, but were defeated, after a splendidly-contested game, by 2 wickets and 16 runs. The Grosvenors went in first, and scored 49, mainly due to the good bowling of Clement and Seale, backed up by the splendid fielding of the Vics., Carloss (12) being top scorer. The Vics. then went in, and at the call of time had lost 8 wickets for 65, H. Langley (18, not out), J. Hughes (12), and C. Parker (10) being the chief contributors. Moss and Carloss bowled well for the losers, while the fielding was first-class.

A cricket match, the ex-scholars of Blackfriars Public school v. present, was played on Moore Park on Friday last, which resulted in a victory for the former by 3 wickets and 5 runs. The following are the scores:—Ex-scholars, first innings, 16, and second, 3 wickets for 79; present, first, 28, second, 56. Graham (49) not out and Cunningham (12) batted well for the winners, while Chandler and Nicholas did likewise for the losers.

PARRAMATTA ROWING CLUB.

The three final heats for the Parramatta Rowing Club's maiden double scull race were rowed on Saturday afternoon, and notwithstanding the Rosehill races, attracted a fair number of spectators. Two out of the three events were exceedingly well contested, and the greatest excitement prevailed when the final heat was rowed. In the first contest Messrs. Watt and Hagan were beaten rather easily by Messrs. Davey and Dalton. A very exciting race took place between Messrs. Lovell and Tunks and Messrs. Quinn and Wickham in the second contest; but after a very close contest the former won. The final contest saw a great struggle for the supremacy, but Messrs. Lovell and Tunks were visibly affected by their exertions in the previous race, and although they held a slight lead for about half the distance they were eventually defeated by Dalton and Davey. Two fouls occurred during the race, and in the second the losers stopped rowing, allowing their opponents to gain a good lead, which they never recovered. The umpire gave his decision against the losing boat for taking the other crew's water. A steam launch, conveying the press representatives and a number of the friends of the members of the club, followed each race, while the umpire watched the contests from a four-oared gig. A very pleasant afternoon was spent, and the first race organised by the club was a success in every respect. Immediately after the event the competitors assembled in the club's shed, where the trophies were presented to the winners by the donor, Mr. W. J. Ferris, and the proceedings concluded with cheers for that gentleman and the competitors.

LECTURE.

Last Saturday evening the weekly popular lecture was given, at the School of Arts, Pitt-street, by Mr. W. M. Foote, who chose for his subject "A trip from Dresden to Constantinople and Athens." Following his usual course he arranged his lecture on the lines of a "personally conducted tour," illustrating it by some 50 lantern slides of great beauty. Starting at Dresden, the capital of Saxony, the fine view of that famous city obtained from the Marien railway bridge over the Elbe was much admired, and several places of interest in the city were inspected and explained. Prague was the next city visited, where among other sights a beautiful picture of the Hradshin was shown. Then came Vienna, an der schönen blauen Donau, and here the splendid Gothic cathedral of St. Stephan excited admiration. The new R. C. Cathedral of Westminster is to be a copy of this. Schoenbrunn, the Imperial Viennese suburb, was then visited, and thence the party was conducted through Ratisbon, Nuremberg, Stuttgart, Munich, and Saltzberg. In the latter town the beautiful statue erected to the immortal Mozart was shown. The Tyrolese Alps were next reached, and the great Oetzthal Glacier was explored, after which Innspruch (the capital of Tyrol) was visited. A lengthy trip brought the party down to Athens, and both the modern city and the ancient ruins were inspected. By a short sea trip Constantinople was reached, and the lecturer explained how groundless in his opinion were many of the wild alarms about Russia and Constantinople, as England, by seizing the Dardanelles at the south end of the Sea of Marmora, could effectually checkmate her enemy if the latter seized the Bosphorus. Next Saturday Mr. Foote will lecture on "Heroes of History" (illustrated), giving an account of the Knights of Malta and the famous Knights Templar.

AMUSEMENTS.

THEATRES, &c.

To-night, at the Theatre Royal, Mr. Dion Boucicault will take his farewell of the Sydney public, after a season which has been satisfactory to himself and the management, and delightful to theatre-goers. "The Jilt" will be played, and the author will appear in his own creation, Myles O'Hara. To-morrow night a comic opera season will be inaugurated by the revival of the "Pirates of Penzance," with a splendid cast. Miss Alice Rees, who intends shortly to leave Australia, will be Mabel; Miss Alice Barnett will play Ruth, a part written specially to suit her capabilities; Mr. Howard Vernon, who has just recovered from a severe accident, will play the Major-General; and Mr. Frank Boyle will be Frederick. The other parts are judiciously allotted; and Mr. George Gordon has painted entirely new scenery for this revival.

"It's Never Too Late to Mend" was witnessed by a large and appreciative audience last night at the Gaiety Theatre. "The Sunny South," at the Opera House, was, as usual, a success. The Federal Minstrels, at the Academy of Music, pleased a crowded house. The clever company of singers, dancers, and comedians at the Olympic made another hit; and at the Alhambra Music Hall the performance was well attended, and much enjoyed.

MISS PLAISTED'S BENEFIT.

During many months lately Miss Gracie Plaisted has charmed lovers of opera bouffe by her performances at the Opera House, and so it is not surprising that her farewell benefit, given yesterday afternoon at the Theatre Royal, was well attended. The programme was a long one, but the little prima donna contributed but a small share to it—somewhat to the disappointment of the audience. She sang that rather pathetic ballad "Daddy," and at its close was rewarded with a profusion of flowers; and later on played the name part in the well-known farce "Nan, the Good-for-Nothing," in which her natural arch humour and vivacity found full scope, and kept the audience laughing from the first scene to the last. Miss Plaisted is a charming singer and a clever comedienne, and her departure from Sydney will be regretted by all theatre-goers. Miss Myra Kemble, who has been too long absent from the stage, appeared in the comedietta "Written in Sand," and was heartily applauded for her performance. She was supported by Miss Jenny Watt-Tanner, Mr. Titheradge, Mr. Fleming, and Mr. Vincent, and with such a cast the little play went perfectly. Miss Agnes Thomas recited with great effect "Papa's Letter"; Mr. Bent delivered one of his characteristic lectures on astronomy, the subject being "The Field of Mars"; Mr. Charles Huenerbein played a pianoforte solo with great taste; and Mr. Charles Harding sang "The Death of Nelson" well.

THE SYDNEY LIEDERTAFEL.

The Sydney Liedertafel will to-night have one of their pleasant smoke concerts. These entertainments are greatly appreciated, and though no one for a moment questions the gallantry of the members, or doubts the satisfaction with which they regard the assemblage of ladies at their social evenings, yet it is undeniable that on smoke nights there is an unwonted air of ease and geniality. The programme is not yet published. There are, however, many items of interest—some new part songs, a pianoforte solo by M. Kowalski, and solos by members of the society. The fact of this being the last Liedertafel concert which will be conducted by Herr Vogrich will invest it with a special charm. The concert will be given in the Exhibition-building.

Last evening, in the Baptist Church, Hill-street, Leichhardt, Messrs. Davies and Cole gave a very interesting lecture, illustrated with dissolving views, entitled "Jane Conquest," concluding with a very laughable piece, entitled "The plague of my life, or a lady in search of a servant." The above was given in connection with the Leichhardt Excelsior Band of Hope, and was much enjoyed by all present. The committee anticipate a visit at a future date from the above gentlemen.

THE SUNKEN ROCK NEAR CLEFT ISLAND.

(From the Special Reporter of the Melbourne Age.)

It will be a source of satisfaction, not only to Captain Thomson's personal friends, but also to the owners of the Gulf of Carpentaria, and all those who go down to the sea in ships, to learn that the evidence given at the inquiry arising out of the loss of that vessel has been substantiated, the soundings taken by Captain Anderson, of the Despatch, which returned to Williamstown yesterday morning, proving the existence of a dangerous and hitherto unsuspected rock, almost exactly in the position indicated by the witnesses to the disaster. The Despatch left this port on Thursday afternoon, having on board, besides her commander, Captain Thomson, the person of all others most qualified to give information to guide the search; Captain Banner, master of Sir W. J. Clarke's yacht Janet, and Mr. Marshall, of the Harbour Trust, representing the syndicate who have purchased the wreck and cargo. On arriving off Cleft Island, at daybreak on Friday, the weather was so dirty that Captain Anderson decided upon proceeding to Cliffy Island lighthouse, 17 miles north-east of Wilson's Promontory, to land stores, returning thence to the Promontory station for the like purpose, as well as to report himself and lie to leeward of the land till the gale moderated. The lighthouse at Cliffy is very difficult of access, and in rough weather landing stores there is an operation of some risk, the lift of the sea frequently raising the boat with violence against the slung sacks or boxes, which are liable to fall out and tumble into the sea, or on the men in the boat underneath. When landed, however late at night it may be, they must be at once carried up to the lighthouse, there being no shed at the landing place for their temporary accommodation, and a night's exposure to rough weather would ruin them utterly. The only communication with Wilson's Promontory is afforded by hoisting drum and cone signals, which cannot be seen 17 miles off in even slightly thick weather, and a cable or submarine telephone to that point would be a great boon to the little community on Cliffy Island. After making Wilson's Promontory the gale freshened considerably, and there was nothing for it but to lie there or in Refuge Cove till matters mended, for all surveying was out of the question. The following morning (Saturday) the weather had moderated, the wind still blowing from the S.W., and a heavy swell rolling in from the same quarter. Taking up the course followed by the Gulf of Carpentaria before she struck, the Despatch steamed between the North and South Ansers, and when a little more than half a mile to the north of Cleft Island a buoy was anchored on the spot indicated by Captain Thomson. Then, bearing up to windward, the steamer was headed towards the main land, and, the way being taken off her, she was allowed to fall into the trough of the sea, and drift in the direction of the buoy, and more particularly towards a spot where the waves seemed to be topping. Hardly had she passed this when a big roller curled and broke abaft her, its crest rising to the mainsail boom, and completely pooping the vessel and deluging the quarter deck. The two men and officer at the wheel had a narrow escape of being swept overboard, and an observer who accompanied the expedition only avoided a soused guernsey by a timely and undignified retreat behind the cover of the cabin companion. Had the wave broken a little closer it would have swept the whole steamer from stern to stem. No further evidence being required, the Despatch was put about, and soundings were carefully taken, showing a patch of rock, more or less circular in form, about 100 feet in diameter, 2½ to 6 fathoms from the surface, S. ½ E. from Cleft Island, E. by S. ½ S. from the N.W. point of the south Anser and about 7-10ths of a mile from either bearing. To further assist the navigator it may be stated that the rock is a cable and a quarter or thereabouts N.E. of the sounding marked 14r on Lieutenant Stanley's chart, and that in taking a bearing from it to the large cavern in the west face of Cleft Island, the latter appears in three-quarter profile, i.e., the southern corner can be looked into, but not any other part. The Despatch then proceeded to sound the line taken by the Gulf of Carpentaria when she drifted away. The water rapidly deepened, and as near the spot where she sank as Captain Thomson could indicate the soundings gave 40 fathoms. The bearings taken from the west point of the North Anser and the mainland were carefully noted by Mr. Marshall, with the view of despatching a search craft to the locality so soon as there is a fair promise of settled weather. The Despatch then returned to Wilson's Promontory for orders. Passing under the lee of the South Anser, a few of the geese, once so numerous, which gave their name to the group, were seen among the cliffs, and on rounding the north-east point of the island a wonderful sight presented itself. In the water were a dozen dusky mermaids immersed below the waist, and a large steep pent-house-shaped rock was completely invisible from the seals basking on its surface. On sounding the whistle a most ludicrous scene ensued, old and young, big and little, waddling down with great precipitation into the sea, like the porcine energoumenoi in the New Testament. Nor was the herd confined to the sunny rock, for from every crevice and cranny, some high up in the cliff, came pouring forth the alarmed amphibians; some, in their eagerness to get into the safer element, tumbling neck and crop from a considerable elevation. At length the panic abated, the bolder spirits stuck to the rock, and many of those in the water swam out towards the vessel, bleating like so many lambs. No rifles or fowling-pieces were on board; nor if they had been would they have been used for so cruel and unsportsmanlike a purpose as to wound and maim inoffensive creatures, which probably could not have been killed, and certainly could not have been retrieved. The presence of so large a number of piscivorous phocæ on these islands gives rise to some practical considerations. The number seen by the Despatch was variously estimated at from 600 to 1000; and, as the South Anser is by no means their only habitat, it is not too much to say that the group contains fully 1000 adult seals, consuming from two to three tons of fish per diem. To develop a healthy and profitable fishing industry off Wilson's Promontory only a market is required, and this is close to hand in Melbourne; for the catch resulting from the deep sea trawling and seringeing in Refuge Cove and other bays, would, if packed in hampers as soon as taken, shipped in a refrigerated chamber and despatched at 10 a.m., arrive in Melbourne in capital condition, and in good time for the following morning's market. The seals might then be asked to seek other happy hunting grounds, which they soon would do if persecuted; but unless their skins and oil can be saved it would be cruel to wage war upon them merely for slaughter's sake. Her mission thus happily accomplished, Captain Anderson announced its result to the Customs department so soon as he got back to Wilson's Promontory, and orders being received in reply to return to Melbourne, the Despatch was at once headed for that port which she reached shortly after 7 a.m. on Sunday.

NOTES EXPLANATORY OF MAP.

In the list of stations the column headed W.T. gives the state of the weather at 9 a.m., b standing for blue sky; c. detached clouds; d, drizzling rain; f, fog; g, gloomy; h, hazy; m, misty; n, frosty; o, overcast; p, passing showers; r, rain; s, snow; t, thunder; u, threatening. The next column, M'x gives the maximum temperature for previous 24 hours. M'n the corresponding minimum temperature; r'n, the rain for the previous 24 hours. The symbols used in the map are explained on the margin. At each coast station the wind symbol is placed like a vane pointing to the direction from which the wind is coming. A clear circle with it means fine weather; a circle with bar, cloudy weather, and a black spot, raining. Next to this symbol are placed figures denoting the number of miles the wind is moving per hour; next, a symbol showing the state of the sea, and, lastly, figures denoting the shade temperature at 9 a.m. The barometer curve shows the state of barometers round the coast from Perth to Cooktown:—Pt, Perth; Ay, Albany; Es, Eucla; CB, Cape Borda; A, Adelaide; Re, Robe; P, Portland; M, Melbourne; W P, Wilson's Promontory; Go, Gabo; E, Eden; Ma, Moruya; C G Jervis Bay; Wg, Wollongong; S, Sydney; N, Newcastle; P M, Port Macquarie; C, Clarence River; B, Brisbane; R, Rockhampton; Ct, Cooktown. Inland the state of barometer is given in figures at Albury, Deniliquin, Wentworth, Menindie, Bourke, and Alice Springs. The barometer curve enables one at a glance to trace the depressions, beginning with Western Australia, and passing along eastwards; northerly winds preceding them, and southerly following.

Western Australia.—Fine and clear, light variable winds and calms, sea moderate. Rainfall—Albany, 0·25; Esperance Bay, 0·08.

South Australia reports weather generally dull; winds, N.E. to N.W., fresh; hot inland to Peake, moderate sea, steady barometers, and fresh N. wind on coast. No rain. Sultry and hot in southern parts.

COMMERCIAL.

PRODUCE MARKET.—TUESDAY.

There was a good attendance of the trade at Darling Harbour sales this morning. Good supplies of forage and wood were offered. The quality of forage forward was a little better than of late, and consequently the market exhibited more animation, but prices of all descriptions remain unaltered. Owing to buyers being amply stocked, the demand for all descriptions of wood was sluggish. On the wharfs a moderate supply was received, principally from the Northern and Southern rivers. Business was moderately active. Maize ruled firm, but other lines show no material change, operations being chiefly confined to potatoes, maize, onions, and dairy produce. At Darling Harbour sales the following prices were realised:—

Wood.—Large market, but sales of all descriptions were sluggish at per ton:—Billet-wood, 9s to 12s; bundle, 12s to 15s; foot, 11s to 14s; bakers', 11s to 12s 6d.

Hay.—Large supplies, comprising two days' sales. Market was more animated than of late, and buyers' demands were chiefly noticeable for prime qualities, which were well competed for, whilst other sorts sold fairly. Prices unaltered. Oaten, in bundles, 3s 4d to 5s per cwt.; extra prime lots realised 5s 3d to 5s 9d; bales, 3s 10d to 4s 9d; lucerne, in truss, 1s 11d to 4s 6d; bales, 3s 6d; wheaten, in bundles, 4s; bales, 4s.; oaten and wheaten, in bundles, 4s to 4s 4d.

Straw.—Moderate consignments to hand this morning. Market value unchanged. Clean, in bundles, 2s to 2s 3d per cwt.; rye and oaten hay, in bundles, 2s 10d.

Chaff.—Fair market, quality being better than of late. Competition fairly active at 3s 9d to 5s 1d for oaten in bags; straw, in bags, at 2s 10d.

On the wharfs the following are the wholesale quotations:—

Maize.—Market fairly stocked by late arrivals. Owing to supplies not coming in so freely and with export buyers operating with freedom, there is an indication of a firmer market. Quotations: 3s 9d to 3s 10d per bushel, some holders asking 4s.

Oats.—Ample stocks, and moving off slowly at 2s 3d to 2s 6d per bushel for feed. Exceptional lots of good milling descriptions to 2s 8d. Business for seed restricted, and prices nominal.

Barley.—This market discloses no improvement, but remains inactive. Cape seed nominally worth 3s to 3s 3d per bushel.

Bran.—Supplies equal to the requirements. Quiet sales at 1s 1d to 1s 1½d per bushel.

Pollard working off slowly at 11½d per bushel.

Hay.—Small consignments received from the Hunter River this morning, but still stocks on hand are sufficient for the requirements. Trade was inactive. Prime lucerne to £4 per ton; exceptional lots to £4 5s; other qualities, from £2 5s.

Chaff.—Stocks augmented by 2830 bags from Victoria yesterday. Moving off at £4 10s to £5 per ton.

Onions.—Additions to stocks forward yesterday from Victoria. Selling steadily to £3 10s per ton.

Potatoes.—No fresh arrivals. Market well supplied. Both varieties are moving off at £4 5s. per ton for Circular Head; New Zealand £3 to £3 5s.

Butter.—Stocks replenished from the Southern ports this morning. No change. Standard quotations of Illawarra in keg being 1s 3d per lb.; intercolonial packed, to 1s.

Cheese.—Stocks light and market firm at 8d to 8½d per lb. for colonial; New Zealand to 8d.

Bacon.—Little better demand is experienced at 8d per lb. for hand-cured; machine-cured to 7d; heavy and rough at 6d; hams, 10d to 1s. 1d.

Lard.—Slow of sale, at 6d per lb. for finely rendered in bladders; in bulk from 4d.

Honey.—Good and clear at 4½d to 5d per lb; other sorts from 3½d.

Eggs.—Ample supplies, and selling at 11d t6 1s per dozen.

Poultry.—Supplies coming in a little more freely. All varieties meet with a fair inquiry at per pair—Fowls, 4s to 5s 6d; ducks, to 7s; geese (scarce), quoted to 9s; turkeys, 7s to 14s.

Meat.—The Riverstone Meat Company reports having sold bodies of beef at 2¼d to 3½d per lb., mutton at 1¾d to 2¼d per lb. Average supplies and steady sales. The following are retail prices of beef and mutton:—Joints of beef, 6d to 7d, per lb; mutton, 3d to 4d per lb; veal, 6d per lb.; pork, 8d per lb.; corned beef, 4d to 5d per lb.

HAVE FOR SALE
the well-known
VILLA RESIDENCE LAMSAR,
now occupied by and the property of Mrs. Rotton, situated in
STEWART-STREET, BATHURST.

THE HOUSE
stands on section 77, at nearly one corner of the land, and has a frontage 44 feet by 66 feet deep, is well and faithfully built of brick, and contains 6 rooms, besides kitchen, bathroom, store, and servants' room. The buildings are most complete and fitted with every convenience.

The land consists of 1¼ acre, and is subdivided into 3 portions. It is excellently situated for subdivision into cottage or business sites, and would give 4 lots frontage to Stewart-street, as well as 7 lots frontage to Brilliant-lane.

OUR ST. PETERSBURG LETTER.

ST. PETERSBURG, AUGUST 16.

The indiscreet revelations of the Pall Mall Gazette, which so rudely tore the veil from the face of "hypocritical Albion," are still furnishing now, after a month's time, exhaustless material for the Russian newspapers, the editors of which are delighted to have so fruitful a theme whereupon to work, and give vent to their antipathy for the English aristocracy. The Moscow Gazette, and other organs of the national party, have used this text as a point of departure to fill their columns with anathemas against the corruption of European civilisation, "which traitors and egotists have endeavoured to introduce into Holy Russia!" Then follow comparisons between European and the Russian culture, with a general apotheosis of the Moujik in his most primitive state (vermin and all), and denunciations against the folly of teaching the people to read, reading being the root of all evil, &c., &c. All the threats of Scripture against the sinful cities of old are applied to the modern Babylon, and giving full scope to the Biblical style and pompous jargon of the national triumvirate, their prophetic utterances against the proud, corrupt Queen of the Ocean, ring from the shores of the Baltic to those of the Black Sea.

The Novosti alone has ventured upon a timid remonstrance, suggesting that all these things have been somewhat exaggerated, and that the whole scandal may have originated in the view of compromising some members of the aristocracy. Everywhere depravity has taken exactly the same form, and if anyone were to bring such a spirit of zeal to discover evil in Paris or St. Petersburg there is no doubt that the results would equal if not far transcend those reached by the Pall Mall.

It would be interesting, just to calm the Russian virtuous indignation down a little, to present to the English public some little account of doings in this very same Holy Russia. It would, perhaps, be found that in crimes of this description Russia backward as she is in all other things, could compete with the most civilised nations in the world; and the orthodox cities of St. Petersburg, Moscow, and especially Odessa, if suddenly called to account, would perhaps astonish the world and reveal the existence of "agencies" in comparison to which those discovered by the Pall Mall would dwindle into insignificance.

However bad these things be, public morality can gain nothing by the cynical manner in which they have been published, and however accustomed we may be to the graphic tendencies of French publicists, such articles as those in the Pall Mall, and the innumerable crude and cynical commentaries they have called forth, are revolting to English and American readers.

The Russians follow with uncommon attention the curious sight afforded just at present by party intrigues in England. The Novosti Gazette says:—"The democratic tide rises and rises, as is clearly seen by the fact that to preserve its influence the proud English aristocracy is fain to declare itself in favour of democratic principles. But the very team 'Tory democracy' is a contradiction, and cannot but awaken doubts and be considered as a mask worn for certain purposes. If one looks nearer into the activity of the British Cabinet, this contradiction stands forth in strong evidence. There is no doubt that the English nation evinces strong tendencies towards democracy. The late elections are a proof of that. The mass of the nation begins to obtain a decided influence, and the power of the aristocrats visibly weakens." The Gazette concludes that the promises made by Lord Salisbury are not enough—that the nation will require proofs, actions, and not words. "If the present Cabinet cannot produce such, they sign their own sentence." It would be strange if the famous speech of Lord Salisbury, and the idyllic picture he drew of "Russia and England going hand in hand along the road of progress" had not caused universal laughter in this country, considering all that has gone before, and the noble marquis is compared most irreverently to a certain quadruped with soft purr and velvet paws. In fact, it was rather overdoing it, singing in such dulcet tones just as an alliance with China is contemplated, and perhaps actually contracted. The occupation of Fort Hamilton by the English is a new subject of irritation for Russia, repenting, now that it is too late, not to have taken possession of that place as was proposed a year ago.

On the 15th July the official opening of the Nyni Novgorod Fair took place, according to the invariable custom; but this time the inauguration of the fair was a mere formality, for the greater part of the merchandise destined to figure at it has been kept back for an indefinite time by the shallowness of the Volga, the Kama, Oka, and other rivers, which, on account of this dry weather are at present only navigable in certain places. The oldest inhabitants of that part of Russia do not remember such a tropical summer. All along the banks of the Volga, between Saratoff and Tsaritsen, thousands of freighted barges have been stopped, and await already more than a month the possibility of reaching their destination. The losses consequent upon this delay are incalculable, and business at the fair very slack indeed. The Nyni Gazettes are filled with the most discouraging accounts of this unexpected calamity. In the sands of the Oka alone are millions of roubles' worth of merchandise, baking and rotting in the sun, the owners of which goods (consisting mainly in fish, fruit, and other products of the South) have no hope of getting them to the Fair. The merchants are trying to obtain a lowering of the tariffs on the railroads between the Southern and Western provinces and Moscow. Another circumstance likely to paralyse commerce at the Fair is the recent law forbidding the use of coupons for payment, and permitting only the circulation of bank notes and the coin of the realm.

The fears which have been entertained concerning the results of the harvests have been exaggerated. Things are far from being so discouraging as represented by the accounts of the Russian newspapers, according to which the whole empire is going to rack and ruin. The first part of the yearly account of the "Department of Agriculture" has already appeared in a separate brochure. It gives minute information concerning the state of the crops in all the so-called "grain governments" up to the 15th June. The prolonged cold weather in the spring, from which all the cultivated provinces suffered more or less, the extraordinarily hot and dry summer that followed, the appearance in many localities of destroyers of human labour such a locusts, beetles, divers sorts of flies, &c., have combined to reduce the hopes of cultivators to a rather low ebb, though on the whole the crops will be but a trifle below the average. In the Southern and Western provinces the harvests have been ruined, but in the Central and Northern governments they are unusually fine. The great misfortune is the scarcity of hay, but the continuation of the finest weather we have had for years gives room to hope for an abundant supply, as the grasses are coming up splendidly again; great quantities of wheat and other grain remain from last year. The cattle plague, which was extremely dreaded on account of the scarcity of water, though it occasionally appears, has done much less harm than during the last few years. The great calamity this season is the almost incredible destruction of property by fire. Near Kagan the air is unbreathable from the smell of burning woods. The great Crown possessions, consisting of splendid forests in the Government of Viatsk, have been burning for more than a week, and all over Russia nothing is heard of but these terrible inextinguishable fires. They originate for the most part through accident, a spark from a passing locomotive, or the carelessness of peasants or hunters who bivouac in the woods; it rarely occurs that the heat of the sun occasions these catastrophes, though they are usually explained in this way. No attempt is made to stop the progress of the fire; indeed it would be impossible. As to villages, even whole towns, burn so frequently that it is simply absurd to attribute, all these cases to accident. Since some of the richer moujiks have been persuaded to insure their log huts fires are more frequent than ever, for the innocent, simple creature has hardly ever character enough not to set his hut on fire so as to get a new one out of the insurance companies. It comes natural to him to do so, and it is next to impossible to prove that he has done it on purpose. The thought that by setting fire to his own hut he will burn down those of all his neighbours, who, not being insured, will be reduced to beggary, will not stop him for a moment. Pyromania is more developed in Russia than in any country in the world. The Russian does not seem to realise the enormity of the crime, and the punishment for incendiarism is much too light. The laws in this respect will have to be changed, as those existing are entirely powerless to arrest the progress of this evil, which takes colossal dimensions.

The Emperor and Empress, the heir, and several members of the Imperial family, have just returned from an excursion to Finland, where preparations on quite a grand and magnificent scale for that modest country were made to receive the illustrious guests. However unpopular the Russians may be among the Finns, the latter always make a point of receiving the Imperial family with all the exterior marks of the greatest respect and even enthusiasm. Indeed, for them to belong to Russia is all gain, inasmuch as they have preserved prerogatives and privileges denied to all other conquered lands, and their dependence is simply nominal; at the same time they draw from their position countless advantages. They are an energetic, laborious, honest race of men, and their degree of culture infinitely superior to that of their conquerors. It is impossible not to be struck with it, seeing what these people have made of their stern, rugged, cold fatherland by sheer industry, labour, and economy, and not to compare this Protestant population with their orthodox neighbours. The finances of Finland, even in the midst of the present crisis, are in a comparatively flourishing state; the Finland railroads cost much less and are superior to the Russian; an accident upon them is never heard of, whereas in Russia they are every day occurrences. The commerce and industry of Finland is on a par with that of Sweden and Denmark. Whereas all over Russia wholesale robbery, incendiarism, and murder are the order of the day, in Finland such things are rare exceptions, not so much through the great severity of the Finland laws, as because of the natural honesty and absence of passion which characterise the Finn. Agriculture even upon that barren rocky soil, is in a state to strike envy in the hearts of the inhabitants of fertile Russian provinces. It is impossible that the Emperor of Russia should not ask himself certain questions as he traversed this Duchy of Finland, and mark the prosperity thereof, and should make reflections upon the causes of the difference between these Protestant subjects of his and the masses of orthodox Russia, between the clean, honest, sober peasants, and the illiterate, neglected, much-wronged moujik, whom the Russians in vain seek to idealise, and show to the world as the germ from which is to spring "a new civilisation," eminently national and unmixed with any protesting elements whatever.

The little town of Vilmanstrand was decked out in garlands to receive their Majesties. Not a house but was festooned with verdure, interspersed with flowers, flags streamed from every window, arches of triumph were erected on the road, in short all the usual means of expressing universal joy and content were put in requisition. At Helsingfors the prettiest, tidiest, and neatest town imaginable, the Emperor made a review of the "army," and visited the fortress of Sweaborg now quite a strong place, and furnished with the best modern artillery. Their Majesties were present at a concert of the Finland Musical Society, in which the natives showed what they can do in a vocal point of view, and acquainted their illustrious guests with the national music, which is not without originality and character, and which, in the really excellent execution of the Helsingfors students, and several aggregate choirs from divers musical societies, made a very good effect. At all the dinners, regattas, balls, &c., given by the Finlanders to their Sovereign, there was an entire absence of official etiquette. It was a sort of pleasure-party. The Empress was dressed in the simplest of summer costumes, in which she looked remarkably young and pretty. She seemed to enjoy herself extremely, and to take the most lively and unfeigned interest in everything that went on. Perhaps she found herself more at home in a Protestant land than in Russia. The enthusiasm of the usually grave, sedate Finns knew no bounds; it seemed as if such a near sight of royalty had turned the heads of the whole population. The police could not prevent the crowd from coming right under the windows of the house where the Emperor had stopped, and his Majesty from an open window, seeing the struggle of the police with the many-headed, himself ordered the ropes intended to keep the people at a distance to be taken away. As the first rope was removed, such a roar of applause burst from the crowd as was rarely heard in that quiet place. The crowd, however, did not abuse the permission to stare, but kept within the limits of propriety, and gave no further trouble to the police, who in Finland generally lead quiet lives, and occupy posts which are sinecures.

The Empress received all the ladies of the aristocracy of Helsingfors and Wiborg with her usual winning grace, and talked familiarly with some of them. Their Majesties returned to Petersburg on the 31st July, and intend to stay there till the end of the summer.

On the 18th July a violent storm caused countless disasters in the vicinity of Moscow, and in that city itself. During 20 minutes the whirlwind lifted such a dust that at 2 p.m. it became as dark as night. The lightning fell upon the highest tower of the Kremlin, the famous Ivan Veliki, causing great damage to the tower itself, two columns of which are broken, as well as to all the rest of this antique edifice. The iron plates were torn from the roof of the Nicholas tower by the violence of the hurricane, and the flight of stone steps in the interior of it has been destroyed. The roof of the large theatre was also partly carried off. Innumerable less important edifices have been seriously damaged, though this catastrophe has been attended with little loss of human life, if the official accounts of it be true. The fact of the Kremlin having been struck by lightning is considered by the people as a bad omen, and has made a strong impression, not only upon the mass, but even upon cultivated persons of a religious cast of mind. In this country religion is almost always allied to superstition.

A singular personage lately caused a certain turmoil among religious sects. In the time when Pashkoff was permitted to preach and explain the Bible to the people, the proprietor of an estate in the government of Kieff, a certain D. (I have forgotten his name) went over to this sect, and when Pashkoff was exiled from Russia, and forced to give up preaching Protestantism to orthodox Christians, D. declared himself one of his disciples, and retired into some remote part of the interior to continue the propaganda of his Master. At first he had a good deal of success, and the peasants and common people followed him about, and eagerly listened to his preaching, for he knew how to address the moujiks in language familiar to them, and had a great deal to say to the women; but when he beheld himself the centre of an admiring crowd, D. thought he would go a little further, and declared that he was not a simple mortal, but a prophet, and that he could heal the sick. He did cure two or three people, and prophesied certain things which came true, so that his fame spread far and wide, and his influence became considerable. Even the priest of the place where he chose to display his activity, being himself as superstitious as the rest of his flock, pretended to shut his eyes to what went on. The power of D. growing every day, he was soon emboldened to declare that he was not only a prophet, but the Apostle Peter returned upon earth. Even this was credited by the majority of the new sect, and there is no saying who or what he would have become had it not been for his weakness for the fair sex. He declared that man may have but one wife, but that he had the right to have four legitimate wives, whom he might change as often as he chose. This did not suit the fathers and husbands, a scandal ensued, and the whole thing reached the ears of the archimandrite of a neighbouring town. D. was arrested, tried for sacrilege, and condemned to exile in Siberia; but his advocate got him off under plea of his evident insanity. He was shut up in an asylum, from which he escaped, and he is now preaching in another government, where he personates no longer the Apostle Peter, but the Messiah himself. What is striking in all this is the degree superstition reaches among the people that can enable such personages to find disciples and followers. It is not unlikely that D. is a perfectly sane man, a clever exploiter of human weakness and superstition. There are thousands of such adventurers who live upon the credulity and generosity of the poor moujiks.

The Russian spiritualist, Mme. Blavatsky (Radda Bay), who has passed many years in India, where she edits a periodical upon spiritualism and the modern psychological wonders of mediumism, &c., has been forced to leave that country. The sympathies of this lady on the Afghan question being naturally on the side of the Russians she did not take the trouble to conceal the fact; quite the reverse. The consequences were that she was politely requested to leave the British possessions, and, as she persisted in staying, she was submitted to a series of petty annoyances, which gradually assumed a serious character. The rumour reached her that she would shortly be arrested; she then thought it wiser to retreat, and left India on board a French vessel, which carried her in safety to Naples. The newspaper which states this fact adds:—"In Russia, where it is quite common to be persecuted for religious or political opinions, such a fact would appear natural, but happening in India it only shows to what a degree the British Government fear the east influence, however trifling, over their Indian subjects, and how unsteady they feel the Indian soil beneath their feet."

INTERCOLONIAL ITEMS.

The Rev. Dr. Roseby, Congregational minister at Dunedin, has received a unanimous call from the congregation of Dawson-street Congregational Church, Ballarat. The Ballarat Courier reports that the rev. gentleman preached lately for three Sundays in the Dawson-street church, and pleased the congregation greatly by his theological views and logical powers. Dr. Roseby is about 40 years of age and a native of Sydney. If the rev. gentleman accepts the call, it is the intention of the congregation to build a parsonage at a cost of over £1000 for him and his family to reside in.

Electrical disturbances and atmospheric phenomena (says the Warrnambool Standard) have been characteristic of the past fortnight. One night last week a meteor of extraordinary brilliancy, completely outshining the bright effulgence of the moon, was observed to dart across the heavens and fall in the direction of Belfast, and from that direction we received information that a meteorite had fallen. A similar aerial messenger made its appearance on Tuesday night, shortly after 12 o'clock. The meteor took its flight nearly from the zenith, dropping out of the sky in the shape of a perfect ball of fire.

The report of the hydraulic engineer on the Barossa water scheme, laid before the South Australian House of Assembly last Wednesday says:—"The proposed reservoir will be capable of distributing 6,500,000,000 gals. per annum over the country from Adelaide to the northern portion of Yorke's Peninsula, and supposing the whole of the water can be disposed of at the average rate of 1s. per 1000 gallons for domestic supply, and 3d. per 1000 for irrigation, a revenue of £163,375 will accrue, representing 5 per cent. on a capital of £3,250,000 sterling. In other words, if the supply to Yorke's Peninsula and the distributing works for irrigation absorbed an additional £1,000,000, the sale of the water available at the above rates would produce an annual income sufficient to pay 5 per cent. interest on the capital sunk and £78,000 for maintenance and sinking fund, &c.

The Government of Victoria have determined to take in hand some portion of the recommendations contained in the second progress report of the Royal Commission on Water Supply. The formation of irrigation trusts will be proceeded with. On these trusts, both the shires and the irrigating landholders will be represented, and they will exercise jurisdiction within boundaries determined according to the natural conditions of drainage areas. The Department of Water Supply will be empowered to frame regulations for the control and distribution of water within these areas, and to act as a court of appeal on all questions of moment arising in regard to them.

The following (says the South Australian Register) is a copy of the document to be posted throughout America concerning the arrest of the defaulting public trustee, H. A. Wood, and his accomplice, Kate Lowry, alias Burnett:—"5000 dollars reward is offered by the South Australian Government for the arrest of Henry Alfred Wood and Kate Lowry, alias Burnett (or for the arrest of the first named alone), who absconded from Adelaide, South Australia, early in June last, travelling as Mr. and Mrs. Woodforde. They are charged on warrant with forging and uttering a cheque for the amount of 33,000 dollars. Description as follows:—Wood—Age, about 50 years; height, 5 feet 7 inches; stoutish build, dark sandy hair, moustache, and whiskers (shaved on chin); slovenly appearance, stutters very much. Lowry—Age, about 28 years; height, 5 feet 2 inches; fair complexion, light brown hair inclined to red, gray eyes; stylish appearance; expert dressmaker; has false teeth."

Shortly after 7 o'clock on Friday evening the Theatre Royal, Brisbane, had a narrow escape from destruction by fire. Behind the door of one of the ladies' dressing rooms on the stage (says the Courier) two silk dresses were hanging. On the door being thrown back these came in contact with a lighted gas-jet and a small sheet of flame was the immediate result. One of the young ladies of the chorus happened at this moment to enter the dressing-room, and seeing the door on fire at once gave the alarm. The flames were instantly subdued, but not before the dresses had been nearly destroyed, and a portion of the door burnt. Several nights ago two ostrich feathers which adorned the hat of one of Major-General Stanley's daughters were destroyed in a similar manner.

The Argus of Monday states that "The Presbyterian Church of Victoria is about to lose another of its ministers. At the close of the morning service at Chalmers Church on Sunday, before the benediction was pronounced, the pastor, the Rev. Robert Scott, M.A., announced that he intended to tender his resignation to the presbytery, at its meeting in November, with the view of returning to Scotland. The announcement took the congregation completely by surprise. We understand that the rev. gentleman's reason for resigning is his disapproval, often expressed, of the spirit manifested by the majority of the Melbourne Presbytery, which tends, as he believes, to bring the Presbyterian Church into conflict with the non-churchgoing portion of the community, and with the Christian Church at large; and that having been led to understand that his presence in the presbytery was regarded by the majority as a hindrance to the peace of the Church, he feels it his duty to retire. Having been desirous of taking a part in the public work of the Church, Mr. Scott feels keenly the fact that for the last year he has been consistently excluded from every committee. Ever since he objected to the procedure of the presbytery regarding the Rev. Charles Strong, some three years ago, he feels that he has been subjected to great annoyance and complaint from many members of that body, and he regards their attitude towards him as an indication that his presence is distasteful to them. The Rev. Mr. Scott was called to the charge of Chalmers Church some five years ago, and left one of the leading churches in Glasgow in order to accept it. At the conclusion of the service on Sunday morning the announcement made by the pastor was discussed among some of the members, and a deputation to Mr. Scott to dissuade from resigning was suggested. It was decided, however, to leave the matter for the present in the hands of the church committee.

The lumpers belonging to the Lumpers' Union at Dunedin, Port Chalmers, Lyttelton, and Wellington have struck work. The strike so far has caused but little inconvenience, as sufficient labour has been available. The Tongariro took from Port Chalmers to Wellington the non-union men who discharged her at the former port, and they will also go with her to Lyttelton. The three shipping companies—the Shaw-Saville and Albion, the New Zealand, and the Union—decided on a uniform rate for all ports—namely, 1s. 3d. per hour for daywork, 2s. per hour for nightwork, and a special rate for coal work."

RAILWAY MANAGEMENT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I beg space in your columns to expose what I consider a public wrong.

I was present when a recent action against the Government for damages, consequent upon the neglect of its officials, was tried in the Supreme Court, and Mr. Stephens, Q.C., leading counsel for the Government, remarked to the jury that the Government was a huge insurance office, charging no premiums. From the circumstances I am about to describe, it would appear to any reasonable person that the actual risk in travelling (as at present conducted) is a very, very high premium indeed.

I, to-day, with friends and their children, took six first-class return tickets from Erskineville to Hurstville, and arrived with my family and friends some time before the arrival of the Hurstville train, advertised to leave Erskineville at 10.56 a.m. On this train reaching the platform, it was found to be densely packed, even to the platforms, and there was no possibility of travelling in it. The gentleman who I presume was in charge of the station then informed me that another train which should not stop there would soon come in sight, and he would stop it. About 10 minutes afterwards this train appeared, and a large number who had been unable to enter the previous one awaited it. A number of ladies and children were entering the carriages when suddenly the driver blew his whistle, and it was difficult, even by shouting and screaming and the effort of officials, to stop him in time to prevent accident. I, with my wife and family and friends, awaited the 6.5 p.m. train from Hurstville to Erskineville. There were a good many passengers on the platform when the train shunted in, and my wife and children and my friends' wives and children waited until most of the passengers had entered the train. Just as my wife, leading by the hand her child between two and three years of age, stepped in the carriage the whistle blew. I called to the guard. He said, "He wont move." At this very second the train moved yards backwards, and my wife had to release the hand of the child who was on the very edge of the platform, and it was a miracle she did not fall between the train and the platform. I turned and spoke somewhat harshly to the guard, who I considered to blame, and he coolly and authoritatively demanded my name and address in just such a manner as I presume he would do if I were attempting to defraud the Government by travelling without a ticket. This should convince even the most ardent supporter of the principle of Governmental control of railways that, so long as the present state of affairs continues, the Government will be and remain, as Mr. Stephen described it, a huge insurance office, but with a premium of incalculable danger to all travellers. May I presume to inquire from the authorities who of them will read and inquire into these facts, or what other course I am to adopt, so that they may be inquired into? I have plenty of evidence to corroborate all I have stated, and should have more, but that, upon asking a gentleman who was in the train (and who expressed his disgust at the occurrence) for his name and address, he replied "I am a Government servant, and it would not do for me to say anything." I shall require a deal more subjugation to rule before I can submit to stand passively by and see my family slaughtered.

I am, &c.,

THE NEW TORYISM.

(From the Spectator.)

What strikes us most in the new Toryism which now inspires and controls the so-called Conservative party is not its immorality, naked and unabashed as that is, but its stupidity. It did not answer even under the skilful management of Lord Beaconsfield, and Lord Beaconsfield was a much cleverer political manœuvrer than Lord Randolph Churchill is, or ever will be. Lord Beaconsfield led his party altogether during a period of about 34 years, for Lord George Bentinck and the late Lord Derby were mere ornamental figureheads. Through the whole of that long period Lord Beaconsfield practised assiduously those arts which Lord Randolph Churchill recommended to his readers in a magazine article two years ago, and which he is now himself cultivating with cynical frankness as the virtual leader of the Tory Party. In that article Lord Randolph Churchill rebuked Lord Salisbury severely for having "condemned in forcible language the temptation, which was strong to many politicians, to attempt to gain the victory by bringing into the lobby men whose principles were divergent, and whose combined forces, therefore, could not lead to any wholesome victory." Lord Randolph goes on to observe very truly that Lord Salisbury's censure "was in reality a condemnation of the political career of the Earl of Beaconsfield." And he proceeds to prove by the irresistible logic of facts that Mr. Disraeli gained all his political victories in Parliament by alliances with men whose principles were antagonistic to those of the Tory party. Never reject an alliance, however "unwholesome," which may enable you to put your opponents in a minority; and "whenever, by an unfortunate concurrence of circumstances, an Opposition is compelled to support the Government, the support should be given with a kick and not with a caress, and should be withdrawn at the first available moment." The frankness of that advice leaves nothing to be desired. It is a candid defence of political immorality; a plain avowal that practical politics have nothing to do with right or wrong, and that the true statesman is he who disencumbers himself as quickly as he can of anything like a conscience. What he must aim at is success in the art of humbugging the dispensers of political power—that is to say, the constituencies—in the interest of the privileged classes. Lord Beaconsfield succeeded in bringing that art to perfection. But what other success did he achieve? Did he win the confidence of the constituencies? The answer is that in seven general elections, three of them under his own auspices, he secured a majority only once; and that single majority was in no way due to Mr. Disraeli's management or to the confidence of the country in his policy or statesmanship. It was due to the dissensions of the Liberal party, which, after all, had a considerable majority on the aggregate of votes over the whole field of the electorate. The truth is, the people in the mass are more sensitive to political sincerity and political character than the ordinary habitués of London clubs and London drawing-rooms. Lord Beaconsfield amused and interested them as a political conjuror; but he never took them in, never won their confidence or commanded their allegiance.

But the fact that Lord Beaconsfield, in a leadership extending over 34 years, obtained a majority at the polls on one solitary occasion through a fortuitous concourse of circumstances, has misled the active spirits of his party into the absurb belief that the way to Parliamentary success lies through the divorce of morality from politics. We are, in fact, now beginning to witness the mature fruits of Mr. Disraeli's vaunted education of his party. Step by step, with wry faces and internal qualms, they have learnt their lesson; and the great Conservative party has now become a party substituting manœuvre for principle, and professing in office doctrines totally opposed to those which they professed in opposition. And the curious thing is that there are serious and moral men among them who are filled with admiration for this political apostasy without even suspecting that there is anything base in it. There is Mr. Howorth, to wit. Mr. Howorth is a worthy man, well read, and transparently honest. But when he writes on politics he becomes at once smitten with a kind of colour-blindness which so distorts his mental vision that he is utterly unable to see the most ordinary facts in their proper shapes and historical relations. There is a letter from him in the Times of last Monday which is a marvel of political paralogism. The tone of the letter is certainly arrogant. It tells the public what "we Tories" think, and believe, and propose to do. But we do not complain of this arrogance. Mr. Howorth has a right to assume a lofty tone in the name of his party, for he is in Lord Randolph Churchill's confidence, and Lord Randolph Churchill is the dictator who shapes the policy and guides the conduct of the Tory party. It is therefore worth our while to consider what Mr. Howorth has to tell us.

Mr. Howorth flatters himself that "we Tories" have made a novel and important discovery in Irish politics. First, Irish affairs must not be allowed to "drift." Secondly, Ireland cannot be governed "as a Crown Colony." Consequently, there is need of "an entirely new departure, more in harmony with the aspirations of the best men in Ireland." This is the brand new patent policy which Mr. Howorth offers as the grand panacea for the ills of Ireland. But Mr. Howorth has a very short memory. Has he forgotten the volumes of virulent abuse which Tory speakers and writers discharged at Mr. Gladstone through a series of years for having dared to say 15 years ago that on questions purely Irish the British Parliament should be largely guided by the opinions and wishes of the Irish people? One of the stock Tory charges against Mr. Gladstone has been that he has advocated the government of Ireland "according to Irish ideas." And when Mr. Gladstone made "an entirely new departure, more in harmony with the aspirations of the best men in Ireland," what help did he get from the Tories? They fought desperately against the disestablishment of the Irish Church, against the Land Acts of 1870 and 1881, against the Arrears Act; and they defeated the Compensation for Disturbance Bill. On the other hand, they supported the Liberal Government with fanatical fervour in every step of a coercive policy, and never wearied of abusing it for falling so miserably short of the Tory standard of repression. Mr. Howorth is so hot a partisan that he contradicts himself in consecutive sentences without being in the least aware of the fatal collision of his arguments. He laments "over six hundred prominent Irish Nationalists being imprisoned," and in the next sentence denounces their release "without public inquiry or trial." It was infamous on the part of the Liberal Government to commit those six hundred men to prison, but still more infamous to release them, even at the cost of losing the Minister who imprisoned them! Such is a fair specimen of Mr. Howorth's political logic. But how did the Tories act in the matter of these Kilmainham prisoners? Did they not applaud the imprisonment? Did they not denounce—none more offensively than Lord Randolph Churchill—the gaol delivery? Mr. Howorth cannot contain himself when he thinks of "the Kilmainham incidents," and he contrasts the infamy of those transactions with the "new departure" of the present Government. Let us look a little into the comparison. The Kilmainham incidents are without a taint of political immorality. It came to the knowledge of the Government that Mr. Parnell and his principal followers were recoiling from the outrages that were so rife in Ireland, and had expressed their anxiety to use their influence to stop them. Thereupon the Government released them unconditionally, contrary to Mr. Forster's urgent advice to exact conditions. It was precisely because the Government refused to have anything to do with any Kilmainham Treaty that Mr. Forster resigned. But what is the essence of the Tory Government's "new departure"? The ruling spirit of that Government is Lord Randolph Churchill; and Lord Randolph Churchill has adopted in office the doctrines which he denounced in Opposition, and revels in every act of turpitude which he unjustly imputed to the late Government. In 1883 he stigmatised the Land League as "an association whose basis was terror, whose means of operation were assassinations, crimes, and outrages." In a subsequent speech he characterised the Liberal party as "the school which bargained for Parliamentary support with the assassins of the Phœnix Park." And lest there should be any doubt as to the application of the allusion, he added:—"This is the school which, in order to defeat the Tory party, will join hands again with Mr. Parnell in his demands for the independence of his country." But if the Tory party came into office there was to be an end of concessions to the Irish. "Concede nothing more to Mr. Parnell, either on the land, or on the franchise, or on local self-government." This was to be the true, the unchangeable Tory policy. And now? The party which was to "stand firm" against Parnellite demands has capitulated to Mr. Parnell on every point. The man who denounced the Parnellites in language more outrageous by far than any used by Mr. Bright, gets up in the House of Commons to denounce Mr. Bright for intemperate language. The man who told a public audience that Lord Hartington was an "idiotic" speaker, a lunatic who was incapable of managing his own private affairs, to say nothing of affairs of State, and whose friends ought therefore to confine him in an asylum, this man, forsooth, lectures his political opponents on the inconvenience of vituperative language! Mr. Howorth is indignant that the present Government should be accused "of borrowing or stealing their clothes from their opponents." In the interests of the Liberal party we share Mr. Howorth's indignation. The Liberal party has never fallen so low as to wear the renegade uniform in which the Tory Government is now arrayed. Mr. Howorth does not understand the nature of the indictment which he has got to meet. It is that the Tory party have in practice abjured all their previous professions, and are now consummating the compact with the Parnellites of which they falsely accused the late Government; and that they are cementing this compact, not merely by the sacrifice of political honour, but by the sacrifice of the whole judicial and executive administration of Ireland. Doubtless any prisoner has an indefinite right to petition, as Mr. Howorth affirms. But is there to be no finality to the hearing of petitions? Is every new Home Secretary and every fresh Viceroy in Dublin to reopen ad infinitum cases which have been already repeatedly heard and decided? Mr. Howorth's doctrine—which is, unfortunately, the doctrine and the practice of the Government—is more worthy of French Communists or Russian Nihilists than of a party which calls itself "Constitutional." But what surprises us is that the apostles and preachers of this new Toryism should be so simple as to imagine that the constituencies are to be imposed upon by this mongrel Liberalism. If the Tories had played their cards well their five months' tenure of office might have done them great service in the general election. They were secure of the Irish vote in any case, and an ordinary degree of prudence might have attracted a good many waverers to their side. But their feeble conduct of affairs in the House of Commons, and, above all, their truckling to the Irish, have spread alarm and disgust among their own party, and have hopelessly alienated the moderate Liberals.

Subdivided into blocks of from 1 to 10 acres, suitable for orchards and vineyards; and farms up to 80 acres.

HORNSEY,
situated about 2200 feet above the sea, possesses a bracing, healthy climate, English fruits and grasses. Also, the vine grows to perfection; two creeks of permanent water intersect the property.
A site on the railway line is reserved for a platform. Bundanoon station is about 1½ mile distant.
Most of the soil is deep rich chocolate, the land is undulating; and to those seeking health, or wishing to engage in fruit-growing, agriculture, or dairying, the Auctioneers can confidently recommend investment in this property.

THE TERMS
will be five per cent. deposit, and balance by monthly payments with interest added at 6 per cent per annum, extending over 4 years.

Freehold Title.

SATURDAY NEXT, OCTOBER 10.

HYDE PARK ESTATE, ROOKWOOD.

528 ALLOTMENTS.

WATKIN and WATKIN sell by auction,
The above estate, adjoining the Lillian, Brixton, Windermere and Regent's Park Estates, as subdivided by Mr. Shoobert.
The situation of the land cannot be surpassed. It has a gentle slope from Notting Hill-road to Kingsland-road, and commands extensive views over Pennant Hills, Ryde, &c.
Doubtless everybody is aware that the Government owns 1500 acres of land at Rookwood, upon which they are now erecting very extensive buildings for boys' reformatory, and as soon as they are complete other public institutions will follow. The works now underway cost over £30,000 (thirty thousand pounds); that means great traffic and progress in the neighbourhood, and this land adjoins the Government land, and is only about 500 yards from the buildings now in course of erection, which should greatly increase its value.
Every lot is good and well suited for building, as well as for drainage and sanitary arrangements. The land consists of part of an imperial grant of 600 acres to the late J. H. Potts, and has been purchased by the vendor at a price that will enable him to sell at prices that come within the reach of every one, and that will ensure for the purchasers a large profit in a very short time. The local sketch shows a few of the numerous residences in the neighbourhood, and when it can be said that the positions of those houses were all a dense scrub only four years ago, it shows the great progress Rookwood is making, and such progress will be far greater during the next four years, therefore investors cannot make any mistake in attending the Sale of Hyde Park Estate and buying one or more lots according to their means.
The terms are extra liberal, viz., £1 deposit, and balance by instalments of 10s per lot per month without interest.

ST. MARY'S, SOUTH CREEK.

The CELEBRATED
ST. MARY'S TANNERY, complete, with 20 acres Land.

EXCELLENT FAMILY RESIDENCE, with 16 acres Land.

HARRISON, JONES, and DEVLIN, Limited, have received instructions from the Executors of the late Joseph Horsfall, Esq., to sell by public auction, at their Rooms, Wool Stores, Circular Quay, Sydney, on FRIDAY, 23rd October, 1885, at 3 o'clock sharp,

Lot 1. TANNERY, with about 20 acres land, complete with every requisite for carrying on an extensive business.

The PLANT, which is most complete, and in perfect working order, includes 3-story drying shed, 150 x 28; 2 currying sheds, 100 x 27; engine house, hide and beam sheds, and 3 workman's cottages.
The PITS are all in first-class order, and capable of turning out 600 hides per week, and with a very small additional outlay could be increased to 1000 per week.
The MACHINERY is of the best procurable character, viz., portable engine, with Tange pump; a 2horizontal engine, 12 to 16 h.p.; 2 boilers (1 quite new), 30 and 0 h.p.; 1 steam (Wheathelm), brass roller; new bark mill (Wilson), steam pumps with necessary gearing, Union splitting machine, curriers' tools, beams, tables, weighing machines, &c.
The WATER is abundant and never-failing, the MAIN CREEK going through the property.
The LEATHER from this tannery bears a very high character in this market, the brand "St. Mary's" being most favourably known to the trade.

Lot 2. FAMILY RESIDENCE, with about 16 ACRES LAND, replete with every convenience, containing 11 rooms, 2 kitchens, verandah, large orchard fully stocked with well-chosen fruit trees, vines, &c., &c. The outhouses are of a very superior character—3 brick store rooms with cellars, stables, coachhouse, splendid fowlhouse, big styes.

TERMS.—One-third cash, balance in half-yearly instalments, with interest at 6 per cent. extending over 5 years.

In these days when a really remunerative return for capital is so difficult to get, the present sale forms a remarkable exception, as no further expenditure is required to begin the very profitable business of tanning, while the natural increment of the land will doubtless be equally profitable in the course of a few years. The tannery is ready for putting into work at an hour's notice.
The auctioneers would point out that the property is most suitable for any manufactory, and specially for carcase butchering, it being in a most advantageous and convenient situation, within a short distance of the RAILWAY, with abundance of pure water.
Intending purchasers will be shown over the properties on Wednesdays or Saturdays if application is made a day or two before to the auctioneers, from whom any further particulars can be obtained.
HARRISON, JONES, and DEVLIN, Limited, Sydney.

THE MANSION, a stately pile, in the Elizabethan style, built of brick and stone, is remarkable as displaying in its erection, and every detail, a refined taste and sound judgment which, with ample wealth and matured experience, have combined in placing upon a spot whereon nature has lavished charms of picturesque beauty. A SPLENDID HOME, replete with all that art and science can devise. It is seated on a high plateau, COMMANDING VIEWS EXTENDING IN ALL DIRECTIONS as far as the eye can reach. But perhaps the choicest feature of the Estate is the surpassingly beautiful grounds. They are large and varied, possessing the charm of an indefinite extent, while stately trees, splendid shrubs, rich and varied flower beds, sloping and levelled lawns, terraces, winding paths, and plantations of luxuriant evergreens, form a singular combination of attractions, and render the residence delightful in every season.

It is impossible that a property of such a remarkable character and having so many features commanding special admiration can be appreciated without personal inspection, but it may be safely asserted that this estate stands alone and unrivalled within a like distance of Sydney.
